

Thousand Acre Development Is Announced by Tufts Here

by Mary Evelyn de Nisoff
Peter V. Tufts and his father, Richard S. Tufts of Pinehurst are two of the principal stockholders in a planned $3 million golf development to be built on 1,000 acres of land between Southern Pines and Aberdeen.

Incorporated under the name Yadoo of Pinehurst, Inc., with a proposed clubhouse to be called the Old Yadin Country Club, the development adjoins holes four, five and 11 of the Country Club of North Carolina course.

Included in the property but separate from the country club and golf development, are two subdivisions, Pine Valley Estates a mile north of US Highway 1 between Southern Pines and Aberdeen, and Clearwater Properties in Aberdeen off NC Highway 5.

The names Yadoo and Yadin were selected by the principals because of the old Yadin Road in Pinehurst which, according to Moore County historian, and former civil engineer for Pinehurst, Rassic E. Wicker, is the oldest in Moore County and possibly, in the State of North Carolina.

Other stockholders in the newly-formed corporation, who will meet today (Wednesday) to elect officers, are: Jack R. Morris, real estate broker and builder of Southern Pines; J. P. Riddle, President of Riddle-Floyd-Godwin Co. of Fayetteville; H. S. Floyd, President of H. S. Floyd Construction Co. of Fayetteville; C. Thomas Wood, President of King Model Homes, Lewis Clark of Lewis Clark and Associates of Raleigh, land planners, whose largest and best-known projects to date are Palmetta Dunes on Hilton Head Island, S. C. and the Henry Ford (Continued on Page 12-A)

Alton Cockrell, employment interviewer for the Employment Security Commission, revealed Friday up-dated figures showing Moore County unemployment rate now at something less than four per cent.

He said figures he gave The Pilot last week were for the last third quarter of 1971, the latest he had at that time. They showed unemployment at 5.2 per cent. "The present rate of employment has improved considerably", he said.

TOTALED—This 1959 Ford was a total loss after a right front tire blew and the car swerved into the Hick's Creek Bridge just off US 15-501 between Pinehurst and Carthage. Sylvia Lynn Black, 16, of West End, Route 1, was the driver and was taken to Moore Memorial Hospital with injuries believed to be slight. Highway Patrolman W. S. Spears investigated the accident Tuesday about 11:30 a.m. (Photo by Bryan Green).

"DAY OF THE LOCUST"—That buzz you hear is the mating "song" of the Cicada, commonly known as the 17-year Locust, which emerged from underground last week and will be soon gone. This particular specimen was discovered by David Drexel on Glendon Road. The insect appears about every 13 years, and does slight damage, as its life is over in about three weeks. Cicadas were used for food as early as the time of ancient Greek culture. (Photo by Bryan Green).

Miss McLean Dana Scholar

Martha McLean of Southern Pines has been named a Dana Scholar for the 1972-73 academic year at Queens College.

Miss McLean is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. McLean of P. O. Box 369. She is a rising junior at Queens.

The scholarships are awarded annually to sophomores, juniors and seniors with superior academic records and demonstrated leadership capacities in the college and community. About 15 students from each of the three upper classes are chosen each year.

Miss McLean, a biology major, has been on the Dean's List. She is a member of the German Club.

Sheriff's officers have made the largest drug raid in the county's history.

Four persons are out on $4,000 bond after a raid in Southern Pines by Sheriff's officers which they said netted a stash of 11 bricks of marijuana worth $3500 in a room at Braeburn Apartments.

Charged with felonious possession of marijuana for the purpose of distribution are:

James Howard Monroe, 22, of Laurinburg and James Randolph Glover, 21, former Sandhills student also of Laurinburg, who were renting a room at the Braeburn Apartments, Sheriff C. G. Wimberly said; Elliot Tom Bass, III, 23, of 330 N. Bennett St. in Southern Pines; and Linda Frances Cruce, 19, of 600 Pinehurst Street, Aberdeen.

All four were held in the Carthage jail before making bond for a preliminary hearing in Carthage District Court June 15. The raid took place at 9:30 p. m. on the night of May 30, the Sheriff said. He said he believed none of the accused was employed.

The Sheriff said Bass is already under bond on charges of felonious possession of 167 "hits" of LSD. He said Bass was arrested in October, but the case has not been tried. Largest previous haul was eight pounds.

