BLOODMOBILE

Monday, November 30 — West End, school gymnasium, from 12 noon to 5:30 p.m.—Clyde Auman in charge.

Noting that the blood program year runs from June to June, Mr. Hauser said that the Moore County collections are running about 140 pints behind the quotas, so far. He urged a generous response from all three communities in the upcoming collections.

Quotas are based on the amount of blood actually used in the county. Red Cross blood is free to hospital patients except for a small handling charge. Patients, however, are asked to arrange that donors replace the amount of blood used, when the next collection is made in their communities.

TB SEAL SALE

The county TB Association is associated with the North Carolina and National Tuberculosis Associations and a small proportion of the proceeds goes for work at the state and national levels in research to aid the battle against tuberculosis which is still the nation's number one infectious disease killer.

Separate letters, Mr. Jenkins said, are going to business executives, asking for contributions from their firms and to thousands of individuals whose support of the Seal Sale has traditionally been generous in Moore County. Last Year's (1963-64) contributions amounted to $6,820 and it is hoped this figure can be topped in the current sale, Mr. Jenkins said.

No community chairmen are being appointed. All contributions should be sent to Box 70, Pinehurst. Checks should be made to Moore County TB Seal Sale. Persons who do not receive seals in the mail may get them by writing to the Pinehurst address.

No Indictment Asked Against 'Preacher Women'; Other Cases Heard, Carthage

While the grand jury continued to investigate bills for indictment, the petty jury had no work to do Tuesday, the second day of the current term of Moore County Superior Court in Carthage.

The grand jury had, by the end of the day, found true bills on all bills of indictment which had come before them. These did not include one case on the warrant docket, that against Margaret Sanderson and Gladys Hall, the two "preacher women" of upper Moore County who were convicted in a lower court of fraud and false pretense.

They had been released on their own recognizance, under no bond, to come into court at this term for criminal cases but by midweek it appeared that Solicitor M. G. Boyette was not seeking an indictment against them.

Goals of College
Dr. Stone's address chiefly dealt with services of the new college, for which ground would be broken November 25. He explained that the institution will prove that "education today is within the realm of anyone who wants it." The school will be prepared to offer any course for which there is demand, he said. It will be a fully-accredited two-year college.

Dr. Stone called SADA "democracy at work."

He said the Sandhills area's greatest resource is its people.

He emphasized that today's industrial and agricultural markets do not want cheap labor but, instead, skilled labor. It is to this goal the objectives of Sandhills Community College will be aimed, he explained.

NCBA President Robert P. Holding, Jr., of Smithfield, has announced that Samuel C. Harrison will serve as County Key Banker during the next 12 months. Mr. Harrison is assistant vice president of The Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Southern Pines.

Noting that the NCBA continues to spend more time and money on its farm programs than any other phase of its activity, President Holding thanked the 100 County Key Bankers for "the significant role they play in banking's service to agriculture."

He called attention to the projects sponsored by the Association such as the annual farm credit conference and the two-week school at North Carolina State for 150 young farm leaders from every section of North Carolina. These scholarships have totaled over 1,400 in number since the program began. All expenses have been paid by the hometown banks of the recipients. Another project is the land judging contest in the interest of soil conservation.

Meanwhile, the banks of North Carolina continue to lend more money to farmers than any other institutional group of lenders, Mr. Holding said.

Tarheels Attend Joint Meeting Of School Of The Arts Boards

A first-hand report on the meeting of the two boards of the North Carolina School of the Arts, held in New York Saturday, was given by Mrs. James Boyd, Pilot publisher, a member of the board of trustees of the state organization.

Held at the Stanhope Hotel, the meeting opened at 10:30 am with a short talk by Governor Terry Sanford and lasted all day, with the morning devoted to separate meetings of the trustees and the advisory board and a joint meeting in the afternoon. The morning working sessions covered the current situation of this newest state educational project with reports given by committee chairmen. A report on the student recruitment campaign was given by Mrs. Paul Mullenberg, of Charlotte, chairman of the committee, who told of immediate steps being taken to start this ball rolling; a change of architectural plans was described by the committee chairman, E. N. Richards, of Raleigh and Pinehurst; reports on finances and publicity were heard. The roster of faculty members as engaged to date, was described by Dr. Vittorio Giannini, president of the school, and included the names of several outstanding musicians and teachers who have already been engaged.

At the luncheon which followed, the group was joined by Mrs. Terry Sanford, a recent appointee to the Board of Trustees; also by John Ehle and Joel Fleishman, both former special assistants to Governor Sanford. Mr. Ehle, while returning to Chapel Hill from time to time, is now working for the Ford Foundation in the New York office.

Following luncheon, the two groups joined to exchange views and hear an address by the president on possibilities for future growth.

