Pfc. Jackson Killed In Vietnam Fighting

Word of the death of Pfc. Clinnis Harold (Shorty) Jackson, 21, in Vietnam November 7, has been received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jackson of Lakeview.

No details were included in the message other than that he was killed by small arms fire in the course of enemy action.

Time of the body's arrival is expected to be known within a few days. Funeral services with military honors are to be held at the Lakeview Presbyterian Church, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dan Norman.

The young soldier had enlisted in the Army last December. A member of the Fourth Infantry Division, he was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., during the period before he was shipped overseas, last September 24.

Several years ago, the Jackson family lived in the Pinehills community for a time and young Jackson attended Southern Pines High School. He also attended the Vass-Lakeview schools.

Surviving in addition to his parents are one brother, Earl Eugene Jackson of Des Moines,

PFC. C. H. JACKSON

Iowa; five sisters, Mrs. Lena Rose Metcalf of Southern Pines, Mrs. Arthur Reed of St. Anthony, Mo., Mrs. Russell Litzinger of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Linda Sue Duhon of Aberdeen and Wilma Lee Jackson of the home.

Directors Appointed For Proposed Horticulture Foundation Program

A major step in the organization of a proposed Horticulture Foundation of America was taken Saturday with appointment of charter members of a board of directors, following a meeting at the Country Club of North Carolina.

Under the proposal, the foundation would purchase

Clarendon Gardens—the large landscape service and beauty spot off Linden Road, out of Pinehurst — with expectation that a Horticulture Institute for training of landscaping and horticulture technicians, would be set up, using the area as a training site.

Francis W. Howe is the present owner and operator of Clarendon Gardens and the originator of the foundation proposal. Playing a prominent part in planning and negotiations is former Gov. Terry Sanford whose law firm, Sanford and Cannon, of Raleigh is handling legal work on the foundation.

Sandhills Community College has been proposed by Mr. Howe as the academic center to conduct the institute's courses, in connection with the foundation's operations, but no formal consideration of the proposal has been given by the college's board of directors, said H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, board chairman.

Dr. Raymond A. Stone, college president, is among the persons named to the charter board of the foundation. On Saturday, he expressed his interest in the foundation and noted the need for training in the field of horticulture, especially for students who are not enrolled in four-year colleges and universities.

A professional fund-raising firm has expressed optimism, after a survey, as to a financial campaign that would raise funds for the proposed foundation. As planned, the foundation would seek Internal Revenue Service approval as eligible to receive tax-deductible

Nominees For Big Morehead Awards Chosen

John Todd Llewellyn of Southern Pines and Larry Maxwell Matthews of Route 1, Cameron, are the nominees from Moore County who will compete for Morehead Awards at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, it was announced this week by Henry L. Graves of Southern Pines, chairman of this county's Morehead committee.

The two high school seniors—Llewellyn at East Southern Pines and Matthews at Union Pines—face further interviews at the district level in the contests and, if successful there, state-level interviews at Chapel Hill.

Morehead Awards—formerly called scholarships—are worth approximately $7,000 if

Consumers Can Receive Advice

"Calling Consumers," a nationwide effort to inform people about the consumer information and education offered by the Cooperative Extension Service, is being observed in North Carolina November 14-18.

In explaining the occasion, Mrs. Jean Hubbard of Carthage, Extension Home Economics agent for Moore County, said that "consumer education has, for a long time, been an important part of Extension's educational program. However," she added, "many Tar Heels are not aware that they can receive reliable and unbiased consumer education from us."

The Agricultural Extension Service can provide families with information that will help them know what to buy, how to use it and how to care for their purchases, she said.

Mrs. Hubbard says she can be reached at the Extension office in the Agricultural Building at Carthage, and will help advise on wise consumer choices. There is no charge for this service.

Evidence In Garner Case Insufficient

The State took a nol pros against Henry Douglas Garner, 42, of Highfalls Monday, as the regular term of Moore County Superior Court opened with Judge John R. McLaughlin of Statesville presiding.

Though the case was calendared for Tuesday, District Solicitor M. G. Boyette called it early in order to state to the Court that he found the evidence insufficient for prosecution at this time. The nol pros with leave leaves the way open for prosecution later should additional evidence be found.

The grand jury last August handed down an indictment in the case, in which Douglas Garner was accused of the rifle slaying of Ellis Albert Garner (no relation) at a woods cabin near Southern Pines last July 12.

At the current term, the grand jury handed down a true bill on the only other murder case on the docket, against Herbert J. Blue of Cameron, accused of the pistol slaying of Eddie Cossom, a South Carolina tobacco worker, at a night spot near Cameron July 12. Blue was placed the next day in Moore County Jail, where he was held without

Moore County Library Group Is Organized

Friends of the Library, a volunteer community service group, was organized at a meeting Saturday in the Carthage Hotel.

