2-YEAR BABY WEIGHS 122.

Georgia Youngster Can Eat a Boiled Dinner Topped With Whole Pie.

Mount Airy, Ga., June 27.—James Adolph Cody, 2 years and 3 months old, now weighs 122 pounds, and is growing every day. With the first indication of his abnormal growth, his parents consulted a physician, and James Adolph was put under his care. All efforts to keep the baby on a diet suitable for one of his age proved unsuccessful. His measurements are:

Height, 39 inches barefoot; around the thigh, 22 1/2 inches; neck, 14 inches; bust, 33 inches; waist, 36 inches; around arm, above elbow, 12 inches; wrist, 8 inches; across hand above thumb, 6 1/4 inches; around first finger near hand, 2 1/2 inches; above knee, 16 inches; below knee, 13 inches; ankle, 9 inches; around foot, 8 1/2 inches; length of foot, 5 1/2 inches; across shoulders, 15 inches.

He sleeps well and is perfectly healthy and very strong. His appetite is more like a grown person's than a baby. For breakfast he will eat three and four large biscuits, with bacon gravy, butter, and syrup, two glasses of buttermilk, and if allowed will drink two cups of coffee. Between breakfast and dinner he will eat two more biscuits with butter and syrup. For dinner he can eat a large plate of greens or any kind of vegetables, with boiled bacon, corn bread biscuit, and a whole pie, if he can get it, with two glasses of buttermilk. He eats again between dinner and supper, and his supper is in keeping with breakfast and dinner.

The fly and the chatauca orator hold undisputed sway.—Charlotte News.

SOMEWHAT PARAGRAPHY.

In Pittsburg a horse hitched to a brewery wagon bit off the ear of a man who was standing near on the street. Another case charged up to near-beer.—Greenville Reflector.

If a man is really opposed to good roads, he ought to think a long time before letting anybody else know he is in such a back-number class.—Greenville Reflector.

That Georgia mayor who sentenced a man to go to church for getting drunk might have made the sentence more severe by compelling the defendant to read the Congressional Record.—Durham Sun.

Have you ever observed how little talent and standing it takes to be a first class 'knocker'? You will find that in about nine cases out of every ten the fellow who has accomplished little for himself and done less for the community in which he lives is the one who wants to 'knock' everybody and every thing. When you find that you are just bound to give vent to your pent up feeling by doing some 'knocking' get you some sort of an implement and go to the field and knock clods.—Henderson Gold Leaf.

During this exceeding hot weather it is very important that all citizens should look well to their premises, clean up the back lots, burn the trash and scatter lime freely in all gutters and around fences, back yard and unused portions of the lot. By following the plan it is possible that fever and various other diseases may be averted and besides it will be a good thing to clean up anyway.—Spencer Crescent.

There is one man essential to the welfare of this or any other town. The average every day citizen who lives within his means, cares little for social functions or society shining, who pays his debts, is the man after all who is helping most to build up this and every other town. He is not only the kind of man who is making this town but he is the man who will keep it going. This fellow about whom we are talking is the salt of the earth. Sometimes he is a storekeeper, a shop hand or day laborer, sometimes he is a professional man. No matter what his station in life; he is always on the job and can be depended on.—Asheboro Courier.

Out there in Kansas City a convention voted for the union of the Baraca and Philathea Bible Classes of the country. Hold! If you give them a little time they will effect the union all right, and the preachers will prosper more on the one-couple-at-a-time plan than by this wholesale business.—Richmond Virginian.

To find the best in farm life we must not only increase farming profits, but there must be a keener appreciation of the joys of living near to nature, and a greater regard for the beauty and the culture that we may find only in a study of such things as we have just suggested. In an age too much given to hurry and materialism there is especial need that we shall remember the admonition of the Master and take time to "consider the lilies, how they grow."—Raleigh (N. C.) Progressive Farmer.

The Ubiquitous and Pesticiferous Fly.

His name is legion and his mission is the transportation of the germs of disease and death. As numerous and as dangerous as he is, he certainly demands more attention than we are accustomed to giving him. The elimination, or better, the extermination, of the fly is a matter that should engage the serious attention of communities and individuals, of municipal health boards as well as cleanly and careful housewives.

