NUMEROUS FAULTS FOUND

County Should Replace Jail, Inspector States

The Moore County Jail has been found inadequate, unsafe and unsanitary by Leslie D. Smith, State inspector of correctional institutions, who recommends that a new jail be built.

His report, following an inspection made March 2, has been submitted to Sheriff W. B. Kelly, with a copy to John M. Currie, chairman of county commissioners. Citing applicable statutes, it included full transcripts of them, implying the power of the law to force action if needed. There was no intimation, however, that use of the jail should be discontinued at this time.

One statute cited was 153-49.1, which places responsibility on the commissioners to provide proper jail facilities. Currie read the report to the board in regular session Monday but the matter was not discussed nor any action taken.

In his report Smith stated he found the jail "in clean condition" and the jailer and sheriff "doing a good job with what they have to work with."

It has been generally believed the jail building is somewhere around 100 years old, but Mrs. Estelle Wicker, county accountant, said this week her information is that it was built around the turn of the century. That it looks its age and much more is shown by the inspection report, where, checking the question, "When was institution built?" Smith had written, "1800?"

J. Ed Cockman, a deputy sheriff, is named as jailer in the report. Actually, Mrs. Cockman is listed as jailer on the county rolls, superintends the cooking and daily routine and receives the fees for the prisoners' meals. The Cockmans live in the apartment in the front part of the building and share responsibility for the jail.

The inspector's 14-point critique follows:

1. Recommend that someone be on duty whenever prisoners are held in this jail.
2. The lavatories are in bad condition and are not sanitary.
3. The cell area used for Negro women is located in the Negro male area. This is inadequate.

Red Cross Seeks

$14,000 To Aid Varied Projects

March is Red Cross month, the public was reminded this week by Mrs. Audrey K. Kennedy, volunteer executive secretary of the Moore County Chapter.

"In this month we are asked for funds to carry on the work of this humanitarian organization," she said, "and Moore County is asked to give $14,000. We can do it with the help of many volunteers who are giving their time to solicit. The local Chapter is deeply indebted to them for their generous efforts."

The National treasury has been greatly depleted by all the disasters of 1965, she pointed out, Hurricane Betsy, the greatest disaster in Red Cross history, will cost $17,000,000. The vital Blood Program (Continued on Page 6)

Mr. and Mrs. Tom O'Neil of 110 Highland Road are planning a Monday opening for their new House of Treasures on Midland Road, between Southern Pines and Pinehurst.

The objects to be handled by the business are fine reproductions of museum pieces and masterpieces in various creative media. Mr. O'Neil said. The shop and its stock are unique in a very wide area surrounding the Sandhills, according to an investigation he has made.

A new roof has been put on the building, new windows installed and other improvements.

Funds For Building Veterinary Research Center Here Required

Preliminary plans for the first unit of the veterinary research center to be built near Southern Pines have been announced in connection with a campaign to raise funds for the $200,000 project.

This undertaking of the North Carolina Veterinary Research Foundation was first revealed several months ago when the gift of about 20 acres of land for the facility was made by Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Moss of Mile-Away Farm, on the east side of No. 1 highway, a short distance north of Southern Pines.

To help with fund-raising, the Foundation has issued a handsome brochure outlining the purposes and other details of the project. These brochures and other information are available from Mrs. Haskell Duncan of Southern Pines who is director of the campaign headquarters, with address at P. O. Box 1378, Southern Pines. The former Gay Tate, Mrs. Duncan has long been associated with horse activities in the Sandhills.

Miss Page Shamburger of Aberdeen is Sandhills area fund drive chairman.

The appeal for funds is expected to reach out widely as the center eventually will serve a large part of the nation with specialized laboratory and surgical facilities—the sort of services which veterinarians and animal owners in this area now have to seek at a distance.

The center is designed to deal with "non-food-producing animals," large and small—largely expected to be

The presentation and the Easter Week tournament are projects of the "Friends of Camp Easter," a small group of Sandhills men who have banded together to help raise funds for the local camp for handicapped children and adults.

Dugan Aycock of Lexington, president of the Carolinas Professional Golfers Association, is cooperating with them in securing the participation of North Carolina clubs, and some 225 are already listed.

