A Strange Feature of Many Wills. Many peculiar documents are file ! with the Probate Clerk, some of which are a terward admitted as wills and others are rejec ed. Not infrequently the will is written on a sheet of note paper or a scrap of other paper. No Matter how informal it may appear, it the requirements necessary to the signing and publication of the will have been complied with, it is received and generally a mitted to probace. One of the strangest documents recently filed was written on several pages of a book such as is used for children's composition. One which was admitted to probate a few years was written on the inside cover eaten up by the office-holding, protected at home instead of in South America. is but an experiment. Why not give and first blank page of a German story book. It consisted of these words:

"HEINBICH ROTH." One of the strange features in many wills is that the testator bequeatns large amounts to various relatives or to charitable institutions, and it is found at his death that he possesses almost nothing of value. Sometimes a sam of money in a certain bank is bequesthed, and the expectant heir finds on inquiry that it has all been withdrawn and used by the testator before his death. - New York Tribune.

STATE'S EVIDENCE.

EX-GOV. CIBBS OF TEXAS LAM-BASTS THE OLD PARTIES.

He Says They Are Selling Bonds and Devising New Systems of Taxation Instead of Laboring to Lighten the Burdens A ready Upon the People.

Another prominent democrat has taken the witness stand and scored the democratic party. This time it is ex-Governor Gibbs of Texas. He gives the following reasons for the change.

"It used to be that a democratic platform was no longer than the ten commandments, and as easy of comprehension. Now it takes Roger Q. Mills and Horace Chilton two hours each to tell a crowd what it is, and when they get through talking the oldest democrats are as badly mixed as if they had been alternating between beer and red liquor. Mills says that gold with just a little silver mixed in makes democracy. Chilton says that Milis is wrong; that democracy consists of an allopathic instead of a homeopathic dose of silver. Which is the right prescription for democrats? They differ on the size of the dose. Which will kill or cure? When it comes to the tariff, Cleveland and Mills think that it is democratic for the men, women and children who herd sheep and round-up cattle to do You mustn't conclude that a dentist | this in the teeth of the northern and is mad because you find him grinding | the competition of the world, but that it is also democratic for corporations who manufacture woolen goods and shoes his ewn way. Swain County. The other night "Bloom" Baker and one Rose White and a negro, whose name could not be learned, went to the still-house of Nelson Bros., near Whittier, in Swein county, and filled up on mean whiskey. Becoming hilarious, they beg n teasing an Indian present named Ned Will-not, taking some whiskey from him and finally running him off with rocks. They followed him and, it appears, the Indian resisted when they cut him terribly, from which he died within an hour or so.

The men fled but the negro was captured and put in jail at Bryson City. There is a reward of $200 each for Baker and Rose.
