Dedication Conducted At Library

"The most wonderful thing about your Town Library is that it includes not only a fine collection of books but also a picture gallery and garden."

The speaker was the Hon. Edwin Gill, treasurer of the State of North Carolina and chief speaker at the dedication of the newly-opened additions to the Southern Pines Library, Saturday afternoon.

The program under the guidance of W. Lamont Brown, chairman of the Library Board of Trustees, opened with an invocation by the Rev. John W. Peek, followed by words of greeting from the chairman to the more than 100 townspeople and guests assembled in the main room of the building.

Of special interest to many were the remarks of Mrs. R. M. McMillan, president of the Southern Pines Garden Club, which presented to the library the uniquely attractive patio garden to be called The Yeomans Garden after Alfred B. Yeomans, public-spirited citizen and landscape architect, promoter of music and the cultural activities of Southern Pines and special adviser to the local club.

In accepting the garden for the town, Mayor Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., expressed "the gratitude of everyone" for this adjunct to the library and the community's appreciation of "the hard work and expert planning that went into this most recent gift to the town by this group."

Musical Interlude

A delightful and appropriate feature of the program—because of the late Mr. Yeomans' great love of music—was the interlude of Haydn music presented by The Recorders. The six players were: Mrs. C. E. Cowan, Mrs. N. L. Hodgkins, Jr., Richard Mitchell, William Whitley, William A. McAdams, and Dr. Robert Downing of Fayetteville. Their instruments included two soprano, two alto and two tenor recorders.

The address of the State Treasurer followed, in which Mr. Gill declared forthrightly his strong conviction that a library "full of great books is a bastion of freedom."

"It seems to me," said the speaker, "that, as we dedicate this library and all it stands for, (Continued on Page 23)

Lynn E. Daeke Receives Appointment To USAF Academy

Lynn Ellis Daeke, 18-year-old East Southern Pines High School senior, has received an appointment to the US Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., he has been informed.

First notice of the honor came last Wednesday in a telegram from Rep. Charles R. Jonas, 8th District Congressman to whom Daeke had applied for an appointment, last summer. Confirmation of his appointment by Rep. Jonas and acceptance by the Academy came two days later from the Academy which is the Air Force equivalent of the Army's West Point and the Navy's Annapolis.

APPRECIATION

A spokesman for the Southern Pines Volunteer Fire Department this week asked The Pilot to express the department's appreciation to all who attended or bought tickets to the successful 32nd Annual Fireman's Ball, for benefit of the department, held May 1 at the National Guard Armory.

chairman for the award, also presented certificates to the other nominees—David Howard Jones of Southern Pines, Janice C. Fields of Pinehurst, Jane Ellen Jackson of West End, Janice Havner of Union Pines, Shirley June Hare of Westmore and Martha Jane Williams of Robbins.

The nominations were made by the school principals, and the choice was based on the nominees' records and personal interviews held by the Kiwanis committee. Burns, president of his senior class, has been Beta Club president, served on the annual and school newspaper staffs, in the glee club and on the Student Council, has letters in all varsity athletics and is a member of the Monogram Club, has been football and basketball team captain (Continued on Page 8)

Mary Lena Faulk Store Schedules Opening Saturday

Formal opening of a new shop handling women's casual and country clothes and active sports wear will take place Saturday when the Mary Lena Faulk Store starts operations at 160 W. Pennsylvania Ave., across from The Pilot office.

Miss Faulk and her associate, Miss Betty Jameson, for several weeks have been remodeling the interior of the building which Miss Faulk, proprietor of the business, recently purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Warren Bell. A newly designed front entrance has also been provided.

Interior improvements include new floors and lighting fixtures, a wall paneled in cypress and construction of fitting rooms. (Continued on Page 8)

Control Of Wind Erosion, Dust Storms Object Of New Program In 5 Counties

BY F. D. ALLEN
County Extension Chairman

Action is being taken to control wind erosion and dust storms in the Sandhills area.

A meeting was held recently at the Sandhills Research Station, below Candor, of a committee appointed by the Sandhills Area Development Association.

The committee consisted of the county extension chairman and work unit conservationists with the Soil Conservation Service in the counties of Hoke, Lee, Montgomery, Moore and Richmond. These people are: Hoke—Wendell Young and F. O. Clark; Lee—Tom Haislip and Bobby G. Brock; Montgomery—Austin M. Garriss and John U. Lilly; Moore—F. D. Allen and W. K. Keller; and

Legislation Asked Permitting Vote On Countywide School System, Special Tax

The county commissioners' action Tuesday to break the school consolidation deadlock with double-barreled legislation climaxed two days in which they met for a total of almost nine hours, determined to keep meeting till they reached a solution.

They met for three and a half hours Monday with the county's legislators and representatives of all the school boards involved and Pinehurst, Inc.

They met for two hours Tuesday morning with County Attorney M. G. Boyette, and for nearly another three and a half hours Tuesday afternoon with the county board of education.

At the close of the first day, chairman John M. Currie commented, "It's all those same old stone walls," but bit by bit the walls began to give way.

Survey Provided Plan

The "master plan" of which they never lost sight was that set by a survey of Moore schools they had sponsored last January, which supported other surveys made through the years in its conclusions—that one administrative unit, instead of three would best serve the county, both educationally and taxwise, and that the Southern Pines and Pinehurst city units, and Aberdeen and West End of the Moore County system, should consolidate their high schools.

With the deadlock over the site of the Area III school at a crisis stage, Aberdeen and West End sorely in need of their school and bond money voted toward paying for it—while the two city units held off—the commissioners started last week tackling some (Continued on Page 8)

Worsham Buys Bakery; Planning Add Delicatessen

C. L. Worsham, Jr., has bought The Bread Basket, formerly Howard's Bakery, from Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Quillen, who have owned and operated the business for close to a year.

