Sapiro Helps To Present His Case

Appearance of Plaintiff In Million Dollar Suit In Role of Attorney Features Proceedings

DETROIT, Mich., Mar. 23.—Further limitation of the field of evidence, the listing in the record of more alleged libels, and the appearance of the plaintiff as an attorney were the net results of today's sessions of Aaron Sapiro's $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford.

The day was marked by several displays of temper by attorneys after ten days of nerve-racking court room work, nearly every minute of which has found lawyers for both sides on their feet fighting for an advantage.

All in all, it was another draggy session, with William Henry Gallagher, Sapiro's chief of counsel, referring to the soon-to-be-amended declaration, alleging 141 separate and distinct libels, and then reading from back numbers of the Ford-owned Dearborn Independent parts of articles to which exceptions were taken.

In the arduous task of reading, Gallagher was relieved four times by Sapiro. That was the extent of the plaintiff's active participation, although he was admitted to practice the day the trial was opened and since has advised Gallagher frequently in whispered conferences.

It was believed that the appearance of Mr. Ford as a witness has been pushed over into next week by the day's slow progress. It had been Gallagher's intention to call the motor car manufacturer Friday, but the attorney had intended to complete examination of William J. Cameron, editor of the Dearborn Independent, and call Fred L. Black, business manager of the weekly.

Federal Judge M. Raymond previously had denied the advisability of evidence concerning Ford's ideas about the Jewish race, and today he barred the introduction of letters from third persons written, according to Sapiro's counsel, to warn the Dearborn Independent of inaccuracies in its anti-Jewish articles and alleging unreliability of the writer, Harry H. Dunn, of Berkeley, California.—Associated Press.

Fire Burns Small House Wed. Night

House and Contents Are Total Loss; Work of Fire Company Saves Nearby Dwellings

Wednesday night about eleven o'clock, the second time this week, the fire department was called out and on this occasion a three-room frame house on Caswell street was found to be in a blaze. The fire seemed to have originated in the rear of the house but the cause of the fire is not known. There was no one in the house at the time it caught, and it is said no one had stayed there for several days. The owner, Eliza Cole, a negro woman, is in a Richmond hospital for treatment. The house was a complete loss, and none of the contents were saved. The loss of the building has been estimated at $750.

The fire company did good work to save the house of Asie Harris, colored, which was very close to the burned building. Nothing was removed from this house though its nearness placed it in danger.

OXFORD ORPHANS TO GIVE CONCERTS

The Singing Class of the Oxford Orphanage will give two concerts in Johnston county next week, one at Four Oaks and one in Smithfield. Mr. S. M. Mr. G. A. Martin, of this city, requests an announcement for Smithfield to the effect that the concert here will be on Tuesday evening, March 29, at the school auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock. This singing class has been at these places before and it needs no introduction. The programs rendered are always appealing, as well as the orphanage cause, and a large crowd will no doubt greet the young entertainers in both places.

The motion was allowed and they were discharged. David Creech was found guilty. He was sent to jail for 60 days to be worked on the county roads and was required to pay the cost. The road sentence was suspended upon the payment of $50 fine and the cost and upon condition that the defendant is not convicted for any offense in any court for the next two years.

David Creech and George Hollowman were found guilty of larceny in another case. Each was sentenced to jail for 60 days to be worked on the roads of Johnston county and taxed with half the cost. Wayne Physician Dies In His Office

Dr. Theodore L. Ginn Succumbs To Angina Pectoris; Funeral Held Tuesday Afternoon

GOLDSBORO, Mar. 22.—Dr. Theodore L. Ginn died suddenly at his office in the Wayne National Bank building at 11:30 Monday morning, his death being due to angina pectoris. He had not been well for about three weeks but had actively continued his practice.

Dr. Ginn was 48 years old. He was born and reared in Goldsboro and attended the Goldsboro public schools. He afterwards attended the Richmond Medical College and graduated there.

He practiced medicine in Goldsboro for 27 years. His wife was Miss Bertha Stevens, of Smithfield, who survives him. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. E. B. Wilson, and two brothers, R. L. and S. G. Ginn, all of Goldsboro.

Dr. Ginn was a man of unusual Christian character. He has been for many years a member of St. Paul Methodist church, was teacher of the Senior Philathea class, and under his guidance three young women have placed their lives in useful channels of church and Sunday school work. He did an unusual amount of charity work among the people unable to pay for it.

The funeral was conducted from the home at 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. J. M. Daniel, and the interment took place in Willowdale cemetery.

The active pallbearers were John Hicks, M. T. Dickinson, George Byrum, George Spence, John Hawley, Tom Dewey, Hal Armentrout, and Col. Geo. C. Freeman. The honorary pallbearers were members of the Wayne county medical society.

The large number of people present and the beautiful floral offering showed in some measure the regard in which he was held by the people of his community. The children of the Odd Fellows' Orphanage attended the funeral in a body. For a number of years Dr. Ginn had given his services to the orphanage without charge.