Pinehurst's Carolina Hotel Starting Expansion Program

Ground was broken Monday at Pinehurst for an addition to the Carolina Hotel, greatly expanding and modernizing convention facilities at the famous resort establishment. With necessary remodeling and furnishings added, it is expected to cost some $300,000.

William C. Sledge of the Pinehurst, Inc., staff, who has been working with architects Austin & Faulk of Southern Pines on the project, said an annex of steel and masonry construction will be built between the ballroom and the east (bedroom) wing, extending toward the rear, with a front entrance.

The present enclosed connecting portico will be torn down and rebuilt as a lobby to the new convention hall, which can be used also as a display space, auditorium or for large social gatherings. A periphery area 12 feet wide will surround the central hall, which will be lower by two feet, with steps going down. A stage at one end, with elaborate lighting, sound equipment and other facilities will make possible the presentation of plays, films, lectures, concerts and other special events, it was explained.

W. L. Jewell & Co. of Sanford has the general contract for the annex totaling 22,000 square feet, and bids on air conditioning, plumbing, heating and electrical contracts will be received Tuesday, based on specifications of Ernest G. Myatt, mechanical engineer, of the firm of Ernest G. Myatt & Associates of Greensboro.

Sledge said this is the first step in what is planned as a comprehensive program extending over the next four or five years, to include an indoor swimming pool, air-conditioning of all bedrooms, new heating plant, and other improvements.

While there are no plans as yet to operate the Carolina on a year-round basis, Sledge noted that the new facilities will make possible the extension of the present September-through May season at both ends, and the accommodation of conventions calendared for late and early summer.

Booth To Serve Travelers Goes Into Use Today

The Resort Advertising Committee was to move a small house trailer into place this morning, on the west side of No. 1 highway, to serve as an information booth for the traveling public.

Richard Davenport, committee chairman, said that J. O. Jones—who with his wife, Mrs. Cay Jones are doing publicity work for the town—will man the booth from 3 pm to 10 pm daily.

Information about Southern Pines will be available there and a telephone will enable the booth operator to locate motel or hotel accommodations for travelers, also receiving from these establishments information on their vacancies.

The booth's telephone number is 692-2244.

Plans call for running the booth until the middle of May. If records of its use prove it valuable, it will be set up again next fall and also in the

Schools To Get Federal Funds For Libraries

Approval of an appropriation of $2,019 to Southern Pines schools under Title II of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act was announced this week by Supt. J. W. Jenkins.

Title II covers federal payments to schools for "school library resources, textbooks and other printed and instructional materials."

The superintendent said the allocation is based on $1 per student and that it includes funds for St. Anthony's Catholic School here, on the same basis. The Episcopal Day School had been invited to participate also in the request for funds but chose not to make application because of the small number of pupils involved.

Mr. Jenkins said that all of the allocation to the Southern Pines public schools would be used to purchase additional school library books.

Peach Blossom Race Set Sunday

Moore County auto racing are included among some 50,000 this week anticipating Sunday's Peach Blossom 500 stock car race at the North Carolina Motor Speedway, 10 miles north of Rockingham, on No. 1 highway. The race will start at noon, with a full 44-car field expected.

As with the speedway's inaugural American 500 last fall, effects of the crowds attending are expected to be felt in Moore County, as hotel and motel accommodations become scarce and traffic gets heavy before and after the event.

OTHER ACTIONS TAKEN AT MEETING

Board Approves $14,000 Vehicle For Bookmobile, Work At Airport

The Moore County commissioners in regular session at Carthage, Monday, authorized the county library board to proceed with the purchase of a new bookmobile, to replace the present worn-out 1953 model.

A complete bookmobile route schedule, for four months in advance, appears elsewhere in today's Pilot. Bookmobile patrons throughout the county are advised to clip and save it for regular reference. The new schedule is based on "community" rather than "house" stops.

On recommendation of Mrs. Eugenia R. Babylon, Sandhills Regional Library director, and Mrs. A. A. Vanore, board chairman, the commissioners approved the purchase of an air-conditioned, fully equipped model at something over $14,000, better suited to the growing demand for service than a smaller one available at about $11,000.

Also, said Mrs. Babylon, there was a possibility, which she had discussed with the Montgomery County Library board, that the new bookmobile could serve both counties on a proportionate-cost basis. This would mean keeping it going full time, six days a week.