Richard Slack of Southern Pines was elected chairman; Mrs. H. C. McPherson, Cameron, secretary; and Mrs. Doreen Viall, Pinehurst, treasurer.

Named to head committees were Mrs. Clyde Auman, West End, fund-raising; J. D. Myrick, Robbins, building; and Mrs. Laurence E. Falls, public relations.

The Friends of the Library throughout the nation, assist boards of directors of local and regional libraries.

The new group will strive not only to promote increased use of the county library but to assist in fund raising for the purchase of books and better library facilities.

Other members of the Steering Committee present included

VETERANS DAY CEREMONY

Legion Posts Present 2 Flags To College

The American flag and the flag of North Carolina were raised on the two flagstaves in front of the Administration Building on the campus of Sandhills Community College in a ceremony conducted last Friday—Veterans Day.

The flags were a gift to the college from the American Legion Posts and Auxiliaries of Carthage, West End, Aberdeen, Pinehurst and Southern Pines.

The morning ceremony included an opening prayer by the Rev. W. S. Golden of Carthage. An honor guard of Boy Scouts of Troop 229, Southern Pines, presented the folded banners to Charles MacLeod of the Joseph G. Henson Post, Carthage, chairman of the gift committee. H. Clifton Blue, chairman of the college board of trustees, accepted the flags from Mr. MacLeod, and in turn presented them to Dr. Raymond A. Stone, college president.

As Scouts Bob Balboni and Michael McCormick raised the American flag, the East Southern Pines High School Band, under the direction of Edward Rodgers, played the National Anthem. The North Carolina flag was raised by Scouts Everett Newton and Bob Warlick as the band played "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Dr. Stone led the crowd of several hundred spectators in the Pledge of Allegiance to the

CAROLINA SOAP & CANDLE MAKERS

Expansion Foreseen By Firm After Buying Soap Machines

A major expansion of Carolina Soap & Candle Makers of Southern Pines—in terms of production, sales and employment—is being made possible by top quality British and German soap-making equipment bought in England last June,

Jack Hicks, president of the Company, revealed today.

Mr. Hicks, who returned this week from a trade mission to Europe with other North Carolina business leaders, said that some of the machinery is already in use at the company's Highway 15-501 plant, although most is stored in a new warehouse at the company's manufacturing site on Morganton Road, near the No. 1 highway parkway.

Plans call for a new building, to be constructed on Gatewood Ave., south of the company's Morganton Road buildings, to house most of the new machinery. The property is now involved in an unsettled zoning action, but construction is expected to begin when and if this is settled satisfactorily.

The machinery was acquired, Mr. Hicks said, after he learned that the famed Richard Hudnut toiletries firm—which has plants in England and other nations—had decided to discontinue its own soap production at its Southampton, England, plant and have the soap made by a London (England) manufacturer. The production had included both Hudnut soap and that made under the "Dubarry" label of a subsidiary.

Negotiations resulted in purchase by Carolina Soap & Candle Makers of all the machinery in the Southampton plant, consisting of some 40 pieces whose bulk and 60,000 pounds of weight presented a formidable transportation problem.

Sent to London by heavy-duty lorry for special crating, the machines were shipped from London and came to Southern Pines after being unloaded at Wilmington.

Addition of the former Hudnut equipment, Mr. Hicks said, will give Carolina Soap "as much fine soap-making machinery as any company in the country."

He said the forthcoming expansion of the business will mean an increase in employment here and that Carolina Soap's sales capacity will be taxed to meet the new production levels.

Louis Ismael, director of manufacturing for Carolina, a

Play In Carousel Begins

Qualifying rounds were played today (Wednesday) in the 13th Annual Golf Carousel tournament. Match play will begin tomorrow and continue through Saturday over both the Pine Needles and Southern Pines Country Club courses.

Entries have been received from more than 15 states for the annual event sponsored by the Southern Pines Jaycees.

The team of Bill Harvey of Greensboro and Reid Towler of Raleigh are back with hopes of winning their third consecutive title. Harvey and Towler have previously won the title 4 times.

Several other teams that are expected to make a strong bid include Bill Davies of Gettysburg, Pa., and Jack McHarg of Detroit, Mich.; and Pete Keough and Wally Sezna, of Wilmington, Delaware.

In the Mixed Division, Mr. and Mrs. Don Mortell of Kankakee, Ill. are back to try for their 4th consecutive title. This year, there are 32 teams entered in the Mixed Division, a record for the tournament. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Kosten of Pine Needles are once again tournament directors. They are being assisted by Andy Page and Bill Gantt, of Southern Pines CC, along with Peggy Kirk Bell and Warren Bell of Pine Needles.

