Ford Roadster Runs Into Bus At Corner of Hancock and Third Streets Sunday

Sunday just about twelve o'clock. a Ford roadster in which four passengers were riding ran into the which plies between Raleigh and Goldsboro, at the intersection of Hancock and Third streets of this city, and was completely deished. Three of the occupants of the Ford, W. C. Willis, and his two sisters, Misses Mary and Leola Willis, were injured and were the Johnston County Hospital for treatment. The name of the other occupant who was young man, was not learned. Mr. Willis suffered the most serious injury, his right leg being severely lacerated and bruised, and he also sustained a bad bruise behind his right car. The Misses Willis were bruised considerably. They were able to return to their home near Lillington Sunday afternoon, The cause of the wreck was not lafe landing learned. It is said that the bus ran siderably to one side in an ef fort to avert the collision

BRIGHT OUTLOOK

FOR COTTON PRICES Indications now point to a good price for cotton this season. The 1926-1927 cotton year closed on July 31, and statistics are now upon which to base an opinion. The figures of Hester, a noted cotton expert of New Orleans, puts the carry-over at 7,200, 000 bales. The consumption last year of cotton, according to Hester, was 7,434,000 bales. world record of consumption times of peace. It appears that folks are using more cotton than ever before, whether in hurger quantities for the same old purposes or for new uses which have been found and utilized. If the increased consumption continues, the cotproblem for this year will solve itself, for there is also a reported very heavy infestation of boll weevil over the cotton states. Harry P. Stevens, representative of a large cotton firm that keeps in touch with the cotton situation, has received information to the effect that the nine government boll weevil stations scattered throughout the cotton belt of the United States, report an infestation of from twenty-

Occurs At Wilson's Mills As He Endeavored To Board Train Which Was Moving

A tragic accident occurred at Wilson's Mills Saturday morning about ten o'clock when a freight train killed Henry Brinkley as he tried to board it while it was slowly moving. Mr. Brinkley who was an employee of the Southern Railroad, intended to go to Clayton to get a payroll check which he was due for work which he had done with an extra section force. He fell as he tried to board the train, though the train slowed down for him to get on. The accident occurred near the depot. A good many standing nearby saw the accident. His body was terribly mangled, and death resulted instantly. The coroner, as. H. Kirkman, was called to the scene, but an inquest was
