SMALL-POX.

The ills of the country seem not to have ended with the baleful year of 1881, for with the new one comes a dire scourge that threatens to eclipse our former misfortunes. All over the North that dreaded disease, small. pox, is spreading, and on its Southern march has reached Richmond, and even in our State a case is reported at Winston. Our town is on a direct extensive scale, and one of the few line of public travel, at the intersec. tion of two railroads, and, visited by commercial men from all parts of Mr. Hewitt would even have been the country, it would be but the part | very useful on the Naval Committee, of prudence to look possibilities in the but he is placed on the insignificant face. It is not altogether and that this or that man has been favored or overlooked or that any particular State has secured undue rensideration, but it is the gross partisanship manifested and the base schemes ad vanced against which there is so much indignation. It is true that certain interests in Pennsylvania have such liberal representation on the Committees as amounts almost to control of legislation; but when Don Cameron swung the Keystone delegation around by the tail and landed it on the Kiefer side, it was expected that unlimited pledges had been made. So there was no surprise in that. But
