

BARTERING TAXABLE
Bartering, or the exchange of goods or services for goods or services of equal value, is an American tradition that carries Federal income tax responsibilities, the Internal Revenue Service says. Income from any source is taxable, according to the IRS, and, in the case of bartering, the tax is computed on the fair market value of the goods or services exchanged. For example, an auto mechanic repairs a carpenter's truck in exchange for repair work performed by the carpenter in the auto mechanic's office. Both individuals must report the services received as income at fair market value. However, both may claim the fair market value of the repair work received as a business expense on their income tax returns.

DISAPPOINTING — The nearly empty room at Brownson Memorial Church speaks the disappointment of Red Cross officials at the lack of public response to appeals for blood donations. Capt. Sherman Betts (right), Bloodmobile chairman, said it was embarrassing. Among the donors, however, was a regular, John F. Buchholz, (in wheelchair).— (Photo by Glenn M. Sides).

Bloodmobile Visit Disappointing

The Red Cross Bloodmobile returned to Brownson Memorial Church last Friday, Aug. 17 hoping to better the 50 pint production of the previous month. Four Red Cross staff nurses drove down from Durham to join the volunteer nurse and several Red Cross volunteers to spend over six hours waiting patiently for donors to appear.

Only 28 persons showed up all day to contribute 27 pints.

Four were first time donors. John Buchholz, Sr. completed his seventh gallon.

First time donors were Elizabeth Evans, Susan Honeycutt, Raymond McLellan and Carol Patterson, all of Southern Pines. Working on their second gall were Edna Cole, Barbara Granger and Robert Patterson of Southern Pines, Phyllis Hinton of Pinehurst, and Ronald Huff of Raeford.

Joseph Currie of Southern Pines is starting on his third gallon. Barry Blakley of Pinehurst and Fran Steinsieck of Southern Pines are on their fourth gallon. "Thank goodness for a few conscientious citizens. But where were the dozens of other donors who could have been there had they cared?" a spokesman said.

"Many were aware of the Bloodmobile visit through newspapers, radio, church announcements, published schedule, posters and Jaycee sponsorship, but it would seem that most of our community just don't care. It is hard to understand who is expected to provide the 250 to 300 pints of blood needed each month right here in Moore County at Moore Memorial Hospital."

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will make its regular summer visit to Stanley Furniture at West End next week on Tuesday, August 28, from 10 to 3:30. Although plant employees provide most of the donations, some assistance is needed from the West End and Seven Lakes communities to meet the goal. Call 692-8571 to make an appointment and save time.

Free Service For Forests Is Available

Help in growing and managing timber in the South is almost as near as the next tree. And most of it is free.

A wide range of technical and financial assistance is available to help owners of small woodlots manage their family forests, according to the Southern Forest Products Association.

This assistance is furnished by state and federal government agencies, consultants and by hundreds of forest products companies. The person providing the help may be a state forester, a county agent, a consultant or an industry forester. Whoever he's likely to be readily available and close at hand, SFFPA says. The type of assistance offered ranges from general advice and detailed forest management plans to cost-share programs and timber sale contracts. And guidance will include recreational, wildlife and aesthetic characteristics of a forest in addition to growing trees for conversion into wood products.

So how does a forestland owner link up with this help? One quick way is to write SFFPA and ask for a free copy of the brochure "Where to Get Help for Your Family Forest." SFFPA will send with the brochure a free listing of its member companies in each state that provide forest management assistance to neighboring landowners.

For free copies, write SFFPA, P.O. Box 52468, New Orleans, LA 70152.
