

Have No Debts Because Garden

RALEIGH, Jan. 16.—For the first time in 16 years no money was borrowed on an eastern Carolina farm because of a home garden and the resulting sales on the local curb market.

"For fifteen years after we were married, we always had to borrow money to help with the running expenses of the farm and home, even though we kept a small store as a side line," says Mrs. A. A. Moore of rural route one from Washington in Beaufort county, in reporting results secured from her garden work with Miss Violet Alexander, home agent. "This past year I joined the year-round garden contest and planned to live at home. I started my garden work early in the season with a cold frame and as a result sold on the curb market between March 4 and May 2, $121.45 worth of early spring vegetables. I learned the important lesson of planting for succession and made it a rule early in February to plant a few seeds every day. I kept this up during the spring and summer and on November 6, at the time of our first frost, I had 26 vegetables in the garden."

From her garden, this year, Mrs. Moore states she has fed a family of nine, has canned and preserved 294 quarts of vegetables, fruits and berries and has supplied her poultry with all the green feed needed. She sold on the curb market, $629.28 worth of products and sold other vegetables at two restaurants to the value of $265 making a total cash return of $894.28 from the garden alone. Added to this was $67 worth of poultry, fresh meat and poultry products sold on the curb market and $50 worth to customers in town bringing her sales for the year to $1,011.28.

"So for the first time in 16 years, we did not have to deduct anything from our crop receipts last fall for expenses. Also my present winter garden gives promise of some weekly returns from the curb market," says Mrs. Moore.

UNION MEETING

The Primitive Baptist Eastern Little River Union will meet with Bethany church at Pine Level on Saturday and fifth Sunday in January. Brethren, sisters, friends and ministers especially are cordially invited to attend.
