Linda Molineux Winner Of Award At Jump Meet

Linda Molineux, of Carthage and a graduating nursing student at Sandhills Community College, won second place in individual accuracy, novice category at the Carolina Sport Parachute Council meet in Raeford May 2 and 3.

About 60 people attended the meet from South Carolina and North Carolina clubs, including the Sky High Sport Parachute Club from Derby, the University of South Carolina club, the Golden Knights competition team, 82nd Airborne Sport Parachute club, Freefall Farms, S.C., and Lugoff, S.C.

Members of the Derby club representing Moore County were: Ms. Molineux, Dr. Mack Trent, chairman of the Sandhills Community College history department; Rick Rhyne, Chief of the Foxfire Police Department, and Liz Huskey, reporter at The Pilot.

The group jumps every weekend at the Derby drop zone, which is open to the public. Dr. Trent and Dave Bosworth, both of Pinebluff and certified USA Instructors train students at the DZ, offering extensive instruction in plane entrance, exit, canopy control, and parachute landing falls, before putting a student on his first static line jump. After the first jump, a student receives a first jump certificate, a log book, and receives further instruction throughout his next several jumps.

Bosworth and Trent recently trained 75 students from the Norfolk, Va. Naval Station during one weekend in February and several of the students have returned to make more jumps and eventually to go on to freefall jumps.

The club invites all interested jumpers and non-jumpers to the drop zone.

Carmichael Signs With UDC

BY LIZ HUSKEY
Jeff Carmichael has realized the dream of every high school basketball player.

The dream of being awarded a four-year scholarship to play basketball, and to play for a coach who could make him a professional basketball player some day.

The quiet, Pinecrest standout signed a contract with University of District Columbia Wednesday afternoon, in the company of his present coach Jeff Capel and his future coach Art Jones.

Carmichael had very little to say, but his excitement was thinly disguised when he asked Coach Jones, "What's my jersey number going to be, coach?"

"What's your number now?" Jones asked, and jotted down Carmichael's high school number: 42.

But this would be different. College basketball. Playing the likes of Notre Dame and Maryland, in the Washington, D.C. area. Playing with the likes of Michael Britt and Earl Jones, UDC's all-Americans who have turned the heads of the Washington Post and Star several times.

And playing for a coach like Art Jones, a controversial, fast-talking coach who proved his value as assistant coach at University of Maryland, and is now producing winning seasons for a basketball team too long ignored.

Jones spoke highly of Carmichael. "I think we have one of the prize sleeper forwards in the country. With Jeff's potential, there's a great possibility of him going on to the NBA."

Carmichael averaged 21 points per game, 13 rebounds, shooting 57 percent from the floor and 69 percent at the free throw line, and led the team with 113 blocks, was all-conference for the second year, selected for the East-West All-Star game to be played in July, and was honorable mention to All-East, and was also nominated to the McDonald's All-Stars, "which is a great honor just to be nominated," Jones said.

After receiving offers from half a dozen junior colleges, Carmichael decided on UDC, because he said playing for Jones "is going to help my game a lot." He said he's looking forward to the challenge of switching to forward, after playing center at Pinecrest.

Jones added, "He's not missing anything. He's got the quickness, the moves, the great ball-handling ability."

Carmichael will begin working out with the UDC team Oct. 15. The legal starting date set by the NCAA.

BY REG E. CURRINGTON
The Social Security Sluggers never seem to be daunted by the type of weather that prevails. On Tuesday we found the temperature hovering around the 95 degree mark, but despite the torrid heat, we had some excellent scores.

"Herr" Curt Schulze, together with "Reverend" Jack Bayless, divided first and second places with remarkable plus twelves. "Santa" Alex Sabo followed right behind to take third place with a plus 11. Inevitable Jim Washam scored well as usual, taking fourth place with a plus 8. Two of our higher-handicap players, Charles Jaeger and Ed Delaney, posted super scores of plus 7 to split fifth place.

Our Canadian friend, John McDonald, who enjoyed playing with the Social Security Sluggers, donated a dozen golf balls to the group so that they could be given to the winners of a raffle. The first three balls were won by Jerry Frame and the second set of three was won by Everett Davis. The remaining balls will be awarded at our next play date. We will be looking for John McDonald when he visits the Sandhills again.

On Thursday, April 30, a good-sized number of Sluggers appeared on time, including the oft-tardy George Brigman, looking hale and hearty. Again the constant winner, Curt Schulze, arrived in first place, sharing it with smiling Jim McCullough with plus 7's. Sharing second place were Joe Metzger, Frank Megrew and "Gazebo" Dick Krotz with plus 6's. Even though he did not share in the honors, the smiling octogenarian, Bill Wisler, trailed close behind with a plus 5, sharing the same score with Ed Delaney. Muralist Tom Kegg extended his rabbit's foot by winning the golf balls donated by our Canadian friend, John McDonald.

We welcome all new members to Hyland Hills Golf and Country Club. You are cordially invited to participate with the Social Security Sluggers on Tuesday and Thursday mornings starting at 8 a.m. Arrive early so that you may register.
