To Erect Handsome Residence

A permit was granted yesterday to Mr. Robert Parrish and his son, Major Robert E. Parrish, of Washington, D. C. to erect a handsome brick dwelling on North Second Street. The building will have eight rooms and will cost around $10,000. Mr. Junius Peterson is the contractor.

Rev. Chester Alexander To Preach Here Sunday

Rev. Chester Alexander, of Richmond, Va., who has recently accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church here and of Oakland church here, will preach in the pulpit next Sunday morning and Sunday night, and at Oakland at three o'clock in the afternoon. The Smithfield and Oakland people are to be congratulated upon securing him as their pastor as he is considered an outstanding preacher sent out by the Union Theological Seminary.

About a year ago when the nation observed Golden Rule Sunday, a prize was offered the town that observed it the best. A trip to the Near East and the Holy Land for a representative from the winning town was the prize offered. Chester, S. C., was adjudged the best observer of Golden Rule Sunday, and Rev. Mr. Alexander was chosen as its representative to visit the Near East and the Holy Land. Accordingly, he spent four months there during the past summer and he will be able from time to time to give his hearers interesting facts of the land of Christ as it is today.

Mr. Alexander will graduate at the Seminary on May 15 and expects to take up his work here soon after that time.

CROWNING QUEENS LOVELY CEREMONY

Episode three by Smithfield banished civilizations and the Spirit of the Wilderness entered and claimed the fair earth. The Spirit of the Wilderness was impersonated by Miss Nell Broadhurst and as she called forth the daisies, wild roses and butterflies to inhabit the earth, it was indeed a beautiful picture.

Episode four by Pine Level was a continuation of the preceding scene, groups of dancing Dryads, grasshoppers, bluebirds and poppies answering the call.

Selma presented episode five which introduced a group of pioneer men and women who conquered the wilderness and the Spirit of the Wilderness and their groups made their exit with bowed heads.

Episode six was put on by Kenly and the famous "tea party" at Edenton was made to live before the eyes of the spectators. The tea party closed with an old fashioned minuet engaged in by gentlemen and dames in powdered wigs and colonial costumes.

Episode six presented by Wilson's Mills was particularly refreshing, portraying the life of the old time slaves, showing soldiers in readiness for battle, and a farewell minuet.

Four Oaks presented episode eight in which the spirit of State and the Little Town Spirit were introduced. Master Elvin Lee, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Lee, of Four Oaks, brought down the house with his clog dancing and he responded to the prolonged applause for an encore.

The last episode by Princeton revealed the true spirit of patriotism felt by all eastern North Carolinians.

The patriotic ideas predominated throughout the scene.

Micro was to have presented a tenth episode in which organizations that benefit boys and girls and grown-ups to have been depicted, but owing to some misunderstanding concerning the use of Boy Scout uniform, it had to be omitted.

Those in charge of the various episodes were as follows: Smithfield, Miss Glenn Ward; Clayton, Miss Jessie Eason; Wilson's Mills, Mrs. Carl K. Parrish; Benson, Mrs. W. T. Martin; Kenly, Mrs. J. M. Woolard; Four Oaks, Mrs. William Adams; Selma, Miss Clell Branham; Micro, Mrs. Annie Parker; Pine Level, Mrs. D. B. Oliver; Princeton, Miss Lelia Straughn.

The judges awarded the prize for the best episode to Smithfield, Kenly being named as next best.

Apple In High Place as Family Physician

This is what an apple does to one: It starts the secretions into vigorous action and floods the system with a new tide of life.

It is a friend to health and a foe to disease.

It is a food, tonic, condiment and cosmetic all in one.

It kindles the brilliancy of the eye, and it plants rose in the cheeks.

You cannot eat too many—after the heartiest meal there is always room for an apple.

An apple is a social fruit; it draws human beings together in fellowship.

Plenty of good apples will keep the children at home and in at night—husbands as well—and keep the doctor away.

It promotes temperance.

It appears on our table in many appetizing forms.

Raw fruit, as it comes fresh and crisp from the trees and the refrigerators, needs no culinary art to improve it.

A knife spoils it; let it be crushed and crunched in the mouth, and then it gives out its richest flavor and yields the greatest satisfaction.

The apple family contains in its varieties exquisite flavors adapted to all tastes.

It is the oldest of our known food necessities.—American Pomological Society Bulletin.

HAVE GOOD STANDS TO GET GOOD YIELDS

Raleigh, April 20.—It is a disheartening thing for a farmer to have to cultivate and care for a crop when the stand is thin. A perfect stand is essential to biggest acre yields, whether the crop is planted in rows or broadcasted.

Prof. C. R. Hudson of the farm demonstration division at State College states that to have a good stand of any kind of crop, four things are essential—good soil preparation, sound and well matured seed, proper planting and carefulness in spacing and cultivation.

"Soil that is not properly broken and disked or harrowed will hardly ever give good results," says Prof. Hudson. "There is a lack of uniform germination and growth of plants. This is true where the seed bed is either hard and dry, with clods everywhere, or if it is too open and porous on account of being recently broken."

"It pays to plant seed that have a germination test of around 90 percent, and enough seed should be planted to assure a good stand. This will make thinning necessary later but when this is done the stand should not be destroyed. Tests with cotton show, that as a rule, the plants are not left thick enough in the row. On poor land, the rows should not be over three feet apart; but on rich land the rows may be wider. It is best to leave the cotton the width of the hoe apart with from one to three stalks in the hill."

Mr. Hudson states that some farmers have secured excellent stands by delimiting their cotton seed before planting or by wetting them thoroughly and rolling in ashes, soil or commercial fertilizer. Too much fertilizer on the seed may kill some of them. He states that not less than one and one-half to two bushels of seed per acre should be planted.

THIS LIFE

How are you living your life—spending it or squandering it? Toiling, working, pursuing happiness, undergoing sorrow, trouble, and worry? These, of course, are our natural heritage; we must take one with the other. All are inevitable and cannot be avoided.

But, how are you living your life? Do you meet each day's joys or sorrows as they befall you, enjoying to the full the happiness the day brings forth, and manfully fighting the sorrows that shadow your path? Or do you take the joys lightly as a matter of course, and fall despondent, helpless, before the sorrows?

Are you getting all out of life that you should; treating your neighbor as yourself, sharing your joys and thereby multiplying them, and helping to lighten the burdens of others?

Time is fleeting and life is far too short to spend even a small part of it in idleness, despondency and strife. Live your life. Make it real, make it earnest. Let it matter not how long we live, but how well.—N. C. Cotton Grower.
