Sometimes the rarest gems of philosophy originate from the old-time Southern darkey, of which every town may contain one or more. The Country for a Start.

Statisticians reel off percentages which show that country boys in town and city lead the procession when they follow the trail that takes them from rural scenes to urban activities. In the colleges and universities they make their mark. In the shops and factories, in banks and stores, in the professions and in every business there is a goodly percentage of men who have had personal and early knowledge of fields and farm.

The other day Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, went to his birthplace, cashier). Then he started down the street to exchange greetings with old friends and neighbors of his youth and young manhood. A Gary family reunion was held that day on the place which his father bought from the Government in pioneer days at $1.25 an acre. Amid such surroundings it was natural for the Judge to say:

"I have no rule for success, but I would advise every young man to get his start in the country. It will make him healthy, intellectually and morally. That doesn't mean that all his work is done for him just because he lives in the country instead of the city. But it gives him a better chance.

"When I gave advice to young people 20 years ago it meant that young men would be listening. Now it means that young women will be listening just as hard, for in this coun try today there is no opportunity which is not open to women as well as men."

Judge Gary has a right to speak as a countryman. He was the first Mayor of Wheaton, then Judge of Dupage county, long before he entered upon a career of financial and industrial world that has brought him acknowledged leadership. He knows both country and city. His start in the country gave him some thing he would have missed if he had been born in the city. But he found his way there. He arrived .- Philadelphia Record.

The "Majestic," The World's Largest Ocean Liner.

Allocated by the treaty of Versailles to the British government, and sold by it to the White Star Line, the former German steamship "Bismarck" has been converted into the liner, "Majestic," very suitably named, for it is the world's largest ship, and is many ways the most luxuriously fitted vessel afloat, says Henry S. White, in an illustrated article in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine. This ocean-borne palace is 956 feet long, 100 ft. broad, its hull is 102 ft. deep, and its tonnage is 56,000. It has nine decks, with a total area of 7 1-2 acres, and its main deck is 75 ft. above water. It has accommodations for 4,100 passengers

Besides the luxuriously furnished then answered: "Please ,teacher, they has second and third-class quarters the other parts of the ship.
