

County Expected To Cooperate In Food Stamp Plan

A food stamp program that would enable low-income persons to purchase more food for less money will probably be implemented in Moore County, starting in July, it was announced this week by Mrs. Walter B. Cole of Carthage, county director of public welfare.

W. S. Taylor of Aberdeen, member of the board of county commissioners, said today that the board had made application several months ago for Moore County to be included in the program. He said that the board will probably discuss the matter on Monday and that details of its operation in Moore remain to be worked out. There had been some discussion, he said, of whether it would be applicable on a seasonal basis or all through the year.

Six North Carolina counties have already begun participation in the program. R. Eugene Brown, state commissioner of public welfare, announced this week.

Mrs. Cole gave the following explanation of the program: Low income families using the food stamp plan are eating much more and better foods, with more than 80 percent of the increase in livestock products, fruits, and vegetables. Their diets are much more nutritious than before.

In addition, the food stamp plan helps the economy of the communities where it is in effect by increasing sales in retail food stores. All food items can be bought with the stamps except certain imported items. Alcoholic beverages and tobacco are prohibited.

The food stamps are issued according to an income scale. Persons receiving public welfare assistance are considered to be in economic need. Other families may also receive food stamps provided their income does not exceed certain amounts. The requirements are worked out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the public welfare department and are in line with the standards used by the State to determine eligibility for its welfare programs.

Banks in the counties using the food stamp plan are cooperating. County departments of public welfare issue to individuals and families an authorization, which is similar in appearance to a check. This authorization is taken to banks, which issue the food stamps.

Families exchange the amount of cash they would normally spend on food for stamps which are worth considerably more. For instance, an individual may buy food stamps worth $12 for $2 cash. A family may buy food stamps worth $24 for $4 cash.

Dr. Stone Taking Part In College Symposium

Dr. Raymond A. Stone, of Southern Pines, president of Sandhills Community College, will be among the panelists participating in the North Carolina Wesleyan College Symposium, "Carolina in Transition, or the Psychological and Cultural Aspects of the Emerging New South," to be held March 1, at The College in Rocky Mount.

Alleged Holiday Inn Bandits To Face Grand Jury

Two Wake County youths charged with armed robbery at the Holiday Inn February 14, waived preliminary hearing in Southern Pines municipal court Wednesday and were bound over to superior court under $3,000 bond each, which they did not immediately make. They face grand jury action at the April 25 term of Moore County Superior Court.

Frederick Howard Johnson, 20, of Cary and Bobby Phil Clayton, 21, of Morrisville, Route 1, tendered no plea. Johnson is under probation in connection with a larceny charge in Wake County.

Gary Griffith, SBI agent who assisted Southern Pines police in investigating the case, testified Wednesday in place of Police Chief Earl Seawell, who was attending school at the Institute of Government on that day.

The defendants were arrested in Palatka, Fla., two days after the holdup of Sunday morning, February 14, when they forced Mrs. Mary Baxter, night auditor, to hand over $197.20.

N. C. Little Symphony To Play Here March 5

The North Carolina Little Symphony, under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Swalin, will present its annual evening concert here on Friday, March 5, at 8:30 in Weaver Auditorium with Giorgio Ciompi, violinist, as guest artist. The Little Symphony's appearance here is sponsored by the Sandhills Music Association, in its 1964-65 concert series.

A children's concert is also on the Little Symphony's schedule at 10 am on the same day in the Aberdeen School Auditorium. Earlier, there was a children's concert in the West Southern Pines School gymnasium on January 27.

A delightful program is in store for the March 5 audience. The first portion of the evening's concert is composed of Cimarosa's Overture to The Secret Marriage; "Fugue in A Minor" by Bach; and Beethoven's "Symphony No. 1 in C Major," Opus 21.

Immediately following intermission, Dr. Swalin will present Mr. Ciompi, who will join the orchestra in a performance of Beethoven's "Romance in F Major," Opus 50 and Saint-Saen's "Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso," Opus 28.

The remainder of the program will include Bizet's "Carmen Suite No. 1"; the "Chant of Aspiration" by Labunski; and "Selections from the Lost Colony."

from the big plant on the Aberdeen-Pinehurst highway. Completion is expected by June 1.

The new center will house a research laboratory and the Gulistan Carpet Division's industrial engineering, mechanical engineering and product development and designing facilities.

Richard Dorian, vice president for research and engineering, will move his headquarters from New York City to the new center.

The Gulistan Division recently announced the building of a new Production Control Center at Aberdeen, to which George Paules, vice president for manufacturing, will move his headquarters from New York.

Mr. Winterer said that he and Walter Corno, vice president, will remain at the Division's offices at 295 Fifth Ave., New York. All marketing activities will also continue there, under the direction of John T. Lees, vice president for marketing, and Henry Collins, general sales manager.

