Thursday, November 24, 1892.

It is stated that President Cleveland and family will spend the winter at Newton, in this State, among the Blue Ridge mountains.

BRANSON'S N. C. Agricultural Almanac for 1892 is on our table. It is compiled by Rev. Levi Branson of Raleigh and is a valuable reference book for farmers and business men.

THERE will be only one Republican in the next State Senate and he is a negro from the 11th district—Warren and Vance counties. The true Republican party in the State will be represented.

OHIO elected 22 republican electors and 1 democratic elector. She thus gives Cleveland 1 vote in the Electoral College. California is still claimed by both parties but the probability is that Cleveland has carried it.

The Presidential Electors in this state will meet in Raleigh about the second Thursday in January and cast their ballots for Grover Cleveland. They will then appoint one of their number to carry the vote to the Vice-President at Washington.

THE citizens of Oxford held a mass meeting and adopted resolutions denouncing the lynching of Will Burnett, who was confined in jail awaiting trial at that place. This is a step in the right direction. Lynchings are getting to be too frequent in our country. Public sentiment against it will tend to lessen it.

COL. S. McCL. TATE, of Morganton, the newly appointed State Treasurer to succeed Treasurer Bain, deceased, took the oath of office and was placed in charge of the State's funds Monday. His bond of $250,000, justified, was made by his friends in Morganton. His appointment seems to be satisfactory to the whole State and the opinion is that Governor Holt acted wisely in appointing him.

In another column we give an account taken from the Wilmington Messenger of a most deplorable murder and lynching in Richmond county. It seems that it all originated from an incendiary speech by a Third party man. Men who make speeches of such character are almost as guilty as the parties who did the murder and should be so held if it can be proven that such speeches incited the riot.

DURING the present administration of the State there has been an unusual mortality among the State officers. In November, 1889, Chief Justice W. N. H. Smith died. William L. Saunders, Secretary of State, died April 1891. Associate Justice Joseph J. Davis died in August of this year and Chief Justice Augustus S. Merrimon, and State Treasurer Bain both died in November. Five State officers in three years have died. This probably is the greatest mortality among state officers in one administration known in the history of this nation.

THE Alliance held a national meeting at Memphis last week. From the reports there was a considerable row. The Third party delegates got control and elected officers from their party. C. W. Macune, of the executive board who has been residing at Washington, D. C., in the interest of the Alliance, created a stir in the meeting by withdrawing and refusing to have anything to do with it because he said there was a movement on foot to make it the organ of the 3rd party instead of the farmers. The officers elected are: President, H. L. Loucks, South Dakota; Vice-President, Marion Butler, North Carolina; Secretary and Treasurer, L. K. Taylor, Tennessee; Lecturer, Ben Terrell, Texas; executive committee, L. Leonard, Missouri; Mann Page, Virginia; I. E. Dean, New York; H. C. Demming, Pennsylvania.

THE LYNCHING AT LAUREL HILL.

The Murder of Deputy Sheriff Livingston Hanged and Riddled with Bullets. The Messenger yesterday contained the telegraphic news that Dunc McPhatter, colored, was lynched at Laurel Hill, Richmond county on Friday morning for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Melvin Livingston of the county above named.

The murder of Deputy Livingston occurred on last Monday in the vicinity of Spring Hill, Richmond county, as mentioned in these columns several days ago. Another account of the tragedy and doubtless the most reliable of them all, was that it had its beginning in a difficulty at the polls on election day at Spring Hill precinct. The instigator of the difficulty at the polls was one Cooley, a Third party man, who wanted a certain vote thrown out by the canvassers. Not succeeding in his efforts, he used very incendiary language and incited Dunc and Arch McPhatter, the negroes, to make it hot for the Democrats. There was considerable disorderly conduct and fighting around the polls and some shots were fired but no one was hurt. A number of the ballot boxes were smashed and the result of the difficulty at the precinct vitiated the election and the vote was thrown out.

