MOTHER'S FRIEND
Not only shortens time of labor and lessens the pain, but it greatly diminishes the danger to life of both mother and child, and leaves the mother in a condition more favorable to speedy recovery and less liable to flooding, convulsions, and other alarming symptoms. Its efficacy in this respect entitles it to be called "The Mother's Friend," and to rank as one of the life-saving remedies of the 19th century.
We cannot publish certificates concerning this remedy without wounding the delicacy of the writers. Yet we have hundreds on file. Send for our book, "Message to Woman," mailed free.

EDITORIAL.

HEAR THE CANDIDATES.

The county canvass will be commenced at Clayton on Monday the 18th inst.

The Democratic nominees, and possibly the Independents, will be on hand to discuss the political issues of the day. The Democrats will no doubt bring forth out of their treasures things new and old concerning Radical misrule in days gone by. It is but just to go and hear what all the speakers have to say. Don't be content with flying rumors, as to the political record of any candidate or his private views on any subject, but go and hear him. Allow each one to testify for himself. Do not listen to reports of Radical tricksters concerning Democrats, but go out to the Public Speaking and hear all, and then make up your mind. Do not judge any one before you hear him—it is not fair. Do not allow yourselves to be lulled to sleep by the Radical lullaby of so-called Independents. Don't listen to the hissed words of men who are responsible to nobody, and who owe allegiance to no party. Don't be "soft sordered" into silence, and indifference about going to hear the candidates when they go to your voting place. You will by this means be better able to determine whether you are willing to vote for them or not. You are, it may be, not prepared to vote intelligently until you hear them. Every man, woman and child is interested in the votes to be cast on the 2nd of November; and as the men are to do their voting for the whole, it places upon them a responsibility of no small consequence. Remember, you are to vote for your wives and daughters who cannot vote for themselves, and for your helpless children who are dependent on your sound judgment and honesty, to vote for their protection, and in every way to promote their interest.

Every man is interested in good government, and a wise management of public affairs, and hence you should go out and hear what those have to say who ask you to vote for them. Don't let Radicals blindfold you and keep you at home, and thus keep you in ignorance of their dark deeds. Their only hope of success in November is to keep Democrats quiet, and keep them at home, to keep them away from occasions of Public speaking. If they can do this, they think they can succeed, otherwise they do not hope for success. Do not listen to them; do not allow them to deceive you. Take our advice: go out and hear what the candidates have to say.

AN ITALIAN TRAGEDY.
We would fain reserve for a few brief hours from that oblivion which sooner or later overtakes everything that is merely of yesterday a story of love and death which seems almost without parallel in sad experience and has surely no equal in the annals of tragic things.

Brief indeed is the narrative as we read it in the Roman Opinion, yet how profoundly expressive, how full of painful transitions! We almost see the Lenoira, pretty little Francesca Pompili, a dazed-eyed Italian girl of sixteen years, as, arm in arm with her lover, she sets forth on the morn of her wedding day to walk—gay with ribbons and bridal flowers—as far as the church wherein they are to be united for life.

It is a bright day over the broad and shining fields of Campidoglio, and the air is full of the music of singing birds, yet the heart of little Francesca throbs with a more joyous beat than that of nature—with the delicious trembling of repressed love. But suddenly a cloud appears; the rising wind whips it across the sky, and ere the couple can reach the shelter of the church the storm has knit its brows, flashed its glance of lightning and hurled its thunderbolt.

The parents, standing within the portals of the church, have viewed this success of the elements with true Roman superstition. And now a new and deadlier bolt, sent with a surer aim, is about to take effect. Francesca falls on her knees and appeals for mercy; her betrothed stammers a broken prayer for help; even the priest seizes in the despairing cry of the lovers with the sanction of his sacred office. It is in vain. The parents are obdurate. The elements are against the marriage. What heaven has forbidden shall they permit?

Little Francesca takes the hand of her lover, and the two walk back through the field drenched with rain. Then, again, in stealth and silence, the couple issue forth again, and in the morning, when the waters have given up their burden, the beach at Campidoglio bears the weight of the same couple now clasped in each other's arms. The elements have thus been kinder to them than man, for if at first they forbade the union it was only to relent and consummate it at last.

Walkers Cotton Phosphate.
I will be at Smithfield from the 18th day of October until 6th day of November, 1886, for the purpose of receiving guano cotton. Those that bought guano of me last spring will please carry the cotton to Smithfield during the last two weeks of October and the first week of November and settle so as to save trouble.
Respectfully, J. M. BEASLEY.

The Vagabond Sage.
An old man with active physiognomy, answering to the name of John Wilnot was brought to the police court. His clothes looked as if they might have been bought second-hand in his youthful prime, for they had suffered more from the rubs of the world than the proprietor himself.

