Sheriff's Convention.

The sheriffs of the various counties of the State held their first convention in Raleigh on the 30th of January. They propose to ask the General Assembly, now in session, to increase their fees in certain cases, a copy of which have been sent to all the sheriffs in the State, asking them to examine and see if any other changes are desired.

It places the good citizen in the power of the bad one. It gives the law-breaker the advantage over the law-abiding. These laws are too well known, their failure too apparent, to all, to require discussion. Repeal the lottery law. To prohibit the sale of lottery tickets is to give the State a right in the execution of all processes and precepts in civil actions in addition to the fees prescribed.

That they be allowed twenty-five cents on each capias returned when defendant is not found, and full fee when defendant is taken, whether cost is paid by defendant or county. That they be allowed two dollars per day and necessary expenses and one dollar per day and necessary expenses for each guard necessary for conveying prisoners from one county to another.

That they be allowed thirty cents for summoning each regular juror, and ten cents each for those summoned otherwise. That they be allowed one dollar for taking any bond. This is but a move in the way of regulating their fees. It is well known that sheriffs often do work in which they are exposed to the violence of the lawless, and then should they, from no cause of their own, fail in the execution of that duty, receive only the commendation of a few friends as their reward. Work to be well done requires a good workman, well paid. There seems to always be a scramble for the office. But yet, those most competent are not always in this, for some of the fees are not proportionate to the dangers incurred in getting them.

Perhaps some of their office fees should be cut down, but it is well to give them some of those asked, for when work is done, pay should be forthcoming. They should receive pay for any work, which if done by any other officer, would be paid for. In the matter of mileage they should receive some pay for doing their duty, though they cannot execute the law.

It seems as if a schedule of fees equal to their brother officers is what they demand. The clerk of the court and the registrar of deeds are allowed fees for almost every turn. The sheriff does harder work. Put all on the same basis. The sheriff's bond is very large. His responsibilities are great. He should be well paid.

Dead Laws.

Laws that cannot be, or are not, enforced are dead laws. Dead laws make complications. Complications at law result, as a general thing, in victory to the man with the most money, and defeat to the poor one. Dead laws should be repealed. Any law whose object is defeated should be repealed. Two laws which are plainly dead-laws, are those killing in the Louisiana State Lottery and preventing the carrying concealed weapons.

The law prohibiting the press from advertising the drawings of the Louisiana Lottery has not in the least prevented the sales of tickets. It has simply kept many dollars from the State, for the liberality with which it advertised paid a portion of the press well. If any man, who voted to suppress its advertising, thinks he in the least curtailed its business, let him pay attention to the crowds who so eagerly examine its lists of drawings.

The Legislature should also repeal the law against carrying concealed weapons. Its proper enforcement is a failure. It has, in a few instances, done a little good towards replenishing an empty treasury, but its open violation and a failure to prosecute in so many cases, stamps it as a failure. Those whom the law intended to reach, it seldom touches. The innocent man, who carries a weapon for personal protection, is the vengeance of the law, while he who carries his for mischief, does mischief and escapes.

It places the good citizen in the power of the bad one. It gives the law-breaker the advantage over the law-abiding. These laws are too well known, their failure too apparent, to all, to require discussion. Repeal the lottery law. To prohibit the sale of lottery tickets is to give the State a right in the execution of all processes and precepts in civil actions in addition to the fees prescribed.

That they be allowed twenty-five cents on each capias returned when defendant is not found, and full fee when defendant is taken, whether cost is paid by defendant or county. That they be allowed two dollars per day and necessary expenses and one dollar per day and necessary expenses for each guard necessary for conveying prisoners from one county to another.

The Purchase Tax.

Farmers of Edgecombe, you pay about $2,000 per year purchase tax for the merchants. Why do you pay it? Because you buy your goods mostly on the time system. The merchants sell very close to cash buyers, often, very often, making no percent on their money invested and expect you, you time customers, to make it up. They try to advertise by selling cheap for cash. Their money is made on the man who "pays in the fall." This is the farmers' Legislature. Farmers ask them to relieve you of one of your little burdens by repealing the purchase tax.

The merchants of the county pay between one-fourth and one-third of the entire taxes—say one-fourth. Their numbers are not in that proportion to yours. Think how many merchants, how many farmers. They make you pay their purchase taxes. Was that tax repealed the assessment would be on other property to make up the deficiency. The merchants would then probably pay over one-fourth of that tax. You would pay the remainder. If you outnumber them five to one, you would pay about three cents on the hundred dollars while they would pay about five. Don't you see that it is in your favor to repeal it. It would make the tax rest about evenly on all. Then demand it, and at once. The session is drawing to a close.

Progress.

That progressive and enterprising journalist, J. A. Bonits, will soon issue an edition of the Transcript-Messenger from Goldsboro. He will fit up an office in the Messenger Opera House, where he will be pleased to greet old and new friends and attend to the wants of his patrons. The press-work for the present will be done in Wilmington.

Sympathy for Vance.

The expressions of sympathy for our great Senator of the press and the people, show the strong hold he has in the affections of his people. Great anxiety was felt as to the result of the operation, but when "all danger is past," was echoed through the land, relief from suspense was felt, such as the return of him long gone from the family fire-side, would give those whose daily life had been prayers for his safety.

But the inward joy at the news so favorable was somewhat dispelled by the report that there is danger of his losing the other eye. The people will watch with intense interest for any news that will tell them of his well doing. The eyes of a State are watching him. The prayers of a people go up for him. May the last unfavorable report prove untrue, is the wish of all.
