

How to Cure Chronic Colds and Bronchitis

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910. "I was sick for two years with a chronic cold and bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors, and had to give up work. VINOL was recommended and from the second bottle I commenced to improve—I gained in weight and strength, my cold and bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again. I want to recommend VINOL to anyone who is in need of such a medicine."—THOMAS HIGGINS.

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron contained in VINOL which makes it so successful in curing stubborn colds and bronchitis.

VINOL is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles, not a palliative like cough syrups.

Try a bottle of VINOL. If you don't think it helped you, we will return your money.

THE INAUGURATION OF DR. FEW.

The inauguration of Dr. William Preston Few, the newly elected President of Trinity College, at Durham recently was an affair of large importance to the educational interests of North Carolina and to the entire South. In response to invitations sent out by Trinity College one hundred and fifty delegates from the leading Universities and Colleges of the United States were present to do honor to the occasion. Among those attending were: Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago; A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University; Gov. W. W. Kitchin; Bishop J. C. Kilgo, and President Hamilton, of Tufts College. A host of interested alumni was there to witness the formal induction of the new president and to participate in part of the exercises of the day that in a large way marks the beginning of a new era for Trinity College and in at least some measure the beginning of a new era for educational interests of the entire state. The College is very fortunate in getting an executive who has been for many years familiar with the history and policy of the institution. The new president does not have to acquire an interest in the College for in his position as Professor of English he has been in thorough sympathy with its ideals.

The first thing on the programme was the enrollment of delegates and guests which took place in the west wing of the Washington Duke Building, from 9:00 to 9:30 in the morning. Next was the exercises of the presentation of the new building, from 9:30 to 10:00 A. M. The most spectacular part of the programme was the academic procession in which the professors, alumni, members of the board of trustees, honorable delegates, and guests participated. The ceremony of induction was very impressively performed by retiring President Kilgo, now Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. After the induction Gov. W. W. Kitchin made a speech of congratulation in behalf of the Commonwealth, and President Harry Pratt Judson, of the University of Chicago, spoke in behalf of the honorable delegates. The inaugural address of President Few has attracted much attention in educational circles. In his address he gave his conception of the place a Southern College ought to fill and stated clearly what Trinity College ought to undertake. A high ideal for any college is very interestingly expressed in the following words: "We here have no ambition to be miscalled a university; we are not even concerned that this shall be a 'big' college; but we are immensely concerned that it shall be a shining place where high-minded youth may catch aspirations to true character and genuine excellence, and whence into this vast experiment in Democratic government that is being tried out on the American continent, there shall go a long succession of men who have been trained to think straight and to think through to right conclusions, and made strong by the power to know the truth and the will to live it."

At 1:00 P. M., a luncheon was served to the delegates, guests and trustees of the College. Chancellor Jas. H. Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University, was toast master. Many brilliant after-dinner speeches were made on this occasion. At this luncheon perhaps as at no other part of the programme one was better able to gain an idea of what this day in the history of Trinity College should mean not along to Trinity but to the cause of education in the state. All came away feeling that a new era was that day ushered in. J. M. O.

MATTERS OF INTEREST.

A letter recently issued from the office of Dr. Knapp, head of the demonstration work of the United States Department of Agriculture, contains some interesting suggestions with regard to a winter cover crop. He suggests the planting of cowpeas in the corn at the time of the last cultivation. After the corn is harvested in September the cowpeas should be pastured. Early in November the land should be broken deep and planted to rye, about one bushel being used to the acre. Rye is preferable to either oats or barley in that it is hardier and is better adapted to poor soils. Where the soil is adapted, the addition of a peck of vetch to every bushel of rye used in seeding will be found to have beneficial results. The planting of rye and vetch between the rows of cotton in October has shown some excellent results. Crimson clover used similarly in corn fields is a variation of the same general principle which is worth considering.

