LIVE AND LET LIVE shall be our motto continually.

Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, &r.

LOOKING FORWARD.

The old year, with its joys and sorrows, its pleasures and pains, is behind us. The new year is before us with every promise of being a prosperous one-at least for the Morris Co. This Company has no idea of being outstripped in the mercantile race this year. It would take a whole encyclopedia to tell you what they propose doing for their patrons during 1892. They propose to watch EN the northern markets with the eye of an eagle, and let no opportunity slip to be the first with every nevelty in their line of trade.

Their Dry Goods palace, consistng of two large stores, on Main street, is undoubtedly the grandest emporium in Tarboro. They are proud of it, and the people are proud of it as an ornament to the city. The present year it will shine resplendent with the choice fabrics of the most noted manufacturers in every thing that can be found in a first class Dry Goods store.

LIME. In one of our stores a gentleman can be provided with every article requisite to his comfort and pleasure and his wardrobe will be the envy of his companions who do not secure wearing apparel from the same

> In the other store a lady can pick and choose to her heart's content, and no matter how fastidious her taste she can be suited. This The Morris Co. promise, on the strength of their long experience in the Dry Goods and Clothing trade.

Buying for as many stores as it does, the Company will sell to the consumer just as low as any small dealer in the city can by the same

This is the great secret of their grea success. Goods in large quantities can be bought at much lower figures than in small quantities, and the Morris Co. always give their patrons the benefit of the reduction. Watch Insurance in force, and wait and you will see wonders accomplished by the Merris Co., in Tarboro; during the year 1802. They mean business.

Respectfully, THE MORRIS CO.
