Arts Council Notes

Many thanks go to the Moore County Schools Art Instructors, Billiegene Garner, and the Town and Country Merchants Association for the Youth Art Show this month. As always the variety and high quality of work the students in Moore County are producing astounded me. The open house and awards ceremony was very well attended, thanks to the hard work of the Moore County Cultural Arts Department and the Town and Country Merchants Association. Thanks again.

Another round of applause should go to the Moore County Choral Society for their concert Sunday. They presented the second and third parts of Handel's Messiah. The professionalism and high quality of music this group presents is rarely seen in communities as small as ours. In order for our community to help MCCS grow and remain as professional as they are, I think we are going to have to be very supportive by attending their concerts and fundraisers and telling other people about them. It is not easy for arts organizations to survive and grow in these days of tight funding, but if we want them to continue, we must really show the Moore County Choral Society that we appreciate what they are doing and we want it to continue.

On Thursday, May 7, Karen Mennes, a weaver from Moore County will be featured at the Art and Cuisine Luncheon at Weymouth Center. The luncheon starts at 12 noon. Tickets are $4.50 for SAC members and $5 for non-members. Call the SAC for reservations.

"Southern Literature and the South Today," a symposium, will be held at Weymouth Center on Saturday, May 9 from 1-4 p.m. This event is sponsored by the Friends of Weymouth and the N.C. Humanities Committee and is free to the public. The three panelists are Dr. Louis Rubin, from UNC and foremost authority on Southern Literature, Dr. Guy Owen from N.C. State, author, and Lee Smith, novelist from UNC-CH.

"Promila Sen: Watercolor, Batik and Mixed Media Paintings, and Lucrece Smith: Graffiti Drawings, Oil and Acrylic Painting" will be opening at Weymouth Center from 4-6 p.m. on Sunday, May 10. These artists are from Wilson and will be at the reception to meet you and answer questions about their work. If we are to continue having high quality exhibits in the Sandhills we need to attend the openings and show that there is support for the visual arts in the Sandhills. Please come out Sunday and meet these artists and take a look at their work. You don't need to dress up and you don't have to stay long. It really means so much to the artist.

The Weymouth Benefit Shop will be open Saturday, May 9, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

"Murder Room" is running at the Pinehurst Dinner Theater. Call 295-3131 for reservations.

"Camelot" is playing at the Bordeaux Dinner Theater in Fayetteville. Call 323-1114 for reservations.

"Grease" is playing at the Fayetteville Little Theater. Call the SAC for more information.

Spring Recreation Trips

The Moore County Recreation Department has planned a trip to New Bern for May 20. Tryon Palace will be the highlight of this trip. The trip will include transportation, a tour of the Governor's Palace, a general tour of historic New Bern and lunch at the famous Henderson House Restaurant. The cost for this trip is based on participation and could range from $28 to $23. Call the Moore County Recreation Department today and make plans to take this tour.

District Craft Workshop

A district craft workshop is scheduled for June 23 and 24 at Wingate College. This workshop is open to the public. There will be 15 different classes including hand split basket, weaving, chair seat weaving, hand building ceramic sculpture, hand tied fringe, batik, metal jewelry, bowl or trays, tatting, native materials (pine cones and corn shucks), fabric doll making, quilting, basic tole painting, English smocking and candle wicking. Reservations must be made by May 11 by calling Mrs. Jean Hubbard at the Moore County Extension Office 947-4371. Registration fee is $6. Lodging is available at only $6 in the college dorms.

High Falls Art

Students in Mrs. Murray's 7th grade class at High Falls Elementary School began an English project this fall that also involved Art. They learned the correct format for writing letters and learned about the art of other countries at the same time. Each student chose a pen pal from countries such as South America, Philippines, and Australia and wrote a letter of introduction. They included an original work of art drawn in art class in their letters and asked for an original work of art in return. Within a few months the students began receiving replies.

They shared their letters in English and Art classes. The students were interested in the different types of original pictures they received as well as what their pen pals had to say about their countries. Amy Phillips, a student, said she felt the art work from other countries was not unlike our own. Timmy Murray said he learned that the schools and jobs were different from ours.

Many students have become so interested in this project that they have continued corresponding with their pen pals. What a unique way to generate interest in Art and English.

Promila Sen, Lu Smith In Exhibit

An exhibition of brush drawings, batik, and watercolors by Promila Sen and oil paintings by Lou Smith will be opening at Weymouth Center, Sunday, May 10, from 4 to 6 p.m.

The public is invited to attend. Promila Sen of Bombay, India, studied at the University of Aix-en-Provence in France on a UNESCO scholarship, and received her Master of Arts degree in Asian Art at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. She is currently director of Children's Art at the Arts Council of Wilson. She is also on the faculty of Atlantic Christian College to teach Eastern Art.

She has also taught drawing, painting, pottery, and art appreciation at Arts Centers in the area.

As an art educator, Mrs. Sen has presented several professional papers at art education conferences at Adelaide, Australia in 1978; Harvard University in 1979; at Atlanta in 1980 and at Chicago in 1981 with the National Art Education Association; and at Columbia University in 1981 with the University Council for Education through Art.

As an artist working in watercolor and batik, Mrs. Sen has had many group and one person shows. Recent one-person exhibitions include "Form, Feeling and Color" at both the Goldsboro and Kinston Art Centers; Deacon Galleries in

Promila Sen

Lu Smith

Wilmington; and "Forms in Nature" at the Edgecombe Memorial Country Library in Tarboro. In April 1981, she had a show with Hiroshi Suyeoshi, featuring painting and pottery, at the Hines Gallery of the Rocky Mount Arts Center.

In 1978 one of her batik paintings and a water-color were exhibited at the Third International Women's Exhibit "Feminine Dialogue" at UNESCO in Paris. In 1978 Mrs. Sen travelled to Indonesia to observe traditional techniques of the ancient art of batik. She has also studied with British artist Noel Dyrenforth and with Ellen Craib of Penland. Her work has won many awards and is represented in numerous private and public collections.

Speaking of her works, Mrs. Sen commented, "Abstraction is an intrinsic part of nature. I am guided by this abstraction, to express my response to the beauty, order and infinite pattern I see in it."

Kreplin Will Perform At Sandhills On May 12

Classical guitarist Gordon Kreplin will perform at Sandhills Community College at 1 p.m. May 12.

The recital will be held in the Student Hall and will be open to the public free of charge.

His visit to Sandhills is being sponsored by the College and the North Carolina Visiting Artists Program.

Kreplin is currently the visiting artist at Haywood Technical College located at Clyde in the North Carolina mountains. In addition to his service at Haywood Tech, Kreplin has taught at several colleges and universities in the South.

Among his many recitals in North Carolina and the United States, Kreplin presented a solo performance in Southern Pines at the Friends of Weymouth Music Series.

A graduate of the American University in Washington, D.C., Kreplin moved to Alicante, Spain in 1976 where he studied guitar under Jose Tomas for two years. While in Spain, Kreplin performed in recitals and radio broadcasts.

His appearance at Sandhills is an exchange performance by Sandhills' visiting artist, Richard Reid, who will give a piano recital at Haywood Tech on May 5.

Weymouth

On Sunday, May 10, Weymouth Woods will offer a program to the public on plant communities. This program is free and will begin at 3 p.m.

The group will discuss the various factors responsible for plant communities, and then will visit some of these interesting areas.
