WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent]

Washington, Nov. 10.—The winter political population is gathering in Washington. Familiar faces are once more seen in the hotel lobbies in the Government offices and about the White House, or rather about the President's office building, and the newspaper correspondents are hurrying hither and yon getting "tips" and getting them denied, vigilantly watching for "news" in regard to the great congressional "Derby" which, probably will not be run for a year, but which has for its prize the speakership of the House of representatives and for which there will be many entries though but one contestant can get the place.

As a result of the unquestionable election of a republican majority in the lower chamber, numerous candidacies have been announced. The first actual contestant to come to Washington and proclaim his ambition was Representative Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, the apostle of protection in its highest form. With an almost solid delegation back of him and many high protectionists favorable to his cause, Mr. Dalzell will make a vigorous fight and believes that he will have the moral support of Senator Hanna. It will be no easy race, however. Advice from Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, state that he has established headquarters in Chicago and that he "proposes to win." His long service as a chairman of the committee on appropriations he believes entitles him to recognition, but that very office has made for him many enemies whose cherished appropriation bills have fallen before his merciful ax.

Although New York already has the presidency and the secretaryship of war, she is not content and will put two contestants in the field, Representative Payne, now chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and Representative Sherman, of Utica. A handsome well dressed man appeared at the White House recently had a talk with the President. It was representative Overstreet, Secretary of the Congressional Campaign Committee. He refused to state positively his mission in Washington but it is understood that he is here to present the claims of Representative Babcock who has a record of five successful campaigns which he has managed. Up in Maine there is a gentleman, regarded as typical of the new dispensation, who has serious hopes of presiding over the House. It is Mr. Littlefield, who was heralded last summer as the young David who would destroy the trust Goliath. Mr. Babcock has also come to Washington and is on the watch for every new arrival who holds a congressional vote.

As if to add interest to the situation, unconfirmed rumor has reached Washington to the effect that Speaker Henderson would resign the speakership this winter and thus precipitate the fight. There is little ground for accepting the report but it makes things more interesting. A report has been received from Iowa to the effect that Mr. Henderson would contest the gubernatorial nomination with Governor Cummins next spring and that he would have the support of Secretary Shaw who is himself credited with aspirations for the vice-presidency. Mr. Shaw, when seen after the cabinet meeting at the White House, denied that he had formed any alliance with General Henderson and professed no knowledge of the Speaker's intentions. It is not likely that the Secretary of the Treasury will form any such alliance while he is still in the Cabinet, but that is not saying that he would not favor Speaker Henderson's ambition to be "vindicated" and to remove Mr. Cummins from an active share in Iowa politics.

The members of the Cabinet are now hurrying back to Washington to prepare their annual reports and to render all the assistance possible to the president in the preparation of his message. The first Cabinet meeting to be held in the new Cabinet room took place last Friday and briefly outlined the features of his message to his advisors. In most instances the Cabinet officers are bringing their families with them and the social season will double open in the near future. Numerous members in the diplomatic corps have returned to Washington or are on their way, and Secretary Hay is busy with the Colombian and Cuban treaties on both of which it is said progress is Shattered Nerves and Weak Heart.

Too Nervous to Sleep or Rest.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine Cured Me.

A shattered nervous system nearly always leads to some affection of the heart, especially where the patient's heart is weak from heredity or other causes. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is not only a great heart restorer, but it is a blood tonic which specially corrects and regulates the heart's action, restores the blood and improves the circulation. It will build you up just as it did Mr. Crawford whose letter follows, and greatly improve your general health.

"I have been so greatly benefited by Dr. Miles' Nervine and Heart Cure that I hereby recommend them as the best remedies for the diseases they are recommended to cure. When I began taking these medicines I weighed scarcely 100 pounds, my nerves were badly shattered and my heart troubled me a great deal. I had pain in my left arm and shoulder, and difficulty in sleeping on my left side, had frequent fluttering spells and my heart would flutter and palpitate. I could not exercise any kind of food without suffering great distress, and was so restless and nervous that I slept little night or day. Now I am never bothered with my heart, my nerves are steady as a die, I sleep well and weigh 165 pounds. I am happy now and am trying to make back the money I spent for doctors who did me no good while I was ill."—T. R. CRAWFORD, Coates, Texas.

General Corbin, Adjutant General of the Army, has made public his annual report the most significant feature of which is, perhaps, his urgent recommendation that the "canteen" or post exchange at which the sale of beer was permitted be restored. He states that the cases of desertion and the infractions of discipline have greatly increased since the sale of beer was forbidden by the act of Feb. 2, 1901 and alleges that none are more anxious to see the exchange restored in its previous form than those officers "of pronounced temperance views."