Summing up the desirability of a winter cover crop, Dr. Knapp points out that such a crop largely prevents loss of soil fertility by washing and evaporating and tends to keep down the seeding of the land to fowl weeds. It adds greatly to the humus which is essential to the fertility of any soil. It utilizes land which would otherwise stand idle and furnishes pasture of a very valuable type. On these grounds more attention to such crops is urged and the letter concludes with the unquestionably sound statement: "The farmer who does not try to get all he can out of his land and yet leave it in condition to yield more the following season has mistaken his vocation."

At the recent State fair in Raleigh 93 boys entered corn exhibits. Some of these were fine and all were good. The yields per acre were in every case beyond the average. With the boys leading in this good work and the application of the best methods the possibility of the future is extremely bright for the corn crop of North Carolina. This State can grow corn and with the assistance of the State Department of agriculture we will soon see five bushels of corn raised where one was raised before. A corn school is to be held at the A. & M. in Raleigh in January and everybody is invited. When the corn needed is raised here in the State and the cotton money kept at home our Old North State will become one of the richest of the union.

Work horses and mules should have the best food and well balanced rations as prepared by a leading expert are given here:

Corn, 10 pounds; oil meal, one pound; hay 15 pounds.

Another: Corn, 5 pounds; bran 5 pounds; hay 15 pounds.

And still another, and this is said to be one of the best.

Corn, 6 pounds; oats 3 pounds; bran one pound; hay 15 pounds.

Recently a home-made plantation van drawn by a gasoline engine hauled forty bales of cotton, weighing over 22,000 pounds to the market at Americus, Georgia. The cotton was from the farm of Captain Council, located four miles from the market, but there was a well improved road leading past the farm to Americus. On the ordinary roads of Johnston County, it would have taken possibly ten or a dozen wagons with at least double that number of mules to have hauled the load and if the weather happened to be bad it would have required more. The necessity is good roads. Even the gasoline engine would have stalled if the roads were not good. Agitation in favor of the graded and well built road is the need of this good day. Macadam is not always necessary. Sand-clay roads, such as can be built in any section of this county would be a great improvement over present conditions.

Every town needs organization looking forward to the improvement of conditions. To build up the town demands united action and earnest effort. A splendid commodity is "hot air" but this alone will not produce the desired result. The business and professional men must come together and unitedly, determinedly work for the upbuilding and improvement of the community. It will require money, not necessarily a large amount, but some is needed. It will require work—lots of it. The men of affairs and finance in the East and North have their eyes on the South. They are fully aware of its tremendous opportunities for investment and money is turning this way. Every community should be awake to their possibility and especially is this the time to move things in this section.

Hold the Right Ideals.

We not only can strengthen mental weaknesses and deficiencies, but it is perfectly possible to increase the general ability through the power of suggestion, says Orison Sweet Marden in "Success Magazine." Indeed, the susceptibility of all the mental faculties to improvement, to enlargement, is something remarkable.

Sometimes very strong faculties are latent until especially aroused. There are many people who pass for cowards; who are humiliated because they have so little courage, when, if they only knew how, they could strengthen this deficient faculty wonderfully by holding the courageous ideal; by thinking and doing the courageous deed; by carrying the thought of fearlessness; by reading about heroic lives; by constantly thinking the heroic thought and trying to live it. The courage may be small in a person because it has never been called into sufficient exercise. It may need only to be aroused. There are many people living of mediocrity who might do great things; might become mental giants if their dormant faculties were aroused, their general ability improved and enlarged.

Saves an Iowa Man's Life.

The very grave seemed to yawn before Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Iowa, when, after seven weeks in the hospital, four of the best physicians gave him up. Then was shown the marvelous curative power of Electric Bitters. For, after eight months of frightful suffering from liver trouble and yellow jaundice, getting no help from other remedies or doctors, five bottles of this matchless medicine completely cured him. Its positively guaranteed for Stomach, Liver or Kidney troubles and never disappoints. Only 50c at Hood Bros.

The municipal officials of New York required last year stationery valued at $1,300,000.