Mac Ausbon is this year's tournament chairman for the Jaycees. Other Jaycees assisting Ausbon include: Leo Walsh—parade; George Little and Charles Rose—talent show and carousel queen; Wayne Hicks—brochure; Larry Snyder, Phil McBryde and Fred Tetter—trophies; Barry Torrence—publicity; Jim Thomason, Wayne Hicks, and Hal Reeves—hospitality; Tommy Jessup—entries; Jere McKeithen, Jr., dance; Ed Fitchett—open house music festival; and Durward Grady, last year's chairman—adviser and host for Miss North Carolina.

Jam Session Set Thursday

An informal jam session will be held in connection with this week's Golf Carousel, Thursday night at 8 pm, in the McPherson Building on the corner of N. W. Broad St. and New Hampshire Ave. The session is open to the public, and any group or person with musical talent is invited to attend and perform.

Refreshments will be served throughout the evening. There will be no charge for admission.

The Carousel, bringing dozens of visiting golfers here from a wide area, is sponsored by the local Jaycees.

Sledge Resigns Pinehurst Post; Will Move Soon

Pinehurst, Inc., has announced the resignation of William C. Sledge who has been associated with the corporation's extensive resort operations for more than 11 years.

Mr. Sledge and his wife, the former Cynthia Whitman of Reading, Pa., with their three children, will move soon from Pinehurst to Reading, Pa., where he will be engaged in the real estate and construction business, the announcement said.

Their children are William C. Sledge, Jr., 8; Andrea, 4; and Sara, three months old.

At Pinehurst, Mr. Sledge has worked primarily with the corporation's hotel operations and with the race track and stables which are winter training.

Lions Essay Contest Group Is Announced

A three-member committee has been named to judge the Southern Pines Lions Club Peace Essay Contest for young people 14 to 22 years old.

The committee members are Dr. Raymond A. Stone, Charles P. Cole and the Rev. John D. Stone.

The local winner will receive a $100 US Savings Bond and advance a stop in the international competition. The first prize for the worldwide winner is $25,000.

The prizes total $50,000 in value. The eight world divisional winners will receive $1,000 each and a trip to Chicago for the Lions' 50th anniversary convention for the final judging.

Southern Pines contestants should file their entries with William P. Toney, president of the Southern Pines club.

To be eligible to compete, a boy or girl must not become 22 years old before next January 15.

SUNDAY CONCERT

The West Southern Pines Civic Club is sponsoring a concert by the Sandhill Choral Society at 7:30 pm Sunday, November 20, in the First Missionary Baptist Church on Gaines St. The public is invited.

FAREWELL GIFTS — The seven members of the Sisters of Saint Francis who are leaving St. Joseph of the Pines Hospital, which the order of nursing nuns has operated for nearly 20 years, are pictured at St. Anthony's school auditorium Sunday afternoon, when they were honored by St. Anthony's Parish with a tea and reception. At right, Father John J. Harper, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, presents to Sister M. Virginia, hospital administrator, a check for $100 as personal gift from the parish to the departing nuns. Between them stands Mayor

Norris L. Hodgkins, Jr., holding a resolution of appreciation for the sisters' services, adopted by the town council and read and presented to them Sunday by the mayor. The other nuns are, left to right, Sisters Carmelita, Margaret Mary, Clara, Raphael, Monica and Pauline. All seven will return to the Mother House of the order at Maryville, Mo., for reassignment to duties not yet known to them. A report on the Sunday event, the text of the council's resolution and a statement of appreciation from the sisters all appear on page 3 of today's Pilot. (Humphrey photo)

Some Figures Changed In Vote Canvass

The official canvass last Thursday of the Moore County voting in the general election of November 8 produced few corrections in the published unofficial figures and no changes in the results.

The Moore County Board of Elections checked the tallies in a meeting in the Courthouse at Carthage, with Chairman S. C. Riddle Sr. of Carthage in charge.

Riddle told a Pilot reporter later that the turnout was above average for a non-presidential election but not a record. He said the total was more than half the approximately 14,500 registered Republicans, Democrats and Independents registered on the county's books.

The heaviest balloting was the total of 8,761 cast in the Fourth Congressional District contest between Democratic incumbent Harold D. Cooley of Nashville and Republican challenger James M. (Jim) Gardner of Rocky Mount, the winner.

Riddle said between 600 and 700 additional names were registered on the books during the pre-election registration period, most of them Democrats. In registration, the Democrats have a paper majority of 3-1 but crossing of party lines in general elections erases an undetermined amount of this strength as far