Senator Beveridge has returned to Washington and will make arrangements for a brief tour of Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico, which are so loudly knocking at the door for statehood. It will be remembered that the Senator promised Senator Quay that this committee would report to the Senate the bill of admission already passed by the House before the Christmas adjournment.

The President leaves Washington to-night for New York. He will attend the dedication of the Chamber of Commerce building there and will then go south. He will be present at the reception of Luke E. Wright, vice governor of the Philippines, at Memphis on November 19th, and will attend the Union League dinner at Philadelphia Nov. 22, after which he will return to Washington.

Lines Written by an Unknown Confederate Soldier at Hatteras, During the Civil War.

I am one of a band who forever will stand in bonds of affection that is good. I knocked at a door once, wretched and poor, And there for admission I stood.

By the aid of a friend, who assistance did lend, I succeeded an entrance to gain; Was received in the West by command of the East, But not without feeling some pain.

There my conscience was stirred by a special freight With sentiments quite holy and true. Then onward I traveled to have unveiled What Hiram intended to do.

Very soon to the East I made known my request, When sight by demand did attend. When told, I beheld in full glory revealed A Master, a Brother, a Friend.

For the widows distressed there is love in my heart; For the helpless and orphan I feel. And my sword I will use to maintain the law Which the duties of Masons reveal.

This have I shown, though wisely concealed What the Free and Accepted will know. I am one of a band and forever will stand A Brother wherever I go.

Woman's Column.

(Edited by Miss Jennie Moore.)

Panne for headgear, both in piece goods and ribbon is a thing of the past.

All indications point to many and decided changes in the millinery world for autumn wear.

The very flat shape must go. The low crown has been in too long, so is to be superseded by quite high ones.

A bird and feather season is announced for autumnal chapeaux, with ornaments conspicuous by their absence.

A great vogue of green is predicted. Weird shades of green, mostly in adjunctive touches in velvet ribbon, about four inches wide, are to be in mode. Together with the favor of a higher crown is a decided lessening in the width of the brims. All the smartest hats have but a medium, often an actually small brim. Fashion arbiters construe this as an indication of the toque, and turban shapes as to be most swaggy.

For every day wear black will, of course, be first favorite with a few cherry reds and green worn by younger women. For dress occasions white will be first favorite with very bright tints of gray and brown, and an almost white tinge of blue worn to a certain extent. A new lace, called the Queen's lace, of a pale ecru tint, will be used on handsome hats as an around the brim trimming, and to fall down in the back, much in the style the veil was used this summer. It is to be very swaggy as a material to form crowns, also. This new lace is one of the latest and smartest points of the millinery world. Velvet is to be by far the most used fabric for a "made hat."

DEFENDS WOMEN'S USE OF CORSETS.

In an article on "Women's Clothing and Hygiene," contributed to the Revue Scientifique by M. Frantz Glencard, the author controverts popular ideas on the subject of the corset. He lays down the following propositions:

"1. The corset has its raison d'etre from the esthetic point of view.

"2. Rhetoric and hygiene may be reached in women's clothing, even in the corset."

"3. The corset may be of use in certain maladies."

These statements, which he acknowledges are somewhat audacious on the part of a hygienist, he attempts to justify in the course of his article. As to the first, he remarks that the adoption of clothing by man is the result neither of modesty nor of a desire to protect the body against the weather; it is a result, he asserts, wholly of a desire for adornment—the same that leads the savage to tattoo himself. Men's costume has tended more and more to straight lines, signifying action, women's to curved lines, signifying, according to the author, that they are "made to please." "Rigidity and strength for men," he says, "suppleness and fascination for women." The cor-

MODERN WOMAN'S VERSATILITY.

One of the greatest charms of the attractive modern woman, says a French author, lies in her great variety of moods. She presents a different type half a dozen times a day, so that one is never bored in her company, while the interest is constantly sustained by wondering what phase will be presented next. Certainly the girl of the new century answers to this description, for she has almost as many sides as there are facets to a diamond. She is charmingly girlish in her simple white frock in the morning, arranging the flowers or performing some other pretty domestic service. She is deliciously feminine gowned in beruffled muslin driving about in her low basket wagon, like a girly girl of long ago. She is decidedly masculine in all her riding togs, with all the courage and dash of an adventurous youth in her pursuit of sport by land and water. Afterward, strangest of all the transformations, looking like a gnomie from elfland, she appears in goggles, visor and coat while talking out her French racing "bubble" for a sph. Later returning dusty and grimy, like a butterfly emerging from a chrysalis, she finally appears in a bewitching French concoction, with long silken train, ready for conquest in the evening.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
