Restraining Order Ruled Premature

Judge Harris Also States That Contract Let Before Publishing Ordinance Authorizing Bonds Would Be Illegal

The henring before Judge W. C. Harris in regard to the injunction taken out restraining furof a municipal building was held Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the courthouse here, a number of interested citizens becontentions of both sides of the case as presented by Abell and Shepard and Wellons and Wellons for the town, and L. G. Stevens for R. C. Gillett, who brought the restraining action. The judge then made the statement that the restraining order was premature having been served before the town board had published the dinance authorizing the bond issu for the building. He also made the statement that any contract made by the town board before said rdinance was published would have been illegal and void. It will be recalled that on

All Churches Gather to Hear Rev. A. M. Mitchell Deliver Farewell

SELMA, April 13 .- Sunday eveing, April 10, a union service was held in the Selma Baptist church. The object of the service was to give the people of the vaious denominations of the town an opportunity to hear Rev. A. M. Mitchell for the last time before he leaves to accept a pastorate in Camilla, Ga.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell has served he Presbyterian church in Selma for the past two years in such an acceptable manner that he has not nly endeared himself to his own ongregation, but to the town at arge. He has served as scoutmaster for the local troops, was a oyal Kiwanian and has identified mself with every forward moveent of the town and commun-
