

from this new American System, as they will have to bear a full proportion of its burthens, and buffet the northern manufacturers "with their own weapons."

The following passage in the Report recently submitted to Congress by the Committee of ways and means, merits the serious consideration of our citizens:

"The result of inquiries, directed to practical men and of estimates, founded upon their statements, warrant the Committee in expressing the opinion, that the cotton-growing States import from the manufacturing States, a great variety of articles, exclusive of the manufactures of cotton, wool, and iron, and consisting, principally, of the productions of the soil, amounting, annually, to two millions of dollars, at a very moderate estimate. These are, all of them, such articles as the cotton-growing States have every facility for producing themselves, and which they can afford to import from other States, only in a prosperous condition of their principal agricultural pursuit. Even in the present condition of the trade in cotton, just views of economy would seem to dictate the expediency of limiting the too abundant production of that staple, by diverting from it so much capital and labor, as would be sufficient to produce all the articles now imported from other States, of the description just mentioned. It is certain that the proposed prohibitions will, if adopted, render it not only expedient, but necessary, for the cotton States to produce the articles in question, instead of importing them."

Congress.—The Tariff bill appears to be the only subject of public importance before Congress—on this subject the Telegraph of the 5th inst. remarks:

"The bill was yesterday reported to the House by the Committee of the Whole, with two slight amendments, not essentially varying its principles or its details. So far as we can judge from the debates and declarations of members, we understand the vote of yesterday as decisive of the fate of the bill. The southern members who are opposed to any bill, and voted against any amendment, with the eastern members, who seem resolved to vote for no additional duty on any article but woollen goods, will form a majority; and, if they unite, will defeat the passage of the bill."

From the Warrenton Reporter, April 3.
Public Notice.—The patrons and friends generally of this establishment, are respectfully informed that the present number of the Reporter, is the last that will be issued under my name—having sold the office to Mr. Robert N. Verell, who is well known to the most of you, as meriting your best favors in the line of his profession. It is now three and a half years that the paper has been published, during which time I have received general support from you, and for which I tender you my grateful thanks.

Such as have paid in advance for subscriptions, will be furnished with the paper as regularly as if it had continued under my management. Those who are in arrears to me, will at once see the great necessity of making a speedy settlement, in order that I may close my business without delay, preparatory to my removal.

In the next number Mr. Verell will explain the principles which will govern him as an Editor. In the mean time I am authorised by him to say, that the character of the Reporter will undergo no material change.

Raleigh, April 3.—On Monday last, Enoch Kinchelow, of Tennessee, was arrested in this City and committed to jail on a charge of passing counterfeit notes of the Bank of Newbern.—Star.

Raleigh, April 1.—We understand that a free boy of color, named Ned Carroll, was tried at Johnston Superior Court last week, for an assault upon a white female, with an intent to commit a rape. The case was clearly made out to the Jury, who bro't in a verdict of Guilty. He is sentenced to be hung on the 25th instant.—Register.

Casualty.—On the evening of Sunday, the 16th ult. Mr. Barney Bradshaw, of Duplin county, fell from his horse while fording Steward's Creek. He was soon discovered, taken out, and conveyed to the nearest house; but from the effects of ardent spirits, combined with that of cold, he remained almost insensible, and died before morning; thus adding another victim of intemperance, to the long black catalogue.—*Fay. From the Richmond Enquirer.

A Public and Private Calamity.—It is with much pain, that we have to state certain occurrences which have excited great feeling in this city, and are interesting to the whole State. Jerman Baker, the Treasurer of the Commonwealth, has terminated his own existence! On Thursday night, (27th ult.) he manifested great unhappiness; but, after he had promised to retire in a few moments to bed, his family went to their rooms. About 1 o'clock, Mrs. B. being uneasy at his absence, sought him in a lower apartment, and having received his promise that he would soon retire to bed, returned to her room. Towards morning, another member of his family was aroused by a noise below, and communicated her apprehensions to Mrs. B. who again went below, and found the parlour door locked. With the aid of a servant she obtained admission—and horrible to tell! she found her husband stretched upon the sofa, with a cord around his neck, drawn over his shoulders, and connected with his hands—and he struggling almost in the agonies of death. She cut the cord, despatched a servant for a physician, and no efforts were spared to save his life. In the mean time, he had recovered his senses; obstinately refused to be bled in his arm; though yielding to the pathetic intreaties of his family, he consented to take a dose of medicine from the hands of his daughter. Nature, however, was too much exhausted; and after taking a most affecting leave of his family, he breathed his last about 9 o'clock on Friday morning.

It is painful to us to state the circumstance of this tragical event; but still more, the causes which are supposed to have hurried him to it. He could not withstand the contumely of the world; which he had reason to anticipate. No man ever discharged his domestic duties with more exemplary propriety than Jerman Baker—he was a man of nice feelings; and his character as a man of honor was as high as that of any man. But, in an evil hour, his strength of mind gave way before the pecuniary embarrassments which beset him—and the death which he inflicted with his own hand, and the humble disposition which he made of his remains, sufficiently attest the deep sense of shame which he had bro't upon himself. The amount of his defalcation has been ascertained to be about $25,065! We need scarcely say, that the securities (more than 25 of them!) are amply sufficient, besides such parts of his own property as are unincumbered, to insure the Commonwealth against all loss whatsoever.

A State stopped payment.—The Legislature of Maryland recently adjourned without passing any appropriation bills, or providing any means for the payment of the salaries of the officers of Government, and meeting the demands of other just claimants. The two Houses differed about a General Assessment Bill.