$9,000 Minute

Henry L. Graves, Chairman of the Moore County Morehead Committee, said that at the Pinecrest High School Awards Presentations, Monday morning, he was allotted one minute to present to Peter Gilmore a Morehead Award.

He said it was not possible to mention Peter Gilmore's many achievements in this short time. Henry was disappointed that a $9,000.00 award only rated one minute. He said that Moore County had received over one hundred thousand dollars of Mr. John Motley Morehead's money and led in all one hundred counties per pupil.

This year's quota for the high schools in North Carolina was 66; (Continued on Page 12-A)

Auman, Williams Win Runoff Here

Around 8,000 Moore County voters turned out Saturday for five statewide and two local runoffs, in which six out of seven candidates held their first-place positions, with only one being dislodged the second time around.

This was Pat Taylor, who lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Moore as in the state, where "Skipper" Hargrove Bowles scored a commanding victory.

Moore Democrats, in fact, followed state trends across the board, not only for Bowles but for Nick Galifianakis for U. S. Senate, John Ingram for insurance commissioner and W. C. (Bill) Creel for labor commissioner.

Moore Republicans, however, with just one second primary, that for their party's nomination for governor, again accorded Jim Gardner a nearly 2-to-1 victory over Jim Holshouser, who was the statewide winner by a narrow margin. Republicans voting totaled 2,220. While Asheboro lawyer John Ingram, led the Democratic ticket with 3,261 votes, highest total for one contest was 5,711 in the Auman-Robbins race for the State House. This was won by incumbent T. Clyde Auman with 3,168, over 2,543 for the challenger, J. C. Robbins—a spread of 625 votes, (Continued on Page 12-A)

Blue Mold Found Here In Fields

A small amount of blue mold has been discovered in the tobacco fields of Moore County, according to Talmadge Baker, the county extension chairman.

Baker said the "extent is not too great although there has been some damage to tobacco." He said that once the mold is in the fields there is little the farmer can do about it other than hope for good weather.

It takes four or five hot, dry days combined with warm nights to kill the mold once it has gotten into the fields. Baker was optimistic the weather would change before any serious damage to the tobacco crop had taken place.

He noted that the recent rains had caused some bleaching of nitrogen from the tobacco fields and farmers around the county have been busy adding more of the chemical to the fields.

Baker continued that most of the planting in the county is almost through with the exception of soybeans and that it should be completed within the next week.

He said the agriculture in the county is doing well considering all of the rain in the past few weeks.

Meeting with the Directors was Dwyer C. Sump, Executive Director of North Carolina United Community Services, who spoke on the United Way of establishing, promoting and funding organizations to meet community needs.

Lawrence M. Ausbon was named chairman of a new committee on programming and promotion. Its purpose will be to inform the citizens of Moore County on the need of a United Fund and how it is used to provide services. Ausbon's committee will use films and literature to help tell the Fund's story.

Michael B. Currie, First Vice President of Moore County United Fund, will be responsible for working with participating service agencies to help plan budgets. Among the agencies that receive a substantial portion of their operating funds from U. F. are the Rescue Squads, the Boy Scouts and the Red Cross. (Continued on Page 12-A)

THE PILOT LIGHT

ELECTION—The light turnout of voters in Saturday's second primary election disappointed a lot of people, including some of the candidates.

Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, saw the light vote, however, as a defeat for the democratic processes—too few people taking part in decisions affecting their lives.

Brock had predicted more than a million votes in the Democratic primary on May 6 but had scaled his prediction down to 600,000 in the runoff. The total vote went a few thousand beyond that figure.

The turnout in the Republican runoff for Governor was a big disappointment to Jim Gardner. He had counted on a big vote from Eastern Carolina to put him across, but it was light and Gardner was bitter.

In a television appearance late Saturday night he said, "I wonder if the Republicans really want to win the governor's office. I wonder if they really want to be a strong party in North Carolina."

The total Republican vote was around 140,000, less than one-third of the registration.

The Democratic turnout was only a little better—slightly more than 40 percent of the total registered Democrats.

Alex Brock said, "When you consider that only 60 percent of the eligible voters are even registered, the light vote is definitely a defeat for the (Continued on Page 10-A)

WEIGHING IN—The scale shows that this part of the material identified by the Sheriff's Department as marijuana weighs two pounds. The entire stash picked up in a drug raid weighed 11 pounds, the officers said. Four persons were arrested in Southern Pines in the raid at the Braeburn Apartments.