The owner of Worsham's Grocery and Meat Market in Pinehurst, which he bought in 1963 from James D. Hobbs, Mr. Worsham has started operating the bake shop on N. W. Broad St. under its new name, Worsham's Bakery.

Managing the shop and in charge of the baking, is John Carver of Fayetteville. Assisting him are Norma Berry and Mrs. Margaret Phipps, both of Southern Pines.

Plans of the new owner call for a remodeling of the facilities and the addition of a delicatessen (Continued on Page 8)

174 Pints Blood Given This Week

A total of 174 pints of blood were collected at two stops this week by a bloodmobile from the Charlotte Red Cross Center that supplies both hospitals in Moore County.

John Dibb, acting Moore County Red Cross Blood Program chairman, reported 73 pints donated at Pinehurst on Monday and 101 pints at Aberdeen, Tuesday.

The acting chairman thanked all who gave blood or assisted at the two collection points.

Far-Reaching Aspects Of Civil Rights School Rulings Told To Commissioners

The county commissioners expressed their concern Tuesday to J. W. Sheffield, chairman of the Pinehurst board of education, as to whether or not $85,000 his board is planning to spend on the Academy Heights Negro School would not be "money down the drain."

Latest school edicts based on the Civil Rights law, they thought, indicated that "within a couple of years there won't be any more Negro schools."

They expressed the fear that money spent on new construction on the Negro schools of today will

Operetta Will Be Given Two Nights

Last rehearsals were going on this week for "Babes in Toyland," the annual operetta production of East Southern Pines Junior High School, which will be presented in Weaver Auditorium, Friday and Saturday nights, at 8 pm.

The Victor Herbert musical, in which all Junior High students are taking part in acting, singing or staging, is directed by Mrs. Billigene Garner. The Junior High Chorus and band will be featured, along with the operetta's large cast.

COUNCIL TO MEET

The new town council elected May 4 will hold its first regular meeting at the municipal building Tuesday, May 18, at 8 pm. Members of the council are: Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., mayor; Felton J. Capel, mayor pro tem; George H. Leonard, Jr., L. D. McDonald and Lee K. Smithson.

The Moore County commissioners in special session Tuesday afternoon took action toward holding a countywide vote, probably in the fall, which if approved would revamp the entire administration of the schools, place all schools in a single administrative unit and permit the levying of a countywide tax supplement to enrich the program of all the schools.

They adopted a resolution, which was immediately dispatched to Raleigh, requesting that Senators Voit Gilmore and Robert Morgan and Rep. Clyde Auman sponsor legislation to empower the commissioners to call such an election, in their discretion.

The proposed legislation stipulates that the special supplementary tax would not exceed 30 cents per $100 of property valuation.

The resolution, unanimously adopted, spelled out a reorganization from a five-member to a seven-member board of education, with six members to be elected from designated voting districts and one member at large.

The vote, if carried, would pool all administration and county resources available for schools into one unit, with one board, instead of dividing them among three units as at present—the county system, Southern Pines and Pinehurst.

The plan is similar to that recently adopted by vote of the people in the Scotland County-Laurinburg merger, which, the commissioners learned from County Attorney M. G. Boyette, "has been tested all the way to the State Supreme Court and found legal in all its aspects."

Another Resolution

As a safety measure, in case the referendum fails to carry, and so as hot to hold up the school program for another biennium, the commissioners adopted another resolution in concurrence with one adopted Saturday by the county board of education, for legislation allowing the (Continued on Page 8)

PEACH BLIGHT

The Sandhills Experiment Station at Windblow is attempting to find the cause and cure of a blight that has killed from 10 to 60 per cent of the trees in some peach orchards in this area.

F. D. Allen, county extension chairman, told the county commissioners last week that damage to orchards has been extensive, although varied from orchard to orchard. He said the disease resembles "brown rot" and said that weakening of trees from the freeze that nearly wiped out the 1964 crop may be a factor.

The commissioners later questioned the county board of education, meeting with them on consolidation problems, concerning the latest Civil Rights edicts (Continued on Page 8)

Little League To Sell Candy Here On Saturday

Southern Pines Little League Baseball players will be selling candy mints throughout the community Saturday, in a one-day drive to raise money to help meet league expenses.

Persons not buying candy but wishing to donate to this activity for boys should make checks payable to "Southern Pines Little League" and send them in care of the local post office.

TALENTED — Here are the five Moore County young people accepted by the new N. C. School of the Arts to open this fall. ### TO ENTER NEW FACILITY IN SEPTEMBER

5 From County Accepted By School Of Arts

Five Moore County young people are among the first 92 students accepted for study this fall at the new North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

The purpose of this meeting was to study the problem and make suggestions and plans for coping with it. It was brought out that dust storms are not only a safety and health hazard but are seriously affecting some of the best crop land in the area.

Measures have been taken in the past such as the planting of trees for wind breaks, strip cropping, cover crops and other sod planting. These practices have (Continued on Page 8)

Southern Pines—Carolyn Jane McGoogan, organ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan L. McGoogan; Anna Dell Smith, dance, and Frank Pearce (Buddy) Smith, Jr., dance, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pearce Smith.

West End—Helen Heath Hanner, dance, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hanner; Janet Markham, organ, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Markham.

They will all enter the school September 5.

The 92 students were chosen from 241 who auditioned in April. A second group of auditions will be held June 10-12 at Winston-Salem.

Both Jane McGoogan and Janet Markham are organ pupils of William Stokes of Southern Pines, organist at Brownson Memorial Presbyterian Church. Both are also longtime piano students. Jane has been studying organ for eight months and Janet for a couple of years. Both are high school sophomores, Jane in Southern Pines and Janet at West End.