Warrants were sworn out for the arrest of Dunc and Arch McPhatter, charging them with notorious conduct at the polls, and on last Monday Deputy Sheriff Livingston and Deputy Sheriff Jim McGirt, went out to Spring Hill to serve the warrants. When they reached Dunc McPhatter's house, he came to the door with a gun in his hand, but Mr. McGirt covered him with a revolver, while Deputy Sheriff Livingston commenced to read the warrant. While Livingston was reading the warrant, Arch McPhatter, brother of Dunc, drew a gun and pointed it at Livingston. McGirt turned to shoot Arch and as he did so Dunc knocked Livingston down with the butt of his gun. Arch then fired while Livingston was already senseless and on the ground, and shot him through the neck, causing his death in a few minutes.

Dunc and Arch then began firing at McGirt, but without effect. McGirt emptied his pistol at them and ran to the buggy to get a gun. The two negroes ran and made their escape. As soon as the news of the tragedy reached Sheriff Smith, at Rockingham, he went out with a posse of fifteen men to capture the murderers. They went to McPhatter's house and surrounded the cabin, but Dunc McPhatter escaped through a window. About thirty shots were sent after him but he succeeded in getting into a swamp. At night the posse went to Arch McPhatter's house and found him concealed in bed. When discovered, however, he fired on the posse and escaped. It is thought, however, that he was struck by two bullets.

In the meantime the county was in an intense state of excitement, and up to Thursday at noon the murderers were still at large. The posse, however, kept scouring the woods and swamps, and at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, when they were all tired and worn out, a shot was heard in a swamp that was surrounded by men. The men went in the direction of the shot and it proved to be Dunc McPhatter who had fired to attract their attention. When they approached him he cried out "Don't shoot! I will give up! Come and take me!" Dunc McPhatter was found lying on the ground, having been shot in the leg and arm, and he was immediately taken to Laurinburg and placed in the guard house with about forty men around it to protect him from the infuriated citizens.

On Friday morning when Capt. W. J. Hall's train arrived at Laurinburg going to Charlotte, Sheriff Smith and his posse put McPhatter aboard and started with him for Rockingham. At the same time about two hundred men got on the train and when it reached Laurel Hill, near Livingston's home, the men took the murderer away from the sheriff, and swung him to a limb. They first put him on a horse and after he had confessed the crime, the horse was struck with a whip and he went from under McPhatter, leaving him hanging by the neck. Seventy-four bullets were then fired through his body, and thus was expiated a crime which a vicious man, was instigated to do by Third party men, as he declared in his dying statement.—Wilmington Messenger.

IT CAN NEVER RALLY.

We are honestly of the opinion that the Republican party as a National organization is dead. It may and doubtless will for some time maintain an existence in some of the States where its majority is still considerable, but as a National organization it will never again be able to present a formidable front.

For the past sixteen years it has been losing its hold upon the people, and growing weaker, and it has retained power through these years it is due more to the particular methods resorted to than to its popularity with the masses. There are four causes to which its continuance in power may be attributed.

- 1st. The enfranchisement of the negro.
2nd. Its sectionalism.
3rd. The protective tariff.
4th. Pensions.

All of these it found useful agents in keeping it in power. The enfranchisement of the negro didn't accomplish the purpose for which it was intended in the South, where it proved to be a boomerang. The increased electoral votes which it was thought the Republican party could count upon are now won by the Democratic party in the Presidential contests, and the South has that many more members in Congress to add to the Democratic column.

But while the Republican party was a loser by the enfranchisement of the negro in the South, it won the negroes of the Northern States, who have, as a rule, voted as solidly with the party as did the colored voters of the South, and it so happens that in several of these States they hold in all ordinary elections the balance of power. To this vote the Republican party has been indebted more than once for victory in Presidential contests and in State elections. It came near electing Blaine in 1884, it elected Harrison in 1888, and if it hadn't been for this vote at the last election Harrison wouldn't have carried more than half the States he did, and Cleveland's plurality would have been at least a million and a half.

