Said sale will take place in front of the Court-house door in Smithfield, at 12 o'clock noon. This July 11th, 1925.

A. M. NOBLE, Commissioner

CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION.

State of North Carolina. Department of State.

To All to Whom These Present May Come—Greetings:

Whereas, it appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders, deposited in my office, that the SANDERS MOTOR COMPANY, a corporation of this State, whose principal office is situated at Market Street, in the town of Smithfield, County of Johnston, State of North Carolina (W. Ransom Sanders being the agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of Chapter 22, Consolidated Statutes, entitled "Corporation," preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution:

Now, Therefore, I, W. N. Everett, Secretary of State of North Carolina, do hereby certify that the said corporation did, on the 6th day of July, 1925, file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing to the dissolution of said corporation, executed by all the stockholders thereof, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereto set my hand and affixed my official seal at Raleigh, this 7th day of July A. D. 1925.

W. N. EVERETT, Sec. of State

Mrs. Ila Cole Dead

On Friday, July 3, Mrs. Ila Cole quietly went to her reward after a brief illness. She had lived a friend and neighbor that won for her a place in the hearts of those who knew her.

Her loyalty to Blackman's Grove Baptist church, where she was a member, was outstanding. She was faithful to attend the services and was always ready to do her part in the church work.

Mrs. Cole was buried on Saturday, July 4. She was the first person to be put on the new cemetery site at Blackman's Grove church. From now on this cemetery will be used in general by the church. Her pastor, Rev. Jas. A. Ivey, conducted the service which was attended by a large crowd of sympathetic friends. Thus ended the life career of a good woman who had lived almost half a century.

How and Why Cloth Is Made Black

The two important reasons for dyeing cloth are said to be, first to make it more ornamental; and second, to make it less obviously soiled. The latter motive explains, in part, why black—including various shades of gray—is the commonest color applied to woolen goods. But black has other important qualities of practical usefulness, as J. Merrit Matthews reminds us, in the Color Trade Journal and Textile Chemist (New York). For example:

"When shades go wrong for one reason or another in the dyehouse and the error is such that it can not be economically or properly corrected, there is always one bright idea to fall back on, and that is, turn them into black.

Renew Your Health by Purification

Any physician will tell you that "Perfect Purification of the System is Nature's foundation of Perfect Health." Why not rid yourself of chronic ailments that are undermining your vitality? Purify your entire system by taking a thorough course of Calotabs, —once or twice a week for several weeks—and see how Nature rewards you with health.

Calotabs are the greatest of all system purifiers. Get a family package, containing full directions, price 35 cts.; trial package, 10 cts. At any drug store. (Adv.)

This is possible because almost any color may be more or less satisfactorily turned into a black by proper over-dyeing, and this is particularly true in the case of the lighter and more common fashion shades that are usually experienced in dyeing. Black being one of the great staple colors and always in vogue to some extent at least, goods that are put into this color are never a loss because they are always rather readily marketable.

"There is another commercial phase in the matter of black dyeing, and this is brought about by the fact that every season has its fashion colors. These come and go, and are particular to the season in which they have been the vogue. A collection of fancy colors may be very popular and have a ready sale one season and pass out from the popular taste entirely the next season. There is no sale for them, and while it is the purpose of the merchandiser to make up these fashion shades in quantities only that will be absorbed in the season, there is always more or less odds and ends left over on the shelves. And then sometimes the fashion styler's guess wrong about a color taking the popular fancy, and they load up the shops with a color that does not go. Such odds are left over from the season, and generally recourse is had to turning these disappointments into the staple black color so that the goods may be gradually worked off.

"It needs not much illustration on our part to tell the fact that black is to be found almost universally as a color throughout the entire woolen fabric trade; suitings, dress-goods, overcoatings, hosiery, hat bodies and felts, house furnishings and articles for domestic use, draperies and carpets and rugs, various commercial and trade fabrics, even down to the black flag of the pirate and buccaneer; all of these materials call for the use of black dyeings.

"Nor has this condition been one of rather recent introduction, for we go back in history we still find that black was a most important color, and the dyed fabrics of antiquity indicate that black was universally employed."—The Literary Digest.

Lighting The Counties

The electric light and power line for the countryside is being gradually extended in North Carolina counties. Forsyth having recently built and equipped a community line. Cleveland was the pioneer in this direction and the farmers in almost every part of that county have been for months past enjoying all the blessings that accompany electricity in the home and on the farm for lighting purposes. The "difference" between domestic conditions on the farm and in the city are being rapidly reduced, and the advantages, such as they are, belong to the farm. "With all the conveniences of the city," life on the farm is made much the more preferable.—The Charlotte Observer.
