Yates Circle To Meet
The Yates Circle of the Baptist church will meet at the home of Mrs. J. C. Stancil Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. This will be a meeting of much importance to the members and all are urged to be present.

OPERETTA PLEASES LARGE AUDIENCE
The Operetta presented at the High School auditorium last Friday evening under the auspices of the Woman's Club pleased a goodly number of music-lovers of the town. The program was given by local talent, Misses Frances White and Helen Jones having the entertainment in charge. The Woman's Club is deeply grateful to all those taking part and especially to the directors. A neat sum was realized for the treasury of the club.

TOWNSHIP SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING AT FOUR OAKS
Miss Daisy McGee, of Raleigh, employed by the N. C. S. S. Association to assist in the work of organization and grading, has been in Johnston for several days recently.
A very enthusiastic meeting was held in Four Oaks last Wednesday evening at the Baptist church. Representatives from the three Sunday schools of the town were present and heard Miss McGee deliver a splendid address on "The Call of Trained Leadership." After her talk, a township organization was completed. The following officers were elected: president, R. E. Bain; vice-president, B. I. Tart; secretary-treasurer, S. W. Brown; superintendent of Junior Work, Mrs. William Adams.

Demonstration Agents Hold Conference
Twelve home demonstration agents from counties near Raleigh spent three days last week in Raleigh studying clothing work given by Miss Helen Estabrook, specialist in clothing and household furnishing for the home demonstration division of the State College Extension Service. Miss Minnie Lee Garrison, Home Agent of Johnston County was among those attending this course.

COFFIN OF LINCOLN OPENED SECRETLY IN 1902, REVEALED
Galesburg, Ill., Feb. 1.—M. O. Williamson, former State Treasurer of Illinois, eighty-five, today broke a silence of more than twenty-two years and told how he, with fifteen others, opened the coffin of Abraham Lincoln, on September 20, 1902, gazed at the body of the great emancipator and then closed and sealed the coffin, which was bedded in solid concrete, never again to be exposed to mortal eyes.
Williamson was a member of the Board of Trustees of the Lincoln monument, and as the time drew near for the placing of the body of Lincoln under the monument, the board decided, with the consent of Robert Lincoln, the son, to open the coffin before it was sealed forever. Robert T. Lincoln agreed to the proposal, to set at rest rumors that ghouls had carried away his father's ashes. But the son swore all members of the board to secrecy. He declined to be present.

"We had to certify that the body was actually in the coffin," Mr. Williamson said today. "So on the night in question we secretly assembled at the Springfield, Ill., cemetery, within the new monument and the sarcophagus was carried into the room. Workmen opened the casket with chisels. It was a red cedar box lined with copper, which had been sealed with solder."

"When the copper covering the bust was bent back, we reverently bent forward."

"There was Lincoln, looking just his last pictures, seemingly asleep. His face was darker than yours or mine now. But that was to be expected. Otherwise there was scarcely a change. His features stood out as they had been engraved in my memory from pictures of him."

"It seemed as though we might have spoken to him and awakened him."

"He wore a black bow tie like the one I have on, and one bow was slightly mildewed. But those were the only signs of decomposition we could observe."

"It was an impressive occasion."

"Then the casket was again sealed."

"Robert Lincoln had offered to furnish a steel cage in which to place the coffin before it was set in concrete and placed under the monument. His father-in-law, George M. Pullman, had been buried in a coffin placed within steel bars to prevent tampering."

So he furnished the cage and it was used to contain the coffin. Outside was the block of concrete eight feet square. The entire mass was placed ten feet below the base of the Springfield monument and I have no fear that the casket will ever be seen again.

"America may rest assured that the body of President Lincoln will never be disturbed in its resting place, and I shouldn't wonder if that kindly, thoughtful, sympathetic face is the same today as when we secretly gazed upon it. No air can reach the interior of the casket and decomposition should be resisted for years."

"Richard Yates, now Congressman-at-large from Illinois, was Governor at the time and was on the monument board. But he was away from Springfield at the time and missed the occasion. I have had wealthy men tell me that they would give half their fortunes to have seen Lincoln's body."

"Several attempts were made by outsiders to be present when rumors of the opening got out, but even newspaper men were absent."

Of the sixteen who were present, only eight are now alive. They are aging rapidly. Robert Lincoln lives in Washington, D. C., but is in feeble health.—New York World.