She may be heard from 4:15 to 4:30 and from 4:45 to five o'clock, Smithfield time. She will broadcast from the Chicago Daily News station at Hotel La Salle WMAQ, 448 wave length. Miss McCullers has an unusually sweet voice, and those who are able to tune in will undoubtedly enjoy a rare treat.

Col. Olds Speaks In Local School

The high school was agreeably surprised Tuesday morning by the appearance of Col. Fred A. Olds at the chapel exercises. Col. Olds gave a very interesting talk on the history of the War Between the States. His talk centered around the battle of Bentonville, and the junior reserves of the Confederacy, who played an important part in the battle. The junior reserves were boys under 18 years of age.

Col. Olds is regarded as one of the best known historians of the state. He was on his way to Bentonville where it is being planned to place a marker on the battlefield, near the monument which was erected years ago by the Goldsboro Riflemen.

MAD DOG KILLED IN THE POLENTA SECTION

A mad dog visited the Polenta community Tuesday morning, creating quite a bit of excitement in that section. He bit dogs as he passed houses, seven or eight being attacked by him early Tuesday morning. He also killed about twenty-five chickens along his route. Three automobiles loaded with men were following him when Mr. J. R. Holt shot and killed him. It is not known to whom the dog belonged.

PREACHING COUNTY HOME

Rev. D. C. Johnson will preach at the county home on Sunday afternoon, March 27, at three o'clock.

Committee Visits Old Battle Field

State U. D. C. President, Bentonville Memorial Committee and Col. Olds Visit Historical Spot in Johnston on 62nd Anniversary of Battle

Col. Fred A. Olds, of Raleigh, who, in company with Mrs. Walter Woodard, of Wilson, State U. D. C. President, Mrs. John Anderson, of Fayetteville, State Chairman of the Bentonville Memorial Committee, Mrs. W. M. Sanders, vice-chairman of the committee, Mrs. T. J. Lassiter, Miss Ruth Jones, Messrs. T. R. Hood, Chester Alexander and Geo. E. Thornton, visited the Bentonville battleground on Tuesday, the sixty-second anniversary of the battle, disclosed his ambitions in regard to perpetuating the memory of this remarkable conflict with an earnestness that suggested that his dreams might some day come true. First, Colonel Olds would see a state highway passing through the battleground. Next, he would have a suitable marker near the monument. And lastly, he would have the entire battlefield taken over by state or nation and preserved as a park with suitable markers and shrines to indicate the various lines of battle.

The visit of these state officials to this historic spot in Johnston county looks toward the unveiling of a suitable marker some time the last of August or the first of September. Too long has the battleground been neglected, but the indications now point toward a general awakening of interest, and it seems probable that a part of Col. Olds' ambition will be realized in the near future. Mrs. W. M. Sanders has manifested considerable interest in the battleground and under her personal supervision the monument erected a number of years ago by the Goldsboro Riflemen was recently repaired. The monument had fallen into decay, but the marble slabs have been fixed in cement and the weak places in its structure seem to have been remedied.

The sixty-second anniversary season seemed a particularly appropriate time for a visit to the battleground, and the state U. D. C. officials were delighted to find the trenches and breastworks so plainly discernible, having been preserved by nature in a very unusual way. Their satisfaction with the trip was enhanced when a part of an old musket bearing the date, 1862, and an inscription showing that it reached this country in a consignment from England, was picked up as they wandered over identical spot where the conflict ensued sixty-two years ago. A bullet chipped from a big pine tree was brought away as another souvenir of the battle.

Colonel Olds' knowledge of the battle and the reminiscences of Mr. T. R. Hood, who was eight years old at the time of the battle and whose father lived in the midst of the fighting area, made the occasion especially interesting. Mr. Hood recalled that in one night during the battle thirteen houses in the vicinity of his father's were burned. Mrs. Anderson displayed a picture of the village of Bentonville right after the battle, drawn by a member of Sherman's army. It appeared to be considerably more of a village than it is now.

After the trenches and breastworks had been inspected and a visit had been paid to the monument and to the old Harper house which was used as a hospital, the party proceeded to the Mill Creek spring near Mill Creek school, and after building up a big bonfire, enjoyed a picnic lunch.

After lunch the pupils of the Mill Creek school were given a delightful surprise when Colonel Olds accepted the invitation of the teacher, Miss Julia Rose, to tell stories. Colonel Olds in his inimitable style told two stories mimicking various well known birds and calling upon the children to recognize them.

One of the purposes of the visit was to consider the proper location of the marker which the state U. D. C. proposes to erect within the next few months. It was deemed wise, however, after visiting the grounds to defer the selection of a site until the Clinton-Henderson highway shall have been located. Every member of the state U. D. C. committee left the spot convinced that the center route being considered by the State Highway

Commission and which would pass within a hundred yards of the monument is the only logical route. The members of this committee pledged themselves to work for the establishment of this route.

