OTHERS—

"Lord, help me live from day to day
In such a self-forgetful way
That even when I kneel to pray,
My prayers shall be for others.

"Help me in all the work I do
Ever be sincere and true,
And know that all I do for you
Must needs be done for others.

"Others, Lord, yes, others,
Let this my motto be,
Help me to live for others,
That I may live for Thee."

A Delightful Birthday Dinner

On Sunday, October 18, the children and grandchildren of Rev. D. C. Johnson gathered at his home in the Hopewell section to celebrate his seventy-first birthday. By eleven o'clock all had gathered to spend the day. Mr. Johnson arranged seats in his living room and asked all to be seated, after which he spoke for a short while, basing his remarks upon the girls and boys of the Bible. He spoke for about thirty minutes appealing mostly to the girls and boys, his grandchildren. It was very much enjoyed by all. At the conclusion of his talk, he asked his grandchildren to sing "Smile, Always Smile," which they did very satisfactorily. He then asked all, both old and young, to join him in singing "Jesus, Lover of My Soul."

A table was arranged in the yard and all were asked to spread the contents of their boxes and in a short while the table was loaded to overflowing with everything good to eat that heart could wish for. Mr. Israel Stephenson was called on to return thanks and all began to help themselves until they could eat no more. Enough was taken up for another such a crowd.

Mr. Johnson has twenty grandchildren living. His children and grandchildren were all present as follows: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wallace and family, Mr. and Mrs. Mellic Johnson and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Langdon and family, and Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Stephenson and family. The invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Israel Stephenson, Sr., and Mr. J. E. Woodall.

CONSOLIDATED SCHOOLS BETTER THAN SMALL ONES

Comparing costs and results of education in consolidated and in one teacher schools in Connecticut shows that 29 per cent of pupils 14 years of age in one-room schools drop out during the school year, but only 8 per cent in consolidated schools drop out; 41 per cent of those 15 years of age in one-room schools drop out, as compared with 12 per cent in consolidated schools. The percentage of elimination in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth grades of one-teacher schools is approximately twice as great as in the same grades in consolidated schools. Of the teachers in one-teacher schools, 23 per cent have had two years or more of professional training, compared with 49 per cent in consolidated schools; and teachers in consolidated schools have on the average two years more experience than those in one-teacher schools.—School Life.
