Public Invited To SNB Opening At Lumberton

The public is invited to the opening of the new home office building of the Southern National Bank in Lumberton, to take place Sunday, August 20, between 4 and 9 pm. Having leading parts in ceremonies at 4 pm will be Gov. Dan K. Moore who will cut the traditional ribbon; Sarah Elizabeth Stedman of Asheboro, "Miss North Carolina," and State Sen. Hector MacLean of Lumberton, president of the bank. The event has particular interest in Southern Pines because Southern National has an office here and because the local architectural firm, Austin & Faulk, designed and supervised construction of the big building across N. Chestnut St. from the Robeson County Courthouse, at the intersection of 6th St., in the heart of Lumberton. Visitors between 4 and 9 pm will be able to inspect the entire structure which will be described in detail in next week's Pilot, after the opening takes place.

Drowning Takes Life Of Young Boy In Moore

A 9-year-old boy, Clarence Wendell Simmons, drowned last Wednesday afternoon when he slipped from an inner tube while swimming in a farm pond near Jackson Springs. Clarence, his brother Ernest, 10, and cousin Lee Simmons, 9, had gone alone to the pond on the farm of W. M. Richardson on Jackson Springs, Route 1, without permission of their parents. While Ernest and Lee paddled at the edge of the pond, Clarence floated out into nine-foot-deep water on the inner tube, which got away from him. When the other children saw him go down they ran a mile to their homes to get help. Their parents were not home but a neighbor phoned Fire Chief J. B. Barnett at West End, who called Coroner W. K. Carpenter. Carpenter called the Carthage Rescue Unit, and Capt. Hardy Barber, with Glenn Crabtree and Fletcher Frye, were soon on the scene. They brought up the child's body after dragging 30 minutes. Capt. Max Edwards and Horace Mullinix of the Vass Rescue Unit also came with skin-diving outfits, but were not needed as the body had just been found when they arrived. Clarence was the youngest of 11 children of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Simmons, who said they had left their boys raking the yard and had no idea they would go to the pond. The pond owner, who had posted the property with "No Swimming Without Permission" signs, told the coroner these and other children had been there. (Continued on Page 2)

Preparing Broad St. For New Jacket

The east lanes of Broad Street between New York and Pennsylvania Avenues are shown being prepared for repaving last Friday. The long shot shows (left to right) a motor grader, heater planer and dump truck of the State Highway Department work team. The work of repaving the East portion of Broad from Massachusetts to Vermont Avenues was scheduled to be completed by today (Wednesday). The Highway Department earlier repaved a long portion of Young's Road, and Pee Dee Road from Midland to Carthage roads. The close shot shows the heart of the planer which shoots flames under control to keep paving material molten as it rolls, filling cracks and holes in the pavement in preparing the road for resurfacing. The operator was Fred Hilliard of Goldston. A recently negotiated thoroughfare-responsibility agreement between town and highway department spared the town the expense of the job. The maintenance of the East side of Broad previously had been the town's responsibility. Under the new agreement this and other streets were accepted by the state department in its maintenance system, and the town took over responsibility of maintaining some streets previously under state responsibility. The maintenance of the west lanes of Broad remain state responsibility because they are parts of a primary federal highway. (Pilot photos)

Health Department Gets 'Happy' Colors, Improved Phone System

The Moore County Health Department at Carthage is sporting "happy" colors and a better telephone system now. Dr. A. G. Siege, county health director, said a second telephone line which was installed this week will eliminate nearly all the "busy" signals that patrons have been getting when trying to reach the department for information on this single line. He said that, now when one line is tied up the call will be switched automatically to the second line. The caller need dial only one department number, he said. He also said a push-button system on office phones, and the addition of two telephones in the office, would reduce time needed to handle calls. The push-button system, he said, provides communication between public health offices inside the building. Under the old system, he said, when a call came in for a specific worker, or when one wanted another, "we just stood up and hollered." One of the additional telephones has been installed in the public health nurses' conference room and the other in the utility room in the clinic area. A "happy" atmosphere and a sense of more room has been created by the new color scheme, Dr. Siege said. He said walls and ceilings have been painted in bright colors—some turquoise, others gold. These replace the grim light-blue of the building's clinic and other areas. He said the change was made for the benefit of the feelings of the patients. The light colors also give the impression of spaciousness to the rooms, which would have a beneficial effect on the patients' mental outlook.

The "story hour" for young children at the Southern Pines Library will continue for two more Tuesday mornings—from 10:30 to 11:30 on August 22 and August 29 — Mrs. S. H. Lambourne, librarian, announced today. The series of weekly readings conducted by members of the Junior Woman's Club ended Tuesday of this week, but Mrs. Guy Parsons of Southern Pines has volunteered to take charge of the story hour for the two additional weeks, Mrs. Lambourne said.
