The skull was practically split in twain, and Coroner Saltry says death must have been almost instantaneous. The case is almost identical with the murder and assault of Mary Quinn, on Keyser avenue, in the summer of 1902.

In each case the victim was clubbed to death and then dragged into a field. The Quinn murderer has never been even the hint of a clue to the perpetrator of the latter diabolical deed.

FATAL STREET DUEL

W. R. Murray Kills His Uncle at Durham, N. C.

Durham, N. C., Nov. 26 .- In a street duel, W. R. Murray killed his uncle, J. S. Murray. Both are well-known Carolinians. The shooting took place in front of the store of the dead man, on Main street, in the business section of the city, and was due to business rivalry.

Both men had been running music stores and were well-known business W. R. Murray, who did the men. shooting, is a brother-in-law of I. E. Emerson, of Baltimore, the well-known chemist.

J. S. Murray was preparing to ship a plano, and he accused a salesman of W. R. Murray of watching and prying into his business for the purpose of trying to thwart the trade. W. R. Murray heard that his salesman had been accused, and accompanied by his son, Earle Murray, he went to the store of his uncle, which is about a half block from his own place of business. At the door he was met by J. S. Murray.

A short, bitter guarrel followed, and J. S. Murray pulled his revolver and began shooting at W. R. and Earle Murray, the three bullets fired all taking effect on Earle, in the hand, arm and thigh. W. R. Murray, a powerful man, closed in on his assailant, and taking the revolver from him, shot inflicting a wound that caused him.

Observed World's Temperance Day.

Philadelphia, Nov. 28. - Yesterday was World's Temperance Sunday, observed by a great many Protestant churches and Sunday schools. A general observance of the day was held in this city, the principal meeting being that held under the joint auspices of the Philadelphia Presbytery and the Presbyterian General Assembly. The meeting was addressed by Rev. Dr. J. Addison Henry, moderator of the General Assembly; John Wanamaker and Professor Charles Scanlan, the field secretary of temperance for the Presbyterian church. Professor Scanlon said it is the intention of the Presbyterian church to put workers in the field for the purpose of holding Presbyterial meetings throughout the country to stimulate Presbyterians to greater activity in behalf of temperance.