EVENT TO HONOR 2 LEGISLATORS

The Moore County Young Democrats Club will sponsor an "Appreciation Night" supper and program this spring, honoring the two legislators from Moore County, State Senator Voit Gilmore of Southern Pines and Rep. Clyde Auman of West End.

The event was tentatively set for Friday, April 23, at the Aberdeen School cafeteria, at a meeting of YDC members and others held Monday at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge.

Sam Poole of Southern Pines will serve as general chairman for the event, with Dock Smith, Jr., of Robbins, Moore YDC president, in charge of the program and Jack Barren of Southern Pines in charge of ticket sales.

BENJAMIN SWALIN Director

Paul Green's Symphonic Drama, has been adapted for the North Carolina Symphony by Marion Rogers, assistant conductor.

At the Aberdeen children's program, students chosen from all the Moore County white schools will attend and others not attending will hear the concert by radio. All are studying the music in advance, practicing songs that will be sung with the orchestra at the concert.

At the January 27 concert here,

Teachers Will Study Guidance; School Out, 2:15

Members of the faculty of the Southern Pines city schools will participate in a Guidance Workshop on Tuesday, March 2. The program will be held in the library and multi-purpose room of West Southern Pines High School, beginning at 2:30 pm.

All of the city schools will dismiss at 2:15 pm on that day to allow time for the workshop. School buses will depart at approximately 2:20 pm. Parents who pick students up at school should plan to do so at 2:15 instead of 3:15.

The workshop is being planned and will be directed by Mrs. John McPhaul, guidance counselor at East Southern Pines High School and Mrs. Lillie J. Solomon, guidance counselor at West Southern Pines High School.

The program will be arranged to operate in three forty five minute sessions. The faculty will be divided into two groups, elementary and secondary teachers, for two of the sessions and will meet together for the final session.

Mrs. McPhaul will act as moderator for one of the sessions which will discuss "The Concepts of Testing." Mrs. Solomon will moderate the workshop period devoted to "Test Analysis and Evaluation."

The third session of the workshop will be discussion by J. W. Jenkins, superintendent of Southern Pines Schools, Glenn L. Cox, principal of East Southern Pines High School, and H. A. Wilson, principal of West Southern Pines High School, on "The Utilization of Test Data."

The purpose of the Guidance Workshop is to make known to the teachers the services available to the teachers and the students through the guidance personnel employed in the local schools.

Ceremony Marks Start Of Work On Big New Camp Easter Building

Painted gold, lettered with the place and date and decorated with a big green bow of ribbon, a special shovel in the hands of Mrs. Audrey K. Kennedy of Southern Pines broke ground Wednesday for the big main lodge building on which work has begun at Camp Easter in the Pines.

With officials of the North Carolina Society for Crippled Children and Adults watching, and numerous persons associated with the camp project also on hand, the Rev. A. L. Thompson, pastor of the Southern Pines

Methodist Church, opened the ceremony with a prayer dedicating the proposed structure "to the relief and helping of those who suffer" and asked Divine blessing on "a project of compassion and love."

A light rain was falling throughout the proceedings which were not postponed because of the numerous persons coming from other areas of the state. Mrs. Kennedy had been invited to officiate at the ground-breaking because of her exceptional interest in the camp.

Mayor Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., expressing delight that Camp Easter—a state-wide facility for handicapped children that opened last year—is continuing to grow, presented the special shovel to Charles Enman of Asheville, State president of the Society.

Mr. Enman voiced his appreciation for all the work that has gone into the Camp Easter undertaking, with special thanks to the citizens of Southern Pines.

The lodge will be a structure of about 6,000 square feet in size, housing a dining and assembly room with big fireplace, kitchen, lounge room for counselors, the camp office and first aid and rest rooms.

Exposed trusses will add to the interior charm. The exterior will be finished in the same vertical wood siding that is used on the four campers' cabins that were previously built.

Entrances provide ramps, in place of steps, for the many campers who use wheel chairs. Austin and Faulk of Southern Pines are the architects and L. M. Daniels, Jr., of Southern Pines has the construction contract.

The lodge will be a major factor in practically doubling the service to handicapped children to be rendered by Camp Easter this summer, as compared to last year—with plans calling for about 200 campers in four two-week sessions during the coming summer. The dining facilities in the new lodge will free the former cafeteria building for conversion to dormitory space.

Others present from out of town, in addition to Mr. Enman, who is on both the executive committee and the camp committee, were Bert Hawley, executive director of the State Society, of Chapel Hill; Marshall Smith of Chapel Hill who heads the Society's fundraising campaign there; R. A. Lassiter of Raleigh, a member of both the executive committee and the camp committee, who was formerly the State Society's executive director; Clarence Whitefield of Durham, member of the executive committee and immediate past president of the State Society; and Miss Dell Norfleet of Winston-Salem, a contributor and friend of the camp.

Several other members of the executive and camp committees who were unable to be present sent their greetings and best wishes, as did a number of interested local persons who could not attend because of the bad weather or other reasons.
