Job Mobile Fills Employer, Worker Needs; Stops Told

When employment interviewer Joseph W. Lemieux of Sanford comes to town to work with job applicants he can make his interviews in the Job Mobile's portable office or in the town hall.

In Southern Pines, a desk is provided for him in the Municipal Center courtroom for his weekly visit every Thursday, from 10 am to noon.

Lemieux is with the Sanford office of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission. The Job Mobile, a motor vehicle with a van-type body, represents a joint project of the Sandhills Community Action Program and the ESC.

Lemieux travels the county, hunting for employers who need people, and unemployed people the employers need.

When he interviews a job applicant he finds out what kind of job he or she can do. But he also finds out how far from home they can — or will — travel to a job each day; what, if anything they are allergic to; whether they can get a ride to their job and back every day; whether they prefer day work or night work; and other information that will help him place the applicant in the spot that is right for the job-seeker and a particular employer.

The Job Mobile with Lemieux in the driver's seat, went to work in Moore County the week of October 15.

Besides the Southern Pines stop, the Moore County schedule is:

Monday — at Cameron, 9:15 to 9:35 am; at Vass 10-11 am; at Aberdeen 1:30 to 2:30 pm; (Continued on Page 2)

Currie Asks Conference On School Financing

The Moore County board of education, in regular session at Carthage Tuesday night, was in receipt of a letter from John M. Currie, chairman of county commissioners, asking that the two boards meet some time within the next few weeks to see what long-range financial plans might be in view for the schools.

The financial impasse preventing the opening of Pinecrest school in 1968, as planned, was causing concern to both the commissioners and taxpayers, Chairman Currie wrote, expressing the hope that "you can come up with some workable suggestions and plans."

The letter, read by Jere McKeithen, chairman of the education board, noted that "it will take some hard study and effort on the part of the capable men and women working out these problems, and it will not dissolve itself unless your board can come up with some real facts and figures that we can use."

The Pinecrest Advisory Council, which had requested a conference at the meeting, came with proposals which had been developed, and were presented by Albert Tufts, who said "This is a sharing of ideas not a solution, which will call for study and discussion and will need cooperation on the part of everyone."

The suggestion was made, and adopted by the board, that all three boards be asked to designate two members, to meet together in a small group to work out something specific to present to the full commission and, if approved, to the people.

Financial needs, not only of the Pinecrest school but others in the county, were to be studied. (Continued on Page 2)

One Dies, One Hurt In Road Crash Tuesday

A 23-year-old Negro soldier stationed at Fort Bragg was killed Tuesday night when his car hit a traffic island at the junction of Saunders Boulevard Road and Bethesda Road, southeast of Southern Pines.

His passenger Myrtle Monroe, 15, of 502 Hardin St., Southern Pines, was taken to Moore Memorial hospital with a broken pelvis and other injuries.

Coroner W. K. Carpenter ruled that the soldier, whose name was withheld pending notification of next of kin by the Army, died of head and body injuries resulting from an accident caused by high speed.

State Trooper G. L. Cain said the car hit the traffic island at the dead-end junction on Saunders Boulevard, a military convoy route, flipped through the air and hit the opposite bank. It went up the bank, overturned several times and landed upside down, throwing both occupants out.

"We want our friends to see what we have done with funds given by them last year," Guion said, "to purchase equipment and construct a building to house it. Members of the Squad and of its Advisory Committee will be on hand to answer questions and explain use of the equipment."

Chairman Judson C. Jones of the Advisory Committee said that some 6,000 letters, containing invitations to the "Open House" and reporting on activities of Rescue Squad Unit Four, are being mailed to residents in the area it serves.

Chairman Jones said that last year's fund-raising drive enabled completion of the Squad's building, purchase of much-needed rescue equipment, and provided operating expenses for the year. Civic Leaders Back Moore Co. Clean-up Slated November 8

Plans are being made by Moore County community leaders, still enthusiastic over the success of a beautification effort last May, to hold another county-wide "Operation Clean-Up" on Saturday, November 18.

North Carolina Governor Dan K. Moore has written the members of "Operation Clean-Up" Committee that "I congratulate you for your civic pride in deciding to 'clean up' Moore County on Saturday, November 18. I wish you great success in this important undertaking."

The nation's First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, has been invited to visit the area in support of the Clean-Up operation. In a letter from the White House last May, she said of the first project that "fine, attractive surroundings are a positive influence on our lives, both spiritually and materially. Communities like yours can be improved through your efforts, and I am thrilled to learn of the wonderful work you are doing."

Plans for the event also include inviting "Miss North Carolina," Sarah Elizabeth Stedman of Asheboro, to participate.

Mayors of Moore County towns are expected to proclaim November 18 as "Operation Clean-Up" Day.

A contest to produce a symbol for Moore County "Operation Clean-Up," which is expected to become a regular event through the setting up of a permanent county-wide organization of civic club and other representatives, is expected to be held in Moore County Schools. The best drawing of such a symbol will bring the student-artist a $25 savings bond as a prize. The winner may be selected by (Continued on Page 2)

Suburban Commercial Area Proposed Zoning Change Discussions To Be Resumed At Next Council Meet

The town council Monday night continued until November 14 its public hearing on a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance establishing a new Suburban Commercial district south of town.

The action was taken after property owners in the area that would be affected told the councilmen that they had not had time to discuss the problems involved for them and prepare for the public hearing.

Councilman Felton J. Capel said 90 per cent of the property owners involved were at the meeting. He seconded Dr. R. J. Dougherty's motion to continue the hearing. Councilman C. A. McLaughlin abstained from voting. Councilman L. D. McDonald was unable to attend the meeting, a special session for the hearing.

November 14 is the date of the council's regular meeting for the month. It will start at 8 pm and will be held in the Municipal Center courtroom, the place and hour for the council's regular sessions.

Approximately 20 people, most of them property owners of the area involved, were in the audience for the hearing.

The area is along U. S. 1 and 15-501, from the southern boundary of Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant on US 1 to — and including — the Jones Skating Rink property on the west side of U. S. 15-501 to a depth of 500 feet; and the area from the point of intersection of U. S. 15-501 and U. S. 1 to — and including — the Simpson's nursery property on the east side of U. S. 15-501 to a depth of 300 feet.

The area lies in other zoning districts, mostly Highway Commercial, at present.

After the other council members voted approval of the motion to continue the hearing, Councilman McLaughlin said he could not understand why the council couldn't act at that session on a long-standing request for a change in zoning in that area. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Levy have re- (Continued on Page 2)
