Of course, the president is theoretically a civil service reformer, but being only one man it is by no means certain that there is to be any change for the better in civil service methods. There is a strong enough on the subject, but it has as a rule been administered by men willing to stretch it when the "pull" was strong enough, and the dismissal of one Texas collector of customs is no certain sign of a change.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From our regular Correspondent.)

Nov. 11th, 1901.

Senator Mark Hanna came to Washington on Friday to pay his respect at the White House and to consult with Secretary Cortelyou of the Board of Trustees of the McKinley Monument Association and with the officers of the Memorial Arch Association. With him was Mr. John G. Milburn, at whose house in Buffalo, President McKinley died. Soon after they reached the White House the Cabinet officials arrived for the regular Friday meeting and during a portion of the meeting Senator Hanna and Mr. Milburn were present and the Monument and Arch questions were freely discussed. Senator Hanna believes that a combination of the two associations should be effected, the monument at Canton erect first and the Memorial Arch later. At a meeting on Saturday between Senator Hanna and Secretary Cortelyou and Messrs. H. B. McFarland and Thomas F. Walsh respectively President and Secretary of the Arch Association the matter was extensively canvassed. It is doubtful if Senator Hanna will succeed in bringing about a combination of forces but both associations will work in entire harmony. It is proposed that the monument at Canton will cost $750,000 and the arch to be erected in Washington, $1,500,000, which latter amount Mr. Hanna regards as somewhat too ambitious.

With the elections out of the way, the political leaders are turning their attention to the important subjects of the tariff and Federal patronage. The President finds a wide diversity of opinion on the former question. It may be confidently asserted that Hon. Sen. E. Payne, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Maj. Steele of the same committee, and numerous representatives and Senators Hanna, Al. Platt and Dewey, all of whom are or have recently been in Washington, consider any change in tariff schedules unwise, and all the reciprocity treaties so far negotiated, impracticable. On the other hand some of the western Congressmen are clamoring for the reduction of rates on certain schedules. Some prominent republicans, believe a reduction of revenue should be accomplished by a decrease of the internal revenue taxes and still others say that with the expenses that the coming Congress will have to meet any reduction of revenues will be injudicious. In view of the character of the men who oppose it I can find it safe to predict that there will be no tariff revision by the Fifty-Seventh Congress.

On the first of December there will be 6,000 rural free delivery routes in the postal service with an average of 14 and a half miles each. Great as this number is, it is only one-half of the number of free delivery routes that have been asked for; the size of the appropriation making it impossible to establish more than that ratio. The idea seems to be spreading like wild fire in every section of the country and nobody seems to have a word to say against it to the detriment of the four classes of mail.

Women are there y losing their jobs and what is more important to them some of the trade that having the past few years brought to the stores. But it seems to be a case of the greatest good to the greatest number, and the opposition of the storekeeping fourth class postmaster will not avail against the demands of the people for daily free delivery of the mails.

If present intentions are carried out the Schley case is bound to get before Congress regardless of what the decision of the Court of Inquiry, which will probably not be made public, much if any, before the assembling of Congress, may be. As Schley's friends say they will ask Congress to make him a full Admiral if the report be favorable and to investigate the entire naval conduct of the War with Spain if it be otherwise. So Congress is bound to get the case anyway.

At last there is something authentic from Miss S. One the American missionary who is in the hands of brigands in Bulgaria. She has written to the U. S. Consul General at Sofia, saying: "We are still well, in spite of all our hardships, and he cabled it to the Department of State, which at once made it public."

The 12th annual convention of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations will be held in Washington this week. About 200 delegates are expected. Dr. A. W. Harris, president of the University of Maine, and head of the Maine agricultural experiment station, is president of the association.

The A. & M. College of North Carolina offers exceptional opportunities for education and training in agriculture and its allied branches. Beginning January 1, 1902 the College offers two courses for the young farmer and gardener, which extend through ten weeks, and give training of a particularly practical nature in the following subjects: dairying and creamery work including milk testing; butter making and handling milk; stock raising; stock judging; breeding live stock; feeding farm animals; diseases of farm animals; dairy farming; winter gardening; care of boiler and engine; and entomology etc. These courses are distinct from the regular four year and two year and are complete in themselves; being intended for farmers who are unable to take the longer courses.

The tuition is entirely free, the only expense being five dollars for registration. Board and room can be obtained for $5.00 per week, making the total cost for the whole course but thirty dollars. No farmer, young or old, can afford to miss such an opportunity. No examinations for entrance are required, but the student should be at least 18 years old, and have a common school education. Any one can attend either of the courses; we have had several registered in these courses who were fifty years old. Any one interested should write for a circular of information, which is sent free, and which tells in detail what the course is intended to do. Farming will pay when the farmer is trained for his work. These courses will be a great help in making agriculture a success.

Any information in reference to the courses in any way, can be obtained by addressing the Professor of Agriculture, Charles W. Burkett, West Raleigh, N. C.

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily, rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequalled. For sale by N. S. Peck & Co.

MODERN SURGERY SURPASSED.

"While suffering from a bad case of piles I consulted a physician who advised me to try a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve," says G. F. Carter, Atlanta, Ga. "I procured a box and was entirely cured. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is a splendid cure for piles, giving relief instantly, and I heartily recommend it to all sufferers." Surgery is unnecessary to cure piles. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure any case. Cuts, burns, bruises and all other wounds are also quickly cured by it. Beware of counterfeits.

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes, causing the cracks open an bleed.
