DO YOU WANT A PUMP?
—IF SO BUY—
"THE FAMILY FAVORITE."

This pump is well known throughout the South, having been in use for many years. It is a simple, reliable, and durable pump, and is well adapted for use in all parts of the country. It is especially useful in places where there is no running water. It is a very good investment for any household. It is made of brass and is very strong. It is easy to use and does not require any special skill. It is a very good pump and is well worth the money. It is a very good pump and is well worth the money. It is a very good pump and is well worth the money.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

A Kansas man has left the populist party because it is run by lawyers without clients, by doctors without patients, by preachers without pulpits, by women without husbands, by farmers without farms, by financiers without finance, by educators without education, by statesmen out of a job.

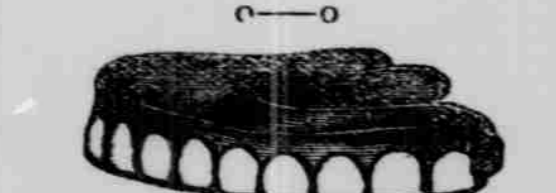

Love was strong enough within her to impeet Mary Johnson, of Jacksonville, Fla., to walk 26 miles to be married; and she walked at night and alone.

Drugs! Drugs! Drugs!

GENERAL NEWS.

Several cities of Venezuela have been destroyed by an earthquake. Three million dollars in gold was sent abroad last Saturday week from New York.

An explosion of gas in a colliery at Ashland, Pa., Monday, killed two.

The Brazilian Government's forces have again been defeated by the rebels with 140 killed.

Bradstreet reports 225,000 men idle. Tariff agitation and strikes throw a damper on business.

Richard Croker, the Tammany chief says his burdens are too heavy, that he needs rest, and that while he will retain his position, others must do the work.

The drought-stricken territory of Duval and Zipata counties, Texas, where rain had not fallen in four years, was visited Friday by a heavy rain.

The women of Lexington, Ky., have inaugurated a boycott against all merchants and physicians there, who are supporting Congressman Breckinridge's re-election.

The Populists of the district in Ohio, where Coxe lives, when he is at home, have nominated him for Congress. This shows what a small opinion they have of Congress.

England is a great country, but it is said that one person out of every thirty-three of the population is a pauper. It takes about $3,000,000 a year to provide for the royal paupers.

Chairman Wilson took his seat on the 16th inst., for the first time since his illness, and was warmly greeted. If we had a Senate full of such men, the country would be in a better condition.

Miss Frances E. Willard, the temperance agitator, is about to return to America. She delivered a farewell address at the annual public meeting of the National British Women's Temperance Association in London Thursday.

Gov. Flower has signed a bill establishing a pension fund for the doctors, inspectors, clerks and nurses of the New York Herald-Department who shall have served terms of twenty years.

In the United States Senate on Wednesday Mr. Mills denounced the amendments to the Wilson tariff bill as a fraud upon the government for the benefit of the favored classes, and announced his intention to vote against them.

The Christian Convention of North Carolina and Virginia which met in Norfolk last week has selected Burlington as the next place of meeting. A committee of five was appointed to report plans for the celebration of the centennial of the Christian church.

In the U. S. Senate on Tuesday there was a sharp colloquy between Hoar of Massachusetts and Gray of Delaware. Hoar claimed that the Democratic Senators were violating their oath of office in voting for a protective tariff, while claiming that such a tariff was unconstitutional. Gray objected to this language, but did not reply to the argument.

AS TO STATESMANSHIP.

The error of our Eastern critics in depreciating the financial capacity of Southern legislators because they are politicians and not financial specialists, lies in their egregiously failure to comprehend the function of statesmanship. It is the business of a statesman to employ as his tools the best specialists in all departments of the public business. Our leading Southern legislators, being real statesmen, long ago recognized the superiority of the financiers of the old rich capitals of Europe to those of the new-rich capital of America, and embued their sounder views. It would, therefore, be equivalent to putting the cart before the horse if we failed to recognize the fact that we have in the outgivings of the London congress not so much a confirmation of our Southern financial soundness not so much as a revelation of the source of Southern financial inspiration.—Payetteville Observer.