Ques. "What business?"
Ans. "None; I'm a traveler."
"A vagabond, perhaps?"
You are not far wrong. Travelers and vagabonds are just about the same thing. The difference is the latter travels without money, and the former without brains.

"Where have you travelled?"
"All over the continent."
"For what purpose?"
"Observation."
"What have you observed?"
"A little to commend, much to censure, and a great deal to laugh at."
"Humph! what do you commend?"
"A handsome woman that will stay at home; an eloquent preacher that will preach short sermons; a good writer that will not write too much; and a fool that has sense enough to hold his tongue."
"What do you censure?"
"A man that marries a girl for her fine clothing; a youth who lies around the taverns and does nothing while he has good health and the use of his hands; and the people who elect a drunkard to office."
"What do you laugh at?"
"I laugh at the man who expects his position to command that respect which his personal qualification do not merit; I laugh when I hear a man say he knows of a better wood burning cook stove for a small family than the "Patrol Cook," sold by E. J. & J. S. Holt, Smithfield, N. C. Such people show their ignorance."

THE SITUATION REVERSED.

A Mexican Officer Arrested for Murder in Texas.

A Larado (Texas) telegram says: The arrest of an officer of the Mexican army was made here to-day that is likely to cause a good deal of trouble before the matter is settled. The officer in question is Captain Rafael Pinal, of the regular army. He came over on the Texas side of social pleasure bent, and was recognized by Deputy Sheriff Yantis as the officer who, seven years ago, shot and killed a deserter from the Mexican army. The unique side of the case arises from the circumstances under which the killing took place. The murdered man was undoubtedly a Mexican but he had gone! the American side of the Rio Grande in his efforts to escape from the tyranny of the regular Mexican army service. Just as the wretched fugitive had gained the Texas bank Captain (then Lieutenant) Pinal appeared on the Mexican side of the river in pursuit, and, firing his Winchester, fired across the river, killing the deserter in the presence of several Americans, among whom was Yantis, the present deputy sheriff. According to international law, as recently developed in the discussion of the Cuttine case, Captain Pinal, although he stood on the Mexican side when he fired the shot, is amenable to the laws of Texas, and must answer the charge of wilful murder. Pinal has influential friends, and will make a strong fight for his liberty, and will no doubt appeal to his Government, to come to his relief. This is the Cuttine case simply reversed. Cutting fired a shot into the State of Chihuahua, while Pinal was lodged in jail, protesting that the arresting officers had no jurisdiction whatever in the premises.

Moving for a New County.
A large crowd assembled 24th September at the residence of the late James Bunn to formulate certain plans for a new county Mr. A. W. Bridgers was elected Chairman and W. H. Chamberle and O. L. Stringfield Secretaries. The business transacted may be briefly stated as follows: A committee of five from each of the counties—Wake, Franklin, Nash, Johnston, and a committee of one from Wilson, were appointed to lay off or rather suggest boundary lines of the new county.

The committee reported about as follows: That the lines begin on Tar River, where the Nash line crosses said river; thence up said river to Crooked Creek; thence up said creek to Carpenter's old mill, on the Louisa road; thence up the Louisa road to Ban's school house; thence to the fork of the road at Dr. Howard Freeman's thence up the road to Nat. Jones'; thence a direct line to Baker's Falls on Norris' Creek; thence up said creek to near Martha Medlin's old place; thence to the Franklin line where the Youngville road crosses said line; thence direct to the widow Lee's old place west of Rolesville on the Raleigh road; thence directly to where the Mark's Creek township line crosses the Raleigh and Tarboro road near Solomon Brown's; thence to where Mark's Creek crosses the Wake and Johnston line; thence down Mark's Creek to Nense River, and down said river to Galley's bridge; thence to Pineville; thence to widow Rebecca Whitely; thence to the road at widow Moore's school house; thence to Charlie Knights.

The line through Nash runs about as follows: Beginning at Franklin line; thence down Tar River to York's bridge; thence a straight line to Dickerson's mill; thence down Tinsot Swamp to the East bridge; thence a South line to the Wilson line; thence to M. Eaton's; thence a straight line to John Stanley Boykin's mill; thence a straight line to Charlie Knights.

The following gentlemen were appointed to prepare a petition to the General Assembly of North Carolina, to-wit: Messrs. S. P. Gill, Nash county; W. E. Phillips, Franklin county; O. L. Stringfield, Wake county; Henry Tidale, Johnston county, and Jesse Deans, Wilson county.

The following were appointed to solicit names favoring the new county to accompany the petition to the General Assembly in its next session: Messrs. J. H. Griffin, W. W. Perry, Burl Baker, W. H. Williams and Henry Perry, of Franklin county; L. T. Strickland, A. W. Bridgers, B. C. Strickland, Edward Rice and S. P. Gill, Nash county; J. S. Atkinson, J. H. Tidale, J. R. Boyva and Reubin Williamson (col.), Johnston county; D. M. Stott, Merritt Godwin, Joseph Thompson Williamson, Frank Moody, Calvin Booth (col.), R. C. Mitchell and Sidney Horton, Wake county.