Several of the points touched on by Dr. Giannini evoked spirited discussion from members of both boards. The need for a "wide horizon" was urged by composer Richard Adler, seconded forcefully by Paul Green, playwright, of Chapel Hill; further telling remarks came from Sidney Blackmer, of Salisbury, noted actor and chairman of the advisory board; Dr. Benjamin Swalin, director of the North Carolina Symphony, a member of the board of trustees, spoke with his usual eloquence.

Also attending the afternoon session was Mrs. Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., who had come to New York to join Mrs. Boyd and who accompanied her afterwards to a cocktail gathering at the apartment of Smith Bagley, of Winston-Salem, a member of the board of trustees.

Mid-Town Fire Protection Association Will Incorporate, Form Fire District

The Mid-Town Fire Protection Association was formed last Thursday night at a meeting at Aberdeen school, with the object of establishing a fire district between the towns of Aberdeen and Southern Pines.

Attending the meeting were about 25 residents of the area to be protected, which extends some three miles north and south from town limit to town limit, along US Highway 1, and three miles east and west of the highway.

Alton Scott was elected president of the association, with Watson Scott, Jr., as vice-president, H. Clifton Blue treasurer and Mrs. Everett Green, publicity chairman.

Membership dues were set at $1 per person. With dues already paid in, the officers, constituting an executive board, were authorized to proceed immediately toward incorporation of the association.

Sherman Pickert, head of the fire and rescue service of the State Department of Insurance, guest speaker explained the various types of fire districts which could be set up under the statute, and the advantages of each in terms of protection and lowered fire insurance costs.

The next meeting was set for December 16, at which time operating committees will be appointed and plans made for an extensive membership and information campaign within the district.

After organization is completed, and when the membership has reached a representative figure, plans will be made for establishment of the type of fire district considered by the majority to be most efficient and economical.

Preceding last Thursday night's meeting the steering committee, which laid the groundwork for organizing the association, entertained Pickert at a steak supper at Christy's Restaurant.

COUNCIL MEETS

Merchants Worst About Parking, Chief Tells Group

Fifteen local businessmen gathered Monday night at the town municipal building for the monthly meeting of the Southern Pines Merchant's Council.

The meeting was opened by Dante Montesanti, council chairman, who stated that henceforth the council directors would meet on the Thursday before the each "third Monday" meeting to formulate agenda items.

Number one item on this week's agenda was the parking problem which has been the main point of discussion during the past several meetings. Those present agreed that the recent enforcement of the parking limits in the business district had discouraged merchants and employees from taking valuable parking spaces which shoppers would ordinarily use.

Police Chief Earl S. Seawell pointed out that the businessmen and employees were still the major offenders and that 50 per cent of all parking tickets were being awarded to persons falling in the merchant-employee category.

Seawell also said that a new scooter had been purchased by the town which is much quieter, enabling policemen to mark cars without alerting those accustomed to the practice of moving their car when they heard the old noisy scooter.

The new scooter also has a cab, which will allow cars to be marked during rainy weather.

Recommendation
In view of the fact that businessmen owners and employees continue to be the worst offenders, the merchants passed a motion recommending that the Town Council impose an additional fine for continual parking violators.

Mayor Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., who was present at the meeting along with Town Councilman Fred Pollard and Town Manager F. F. Rainey, expressed pleasure over the improved business parking situation and urged everyone to use all available off-street parking space for the benefit of shoppers.

Christmas Lighting
Representing the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Jim Thomasson reported on the Christmas lighting and stated that the Jaycees planned to put up the decorations and lights the weekend after Thanksgiving. Thomasson showed the gathering a sample of the decorations and a photograph of a city having the decorations Southern Pines will have this year. He said the merchants of Southern Pines had donated $1,120 toward the purchase of this year's lights which will cost approximately $3,200 over the first three years of use.

Thomasson also reported on the progress of the 11th annual Golf Caroussel, starting today, and expressed appreciation "on behalf of the Jaycees to the merchants of Southern Pines who have given us such wonderful support."

Bus Station?
Chairman Montesanti brought up the topic of a bus station for Southern Pines and said that a number of persons had inquired about the reason behind the town's not having one. Montesanti reported that he had written the Queen City Trailways company inquiring about the possibility and said that he would discuss the matter more fully at the next meeting and after the bus company has had time to reply.

Clean-Up Urged
Montesanti discussed town cleanup and beautification urging all businessmen present to keep their area clean with the hopes that other business would follow the example.

Christmas Closing
The matter of closing downtown businesses the day after Christmas, Saturday, December 26, was discussed and the membership went on record as recommending that all concerned join in closing the day after Christmas.

Chairman Montesanti informed the council that the next meeting would be held in January at which time the 1965 goals of the Merchant's Council would be presented.
