COMMUNITY FOUNDATION HELPS

Taylorstown Sanitary District Formed, Commissioners Chosen; Projects Set

Taylorstown is a community located about a mile outside Pinehurst, and consists of approximately 900 residents and 200 homes. Up until the present, due to the absence of any community organization, facilities such as street lighting or water supply have been provided only on an individual basis.

Early in 1962 a group of residents in Pinehurst organized the Pinehurst Community Foundation for the purpose of organizing and assisting in undertakings involving improvements and conditions affecting the welfare, recreation or other needs of the area. One of the initial projects of the Foundation has been to provide assistance of this type for the Taylorstown community. Through the Foundation, the necessary legal and engineering expenses were provided, which made it possible to secure approval through the various State Departments and the Board of Moore County Commissioners in establishing Taylorstown as a sanitary district.

Officials Named

The Board of Moore County Commissioners and Commissioner W. Sidney Taylor, personally, have been especially cooperative in this accomplishment. With their approval, five individuals, residents of Taylorstown, have been established as the initial sanitary district commissioners: Floyd Ray, chairman; Mrs. Dan Morrison, secretary; Hazel Cagle, Ernest Jackson and Cobie Ransom.

The establishing of the community on this legalized basis made it possible for the Carolina Power and Light Company to negotiate with the district in installing the necessary equipment for street lighting facilities. Ward Hill of that organization was extremely helpful in bringing these negotiations to a satisfactory conclusion and in providing street lights for the community which were of the very latest type and provides a much-needed ed improvement, an official of the foundation said.

Water Supply

The Foundation Committee had determined that an adequate water supply represented the most-desired and necessary requirement of the community. With the legal services of Page and Neville, and the engineering of Paul M. Van Camp Associates, Inc., the necessary details and requirements involved in such a project, under existing conditions, could only be handled through the Community Facilities Administration of the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency, whose regional office is in Atlanta, Ga.

Representatives of the sanitary district, the above legal and engineering organizations, and members of the Community Foundation arranged for a conference in Atlanta to present the case for an application for a loan to finance the project.

Federal Loan

On October 27, the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency announced the approval of a Public Facilities Loan in the amount of $138,000 for the purpose indicated. Construction on the project is to get underway within a period not exceeding six months, and to be completed within not more than six months from that time.

The establishing of Taylorstown as a sanitary district provides for a legalized, self-governing community which permits the levying of the necessary taxes required to provide for other improvements, such as sewer facilities, whenever it is practical to do so. The accomplishments which have developed in connection with the Taylorstown project provide an exceptional example of what can be done with an organized effort on the part of community groups, such as the Pinehurst Community Foundation and the new sanitary district.

Interesting Careers

We have recently heard what we consider quite interesting news about two former Pinehurst women, both involved in lively and stimulating work in connection with their careers.

Nancy Campbell, who is council advisor for National Girl Scouts with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., returned there Sunday after a trip to the Panama Canal Zone, where she was on a leadership training mission.

During her time there, she was stationed in Balboa, coaching Girl Scout leaders there who have charge of troop activities for dependents of US service personnel in the Canal Zone.

Every two years, a Girl Scout executive from National headquarters is sent to Panama to give training assistance, and Nancy was chosen this year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Campbell of Pinehurst, Nancy has managed, during her years as a GS executive, to see a good bit of the world. She was in Europe about two years ago on a similar mission, visiting various posts on the Continent where US service families were stationed, and working with local Girl Scout troop leaders on the posts.

The other young woman, married and the mother of a daughter, has elected to begin a career in the medical profession, and now has two years' study at Methodist College behind her and is well on the way to her goal.

She is Virginia (Mrs. Lewis) Frye, daughter of Mrs. A. E. Teague of Pinehurst and a sister of Mrs. Thomas Horner and of Mrs. John McKenzie, also residents here.

Before she went to live in Fayetteville, with her husband and daughter, Virginia worked here for Dr. J. C. Grier, Jr. in his offices which were then located in town, close to the A&P.

After work there, she did the night work on the Cracker Barrel, cutting the two-page master stencil and running the Barrel off on the electric mimeograph machine.

This was, as it still is for the Pinehurst publication, a six-night-a-week job. So you can see, even then, the girl was a worker.

Capt. George F. Shearwood, the then director of the Pinehurst Press Bureau and editor of the Cracker Barrel, said he would like to see Virginia enter a typing contest some time, as he had never known anyone who had such a quick and consistent "touch" on the machine.

This is especially important in cutting stencils, as a touch which is regular and unvarying makes a uniform-looking page, while an erratic touch, sometimes light, sometimes heavy, is reflected very quickly in the flow of ink through the cut letters of the stencil and thus, on the finished page.

St. Andrews Choir

Our appreciation to those responsible for the appearance of the St. Andrews College Choir Sunday at the Village Chapel.

Their singing in the evening service was both spirited and spiritual. The 54 good-looking young men and women toured with talented zest through a program ranging from early moets, through songs for Christmas and wound up with two unusual and moving spirituals.

Director of the group is Lawrence Skinner. The choir sang a capella with chapel organist Theodore Keller playing the prelude and postlude.

The associate guidance director at St. Andrews, the Rev. Grant Folmsbee, gave the invocation and benediction.

Leaving Tuesday after a week-end visit with Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Amstutz and family at their Linden Road home were Mr. and Mrs. James Stirling of Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

Rev. Clements To Conduct Service

Guest minister at the 11 am service Sunday, November 29, at the Village Chapel will be the Rev. Rex S. Clements.

Mr. Clements who is secretary of the Council on Theological Education of the Presbyterian Church, USA, is from Philadelphia, Pa.

'Messiah' Here

The following Sunday afternoon, December 6, the Sandhills Choral Group will present Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," at the Chapel. Over 80 singers from the Sandhills area will take part.

The group has been rehearsing under the direction of Mrs. John McPhaul and Mrs. Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., both of Southern Pines.