The point made by the Observer is well taken. Before the war the South furnished the great majority of recognized statesmen. There was the father of his country to begin with, and then followed Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Calhoun, Clay, Benton, Polk, McDuffie, Hayne, Stephenson, Hill and many others that we could mention who made their impress upon the country. The South contributed the ablest statesman of this country now, but their hands are tied. Private interests and high protection are sustained by northern members irrespective of party and when the South and the West can agree to vote together on public measures in congress with a democratic President at the head of affairs, then, and not till then, can we confidently expect a change, and proper recognition of the interests of our common country.—Exchange.

Populism, Like Other Fads, Must Die.

The populist party is not the first that has risen up against democracy. Other parties have done the same thing, but we can not recall the names of many of them now. Populism is a fad that will pass away with its novelty. Its supporters will have to return to the old parties or remain out of politics. The Democracy was at one time the only political party in this country. All the people were in it and the vast majority of them remained in it until the abolition question divided them. A large majority of the people are yet democrats as has been shown by our popular vote for President, and as sectional prejudices die out their is a return in the North to the party of Jefferson and Jackson. In the West the people are essentially democratic. No other party will ever recognize the interests of that section. The populist move is a blot that will be soon shot. It can simply go down in history along with Know-nothingism, Free-soilism and other isms that have passed into obscurity.—Ex.

When a man is weary telling Of the great deeds he has done, Then he finds a theme excelling In the smartness of his son. —N. Y. Herald.

HONOR THE HEROES.

The cornerstone of the Confederate soldiers' monument will be laid here next Tuesday.

It will be a great event in the annals of North Carolina, and it is a fitting commentary on the love and patriotism of our people.

Thousands of Confederate veterans and ex-Confederate officers will be present on that occasion to witness the erection of the memorial to their fallen comrades.

It is only to be regretted that the people of North Carolina have not earlier been able to erect this monument to the brave men of the State who laid down their lives in that fateful war.

There are many such monuments in the South. They prove that our people still hold in a sacred memory the men who made up the splendid armies which were led by Lee and Jackson and Hill, by Stuart and Pender, and others whose names are bright on the pages of history.

Not less than the great generals and captains does the private soldier, humble and unknown, even in death, deserve the gratitude and affection of his country. And this monument, now about to be erected, is a fitting recognition of the bravery of the unsung heroes of the Confederacy; the men who, without thought of reward, without the allurements of fame, bore the brunt of the great struggle and now sleep in nameless graves.

Not till earth be sunless, not till death strike blind the skies My y the deathless love that waits on deathless deeds be dead. —NORTH CAROLINIAN.

MUSIC.

There is music in all things if men had ears.—[Bryon.

Music is the medicine of the breaking heart.—[Sir A. Hunt.

Let me have music dying and I seek no more delight.—[Keats.

The soul of art best loved when love is by.—[Rev. J. B. Brown.

Music washes away from the soul the dust of every-day life.—[Auerbach.

Music is the child of prayer, the champion of religion.—[Chateaubriand.

Sweetest melodies are those that are by distance made more sweet.—[Wordsworth.

The man who hath no music in his soul, is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils.—[Shakespeare.

Music is the only sensual gratification which mankind may indulge in to excess without injury to their moral or religious feelings.—[Addison.

The meaning of song goes deep. Who is there that, in logical words, can express the effect music has upon us? A kind of inarticulate, unathomable speech, which leads us to the edge of the infinite, and lets us for moments gaze into that.—[Carlyle.

Under the influence of music we are all deluded in some way. We imagine that the performers must dwell in the regions to which they lift their hearers. We are reluctant to admit that a man may blow the most soul-animating strains from his trumpet and yet be a coward; or melt an audience to tears with his violin and yet be a heartless profligate.—[Hillard.

The next session of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows will be held at Durham. The report submitted to the Grand Lodge last week, in session at Goldsboro, by the Grand Master shows that twelve new lodges have been instituted during the year, making a total of 410. Initiations were 739; died 43, making present total membership 4,398.

The President, Secretary Carlisle and Gresham have been hunting in eastern North Carolina lately. They killed 385 birds last Friday. The President lead by killing 144. They also had good success catching blue-fish and drum. The party came for recreation and it is said they enjoyed this their second trip to the State very much. The President expects to return this fall for a deer hunt in Hyde park.

It is said in Washington that the passage of the tariff bill "is only a question of time." But the trouble is the good slow Senate makes no note of time and jogs along as it eternally halts to it.