There never has been a Presidential election since the war that the sectional issue wasn't sprung, and rung from organ and stump, and sometimes from pulpit, and even in the last campaign, nearly a generation since the last gun was fired and the arms of the soldiers stacked, the war cry was resounded and the bloody shirt dragged out from its temporary seclusion to do service again. And now the main burden of the lamentation of some of the defeated is that "the South is in the saddle."

The pension system was not devised out of a spirit of gratitude or a sense of obligation to the soldiers, but was inspired by political motives as a means of binding the soldiers to the Republican party and consequently as political emergencies became more pressing and the prospects of Republican success less promising the more interest the Republican statesmen showed in the soldiers and the larger and more numerous the pension bills became. They put every soldier they could find the least pretence for so putting upon the pension rolls and thus placed him under a personal obligation to the party. And thus it has for years secured the votes of thousands upon thousands of soldiers. They played the pension trick this time as in previous campaigns but not so effectively, for they had worked such barefaced frauds into the system that decent, self-respecting soldiers became ashamed of it, and voted against the party if for no other reason to rebuke the men who had been using the soldier as a party tool and degrading him.

But the protective tariff was the big card upon which the party machine managers banked the heaviest, for it was to the protected manufacturer, whom the protective policy enriched, they looked for the bulk of the money to run campaigns, and to mak the corruption fund which was to buy venal voters and carry elections. There has been no campaign since the protective policy became an issue between the parties that they did not subscribe millions of dollars, the amount subscribed in the last campaign being put down at between three million and four millions. There is none of these agencies which can be worked as effectively in the future as they have been in the past. There is less disposition among the negroes North and South to blindly follow that party in the future as they did in the past, which was shown in the late election by the organization of several colored Democratic clubs in Northern cities, and by the number of colored voters in the South who for the first time broke through the lines and voted for the Democratic candidates.

Sectionalism has lost hold, for the Republican party does not now command the support of the Northern States, and has lost its hold upon all but the New England States and Pennsylvania, a few central States and a few States in the far West, some of which have no honest title to Statehood.

With the discomfiture and experience of the elections of 1890 and this year the protected manufacturers have lost confidence of the Republican party to cope with the Democratic party and they will never again contribute their money as lavishly as they have been doing to keep it in power. They will rather take their chances of making honest and legitimate profits under an honest and reasonable tariff.

These are the reasons why we believe the Republican party can never rally from the defeat it has met, and as a national organization again present a formidable front.—Wilmington Star.

It turns out that "Socksless" Jerry Simpson has been re-elected to Congress from his district in Kansas. He is accused of joining the Democrats.

It seems that Gideon S. Otho Wilson is taking a rest. The newspapers don't say much about him since the election. We guess he is wondering "when he is at."

The city of Wilmington is making extensive preparations for "Welcome Week" which it will give next week. Special attractions will be made for visitors and they estimate that they will have 30000 visitors during the week. Reduced railroad fares will be given on all the roads.

The Third party Alliance men at Memphis have organized on order styled "The Industrial Legion of the United States." It has for its purpose only political ends and is nothing more than Gideon's Band under a new name. Marion Butler is one of its officers. Gideon's Band on some other order must have such men as Butler, the people will have nothing to do with them.

This State at Chicago. North Carolina applied for some 20,000 square feet of space at the World's Fair, but will be given only a third of that amount. The exhibit will therefore necessarily be very compact. Only the very choicest specimens will be exhibited in the various departments. In the mines and mining division 5,000 square feet was the space asked for; only 1,665 is that granted. The departments of fish and fisheries will have a superb exhibit. A pamphlet, handsomely illustrated, will be prepared, describing that department and the state's fishing interests. The copy for this pamphlet is now in hand and was prepared by Dr. Hugh M. Smith and Mr. Stephen G. Worth. The latter was for years fish commissioner of this state. The fisheries employ 10,274 people in North Carolina; the fish caught in a year weigh 56,000,000 pounds; the value of the vessels, boats, nets etc. is $1,243,000; the value of the fish, to the fisheries, is $1,057,000; and the shore enterprises such as oyster canneries, fertilizer factories, etc. dependent on the fisheries, yield $1,123,100 annually.—State Chronicle.