Adjourned to meet at same place 6th of Oct. 1886.

All within the proposed lines are earnestly requested to be present at 10 A. M. October 16th.

A. W. BRIDGERS, Chm.
W. H. CHAMBERLE, Secretary.
O. L. STRINGFIELD.

Glenwood News.

The pedagogical lectures are well attended, at the Glenwood school; a class of thirteen teachers take the work every day, and evince a lively interest in the subjects presented.

The subject now under consideration is "School Management," "How to Organize," etc.

Beginning with the most simple subjects, the course will embrace all the branches taught in our common and high schools; and it is the aim of the Principals to lay bare the true principal of the scientific teaching of every subject from a, b, c to the higher branches of knowledge taken up in our colleges.

An attractive and novel feature of the Musical entertainment, which takes place on the 23rd inst., will be a Musical Troupe, en costume, with the appertinances of the profession.

We can vouch for the entertainment, and know that it will be strictly first class in every respect, and deserving the support and patronage of everybody.

The ladies are preparing a calisthenic drill also for the occasion.

Messrs. Gin & Co., Publishers, of N. Y., sent us a little lot of valuable books for our library, last week; and the University Publishers: Co., New York also sent a number of volumes of text books, which will be of great use to us in comparing studies. Next?

The several committees set out, next week, to collect the subscription for the library—we let every one come up promptly; for we want to get off our order for new books at once.

The Sunday School class at the Academy is growing larger every meeting; we hope every body will come out on Sunday afternoon and join us in our exercises of singing and in studying the Bible.

Slight frost was noticed on the 4th inst. We look for a cold winter, and would advise everybody to get ready for a siege of snow and ice.

The Principals of Glenwood school is engaged, just now, in preparing the first number of the "Glenwood Monthly" for the press. The project is meeting with wonderful success, and only good words are expressed at this signal departure from the humdrum routine of common school work. We expect 500 subscribers by Xmas, and 1000 by the close of school, in May, '87.

Their Only Hope.
Wilson Mirror.

Those who read closely the signs of the times, will readily discover that the only hope the Radicals have of winning the next election in this State will be through the reasonable aid of the Benedict Arnolds to be found in our camp. They hope that through the allying blandishments of proffered brilliant preferment some more office-seekers like Jomg and Malone et alii may be found, who are willing to give up principle for the sake of office, and who will aid them in extricating their party from the mire of destruction into which it is so rapidly sinking. In the last campaign they found a few these office-hungry mouths made them eat up all the anathemas of the infamies of the Radical party as bravely as Pistol are leek at the order of Pinchuk, and we have heard it rumored that others who are now listening to the notes of promise the syren voices are singing, and sitting entranced under its fascinating but poisonous and deadly melody, will ere long slip at the same baneful banquet.

We trust that those who may be contemplating this defect on from the line of duty and of patriotism will take a sober, second thought, and for that reason we write these lines to sound the bugle of alarm and warn them of the dangers which threaten such a pathway. We bid them pause and think, ere they take that fateful step, which is to unite their political fortunes with that party which is destined to leave a name which will be the scorn of future years. "Inseparably with a thousand times." A party which has allowed the public service to be honey-combed with corruption and dishonor, and which has permitted the government itself to become saturated with the reeking foulness of all the putrid carcasses of revolting crimes which have disgraced and covered with obloquy the annals of its administration, is not the party to hold in its folds those who respect and honor the integrity of our government, and the purity of its administration. That party has allowed the very capital itself to be turned into a junking shop for the basest kinds of j.beries, and infested it with so many scenes of corruption, and made it so familiar with crime that even remorse,

"checked with customs to fall dead," refuses to fasten its fangs into the consciences of those who are so deeply steeped in guilt. And yet this is the party which is now wooing to its unhallowed embrace the honor bred and virtuous sons of our dear old State. We bid them in the name of peace, in the name of order, in the name of honor, in the name of good honest government to keep their principles unshaken and unswerving, and stand for their political honor. Let them remember the thirty pieces of silver that tempted Judas, and spurn their offers as they would the work of Cain. Successful villainy may flaunt itself in high places for a while, but its downfall is sure. Nemesis will come. Its judgment will be final; its doom, awful.

Then the glow of the patriot's long waiting and watching will catch the rainbow tints of a radiant promise, and Right, rising triumphant over the ruins of Wrong, will erect its golden temple and dedicate it to the blessed ministry of peace, happiness, fraternal relations, sectional harmony and general prosperity. Amen.