Big Shad Haul Near Princeton

PRINCETON, Mar. 23.—Those who are happiest when on old Neuse River catching shad are having some lucky nights this week. Monday night Mr. Benton and Jesse Bass caught 17 shad weighing 60 pounds; George Warren and Willie Fail, nine shad; and H. A. Watson, county auditor, and Sheriff Turley, six shad. Tuesday night, Waverly Martin and Sidney Fail, nine shad; George Warren and Willie Fail 10 shad. There were many other parties in the river catching them at other places.

The regular monthly meeting of the Baptist Missionary Society was held at the church Tuesday evening with an unusually large attendance. Mrs. D. B. Oliver, Mrs. Strickland and several other ladies of the Baptist Missionary Society at Pine Level were guests of the society here at this meeting. The ladies were all very much pleased over the results of the joint meeting, claiming that much good will result from these meetings. Sandwiches and hot coffee were served. The ladies believe this to be one of their best meetings.

The friends and relatives of Mrs. Lester Aycock will be glad to learn that she is improving rapidly after being seriously ill for the past few weeks.

Mr. Clifton Holt is possibly the happiest man in town. It's a boy and a fine little chap, born on Thursday the 17th. Mother and baby are getting along nicely.

Earl Watson, Carlyle Woodard, Claiborn King and Robert Oliver, students at Chapel Hill, came down to spend the week end at their respective homes.

Miss Lissie Pearce, who is a member of the Four Oaks school faculty, spent the week end at her home here.

Rev. J. M. Dixon, from Wake Forest, preached at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and evening services. The church is at present without a regular pastor, and several excellent preachers have been looking over the work but as yet none have accepted. The Rev. W. O. Andrews from Wake Forest will preach next Sunday morning. Everybody is invited to attend this service.

Mr. Ed A. Holt has purchased the two-story residence on South Railroad street which was owned by Mrs. George T. Whitley, and has recently been occupied by Mrs. Straehan. After remodeling and painting, Mr. Holt will move his family to this new home.

Due to the condition of the weather last Tuesday the Four Oaks-Smithfield baseball game was put off until a later date. However, the local Hi will play Selma Hi Friday at the local diamond. The Selma team is a fast one and the locals are fast developing a speedy team.

Cadet Henry Royall, who has been at West Point for the past two years, was in the city Tuesday afternoon en route to his home in the Sanders Chapel section where he will spend several months on furlough. This young man graduated from the local high school two years ago, immediately going to West Point. This is his first trip home since he entered that institution.

Commission and which would pass within a hundred yards of the monument is the only logical route. The members of this committee pledged themselves to work for the establishment of this route.

Selma Sponsors Poultry Shipmen

Kiwanians Boost Poultry Car To Offset Loss of Cotton; Da of Shipment, Saturday April 9th

SELMA, Mar. 24.—Poultry raisers of this section will be interested in the announcement that shipment of poultry will be made from Selma Saturday April 9. A special poultry car will be placed on the Southern Railway sidetrack on that day and cash will be paid at the car door for chickens on all kinds, geese, turkeys, ducks and guineas brought in. The price to be paid will be given in a later edition of this paper.

The shipment is being sponsored by the Selma Kiwanis club and it is hoped that the farmers of this section will take advantage of this opportunity of disposing of their surplus poultry for cash. With the very low price of cotton prevailing, this means of carrying on was mapped out by the Kiwanis club after careful consideration.

Cars of poultry have been shipped from other counties and very satisfactory results have been obtained. In the sections where cotton is the only money crop, cars of poultry have been shipped more regularly and the farmers have been more than pleased with the prices paid for their poultry. For instance, a car of poultry was shipped from Dunn two weeks ago when 6,893 pounds of poultry was sold by 110 different people for a total of $1544.53.

This poultry will be shipped to the large northern markets where the demand is much greater than here. This insures a high market for poultry.

In preparing poultry for shipment carry out the following rules: Use well ventilated boxes, if you haven't coops, for bringing in the poultry.

Don't put too much poultry in one coop or box.

Don't tie legs of poultry and cram them in sacks.

Come early and avoid the rush. Don't stuff feed in poultry on the day of the sale.

MISSION STUDY CLASS HAS VERY GOOD MEETING

Kenly, Mar. 23.—The Mission Study class of the M. E. church met on Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage with Mrs. F. B. Joyner and Mrs. G. T. Whitley as hostesses.

The books for study is "Healing Ourselves, The First Task of the Church" by Elmer T. Clarke. The meeting was led by Mrs. Whitley, chairman of mission study. Mrs. A. H. Harrison gave a review of the chapter on "The Trail of the Forty-niners." Mrs. A. J. Broughton discussed the problems of the Acadians of Louisiana. Her topic was made particularly interesting by first hand information which she had gained from relatives who are at the head of a mission school in Houma of that state. Mrs. Whitley followed this with an account of the problems presented by the negroes of the south and the work being done among them. The program was concluded with a most interesting account of "The Highlanders of Appalachia," given by Mrs. C. F. Darden. The hostesses served delicious refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The next meeting of the class is next Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. C. F. Darden.