The fly is bred in filth. Its eggs are laid in manure or similar refuse, and in ten days the adult fly emerges and begins its dangerous activities. We have read that twelve generations of flies develop each season. Wherever there is filth of any kind upon the premises it is the breeding-place of flies, and great swarms of them are constantly going forth to threaten the health, and even the life, of the home.

Bred in filth, the fly is a bearer of filth all its life. They swarm in cesspools, manure piles, garbage, only to emerge covered with disease germs, which they at once proceed to deposit wherever they touch, principally upon the food we eat, because they bear one resemblance at least to human-kind, they are fond of something good. In such a fashion are the germs of intestinal disease disseminated. Particularly is this true of typhoid fever. The fly comes in contact with human excrement, often the discharges of typhoid patients, and proceeds forthwith to carry the germs and distribute them wherever he is permitted entrance.

One of the problems of health and cleanliness, therefore, is the elimination of the fly. To do this demands scrupulous cleanliness and constant vigilance. The warfare against the fly is an unending one, but victory, comfort and peace of mind await whoever will enlist intelligently and persistently in the conflict.

First, the premises must be kept clean. Garbage and refuse of all kinds must be burned or placed in covered cans. Scraps and crumbs from the table should be gathered after meals and immediately destroyed. Suspicious places should be sprinkled with kerosene oil.

The home should be screened and kept dark, especially such places as food is prepared and served in. And constant resort should be made to fly paper and such preparations as prove effective in their destruction. To follow these instructions carefully and constantly will give one practical deliverance from the fly. To fail to do so subjects one to the dangers that attend his unwelcome presence.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson, a prolific writer upon subjects of health and hygiene, said, in a recent article, that the day would come when the good housekeeper would be as much humiliated by the presence of flies in her home as by the presence of midnight marauders upon her beds. May that day speedily arrive. Let our municipalities and our intelligent citizenship begin at once an uncompromising campaign against his apparently insignificant but deadly foe.—Richmond Virginian.

Every bottle warranted, but not one returned, is the report regarding DR. SETH ARNOLD'S BALSAM (the best Summer Remedy) from a large number of Druggists in the South. This Balsam is warranted to you by Hood Brothers.

The fly is present but his room is preferable to his company.—Greenville Reflector.

DOWNWARD COURSE.

Fast Being Realized by Smithfield People.

A little backache at first. Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak.

Urinary disorders quickly follow; Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.

This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Smithfield residents should profit by the following experience:

Weyley Henson, East St., Dunn, N. C., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for lame back and kidney complaint and they have been of more benefit to me than any other medicine I have ever tried. My back bothered me a great deal and often was so lame and sore that I could hardly stoop or lift. The secretions from my kidneys passed irregularly and were unnatural. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me as soon as I began taking them and I can now rest well and am better in every way."

The Journey Home.

Years and years ago, when I Was just a little lad, An' after school hours used to work Around the farm with dad, I used to be so wearied out When eventide was come, That I got kinder anxious like About the journey home.

But dad, he used to lead the way, An' once in a while turn 'round an' say— So cheerin'-like, so tender—"Come! Come on, my son, you're nearly home!"

That allers used to help me some, An' so I followed father home.

I'm old an' gray an' feeble now, An' trimbly at the knee, But life seems just the same to-day As then it seemed to me, For I am still so wearied out, When eventide is come, An' still get kinder anxious-like About the journey home.

But still my Father leads the way, An' once in a while I hear Him say, So cheerin'-like, so tender—"Come! Come on, my son, you're nearly home!" An' same as then, that helps me some, An' so I'm followin' Father home.

Opportunity.

When the United States Steel Corporation selected James A. Farrell as its President it exploded the popular fallacy that no opportunities exist to-day for young men.

At 16 Mr. Farrell entered the world of industry as a common laborer. At 50 he is President of the largest corporation in the world with a salary of $100,000.

Charles M. Schwab and William E. Corey, who preceded Mr. Farrell in the Presidency of the United States Steel Corporation, also began at the very bottom of the ladder and climbed from menial positions to affluence.

Rockefeller, Carnegie, Stillman, Russell Sage, Jay Gould, George W. Perkins, James J. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan and scores of other captains of industry began life without inherited wealth.

The future lies rosy before the young man of honesty, courage and pluck. His chance was never better than to-day.—Nashville Tennessean.
