Johnston County Baptist Association.

The fourth annual session of the Johnston County Baptist Association was held at Clyde's Chapel, in Wilders township, beginning last Thursday and ending Sunday. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. D. F. Putnam, of Benson. The body was called together by the moderator, Mr. R. H. Gower, of Clayton. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Moderator—R. H. Gower.
Vice Moderator—C. W. Carter.
Clerk—T. J. Lassiter.
Treasurer—Will H. Lassiter.
Auditor—J. D. Underwood.
Executive Committee—J. M. Beaty, chairman, C. W. Carter, J. H. Boon, F. P. Wood and Alonzo Parrish.

The session was an interesting one and was largely attended, nearly all of the churches in the association being represented. Among the visitors were, Rev. Livingston Johnson, Rev. Hight C. Moore, and Rev. J. S. Farmer, of Raleigh; Rev. S. F. Conrad, of Charlotte; Rev. G. P. Harrill, of Thomasville, and others. The next session of association will be held with Pisgah church, beginning on Thursday before the second Sunday in November, 1907.

The good people of the Clyde's Chapel section are to be congratulated for the splendid manner in which they entertained the association.

Give a Minute's Help.

Every newspaper wants to publish the news. The better the paper the more prosperous it will be. Local news items are especially hard to run down. How many times have you, dear reader, been approached by the newspaper man for an item of news and told him that you knew nothing of interest. Probably at the time your family were away on a visit or some one from out of town was visiting at your home. Of course you didn't mean to deceive the scribe, yet when you received your paper you wondered why your family or friends were not mentioned. A good way to avoid all of this is to kindly inform us of the facts or drop a note in the postoffice to the paper. The one item may not amount to much, but several columns of such news is the life of a local paper. See?—Exchange.

North Dakota's Wealth.

North Dakota is piling up wealth in a remarkable degree. It is no longer the land of mortgages. The mortgages have been paid, and now the older farmers have money in the bank. In 1900 the State had only twenty-seven national banks with deposits of over $5,000,000. It now has over one hundred national banks with deposits of over $18,000,000. There are over three hundred State banks, whose deposits far exceed those of the national banks.

As an index to its agricultural and industrial shipments, the fact is cited that while North Dakota does not have a city exceeding in population 18,000, yet it has fully forty shipping points on one railway line whose freight receipts each exceed $100,000 a year. This indicates how wealth is being accumulated.—Joe Mitchell Chapple, in "North Dakota," in National Magazine for November.

A Judge Who Reforms Parents as Well as Children.

Ben B. Lindsey, the "just" judge of Denver—the man who saves young criminals and who turns "bad kids" into good citizens—the leader of boys' gangs, and the friend to whom the children of Denver turn when they are in trouble—has to fight. He is "up against" the "ring," just as every reformer in the country is "up against" it. In the November McClure's, Lincoln Stephens, who in a preceding article has described the fascinating work of this man, tells the story of "the opposition."

This is a story for every mother and father in the country to read and ponder over. Judge Lindsey has to fight the machine; but he has also to encounter the prejudice and antagonism of "fool" fathers and incompetent mothers "who haven't enough love for children to understand them, nor enough character to hold their respect." The account of Judge Lindsey's work with parents is as interesting as that of his work with children.

Penning Up Young Hogs.

No greater mistake can be made in caring for young hogs than confining them in pens. It is ruinous to those that are to be kept for breeding purposes and injurious to those that are to be fattened. Every young animal must have exercise in order to develop fully and naturally. When the pigs are confined, nature's plans are hindered and the owner is the loser. It is also expensive to feed entirely from the pail or basket, as one has to do to pigs that are confined. A pig that has not had an opportunity to develop naturally never did nor ever can put his feed to as good a use as one that has had exercise out in a pasture and a variety of feed that a good pasture will give. More pig pastures, cheaper pork. More pig pastures, healthier pigs, which also means better pork. What has the poor pig done that he should be imprisoned in a mud hole all his life? Give him a reasonable opportunity and he will be making you money nights as well as days.

Many a farmer has paid a fancy price for a boar and then confined him so closely that he was utterly ruined. More exercise and less corn will apply to nearly every sire that is kept in the belt.—Northwestern Agriculturist.

One Way to Solve the Labor Problem.

The high price of farm lands in the West may have a marked effect upon the destinies of the State of Maryland, and indeed of the South as a whole. Will people be willing to pay $100 or more for farm lands in the Middle West when lands south of Mason and Dixon's line, where the climates are better and markets more accessible, can be had for one-tenth the price demanded on the bleak and remote prairies? Mr. A. F. Trappe, secretary of the Maryland Bureau of Immigration, who recently, in company with the Commissioner, Mr. W. T. P. Turpin, made a trip "through the Northwest, gave the readers of The Sun on Monday the benefit of his observations. Mr. Trappe is convinced that the farm lands of the West will continue to be held at high prices, and that immigrants of modern means who wish to engage in farming will in the near future be compelled to turn their faces to the South. There are three times as many negroes in this country now as there were when Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation. And yet the Southern planters, like those in Maryland, find it next to impossible to procure labor for the proper cultivation and harvesting of their crops. If the recommendation of the commission sent over here by the Manchester cotton spinners is adopted, a great deal of farm land in the cotton States may be purchased by Englishmen to raise cotton for the British mills. The cultivation of cotton at 10 cents a pound and upward, the prevailing prices at this time, can be very profitable. If men of moderate means who do their own work would buy small farms in Maryland and the South, they could establish for themselves good and prosperous homes and solve the labor problem.—Baltimore Sun.
