chief correspondent of the Associated Press and was at last ordered to leave the country for having given too intimate information about the kaiser. The American ambassador secured a respite of two weeks for him, during which he could wind up his affairs, but he was a marked man, and the police shadowed him night and day. At last he hit upon the expedient of placing a stuffed dummy of himself on the front porch, with its back toward the street, and while the police zealously watched the dummy he was daily slipping out by a side door and going unmolested about his business disguised in a pair of blue goggies and an old slouch hat. The manifen sat in the chair, with occasional interruptions, from 9 o'clock in the morning till 10 o'clock at night and was pulled inside by a string at bedtime. On the morning of Mr. Schierbrand's departure for the United States it was turned with its wooden face toward the street, displaying a small placard for the edification of the police reading:

twenty-two. If this is added to 1849 we get 1871, the year when the German empire was founded.

Now add together the figures of that year. Result, seventeen. Tack this on to 1871 and 1888 comes out, the year when Germany lost her first two emperors, the Emperors William and Frederick.

Repeat the addition process 1⁴8⁺8⁺8 equals 25; 1888⁺25 equals 1913.

What does this signify? To most people nothing more than 1913. But the Polish prophet has an answer pat—1913 is the date of Germany's desired to the people of the people

Twenty years ago he was almost remarked when the valuable library in his house at Charlottenburg was destroyed by fire. In the more recent accident his face was somewhat scorched, and the professor remarked whimsically, "It is all over with my beauty."

Ridney Omelet.

Trim of all the fat and cut the kidney into tiny dice. Put a dessertspoonful of butter into a small saucepan over the fire and when very hot fry in it a teaspoonful of minced onion until a golden brown. It must not be allowed to scorch. Put in the minced kidney and a half teaspoonful of minced parsley and cook for about ten minutes, shaking and stirring constantly. If too-dry, add just enough water to keep it from burning. When done, season to taste, and place it in the center of a plain four egg omelet just before it is ready to fold.

Economy in Soupmaking.
Soupmaking on a gas atove is such an expensive process that the city housekeeper often finds it an economy to use beef extract as a foundation for stock and meat sauces. A careless sevant is usually wasteful of beef extract, not using every particle that clings to the spoon and throwing away the little pot without removing with hot water the particles that cling to the sides. If proper care is exercised, a small pot can be made to go a great way.

Ten Pigs Who by Their Clever Tricks

Stupidity, obstinacy and selfishness are held to be summed up in the phrases "pig" and "pigheaded."

It is very unjust to the pigs then selves, because there are some very clever porkers in the world. A certain animal trainer, for example, has ten of the most intelligent pigs in the world. They perform a variety of tricks.

For sed into two companies, dressed as oldiers, they give a sham fight.

One side occupies a fort which is attacked by the other. A cannon is fired, the besiegers charge, capture the fort, haul down the enemy's flag and run up their own.

And not only this; every pig has a special performance. One sits in a rocking chair, another dances on a tight rope, a third walks on a roll-ing barrel, while a fourth kneels down at the word of command.

Two of the pigs run in harness, drawing a cart in which their mas-ter sits. He even drives this strange team through the streets.-Chur

When Bedtlime Comes.
Just when I'm having such good times
I never had before,
With all my playthings spread aroune
On table, chairs and floor;
When it's dusk behind the sofa back
And black dark under the stair,
And I wonder what atrange animals
Perhaps are lurking there,
And think I'll go a-hunting them
And hegin to clean my gun,
Them mamma shuts her book and says
"It's bedtime, son."

Outside the window by my crib
I see the sky all red,
Where the poor bid win, like me, I s';
Han been carried off to bed.
He gaver seen the fireflien dances
Or hearin the whippoorwill;
He never sees the rockets dark
Straight up from Signal hill;
He never sees the rockets dark
Wink open, one by one.
I wonder now who says to him,
"It's bedtime, sun."

The family had stewed tomatoes for dinner, and one of the dinners found something round and hard in a spoonful of the vegetable. It turned out to be a drop of solder that had fallen in when the ean was being sealed. It was shown to the being seated. It was shown to the baby, with the explanation that it was a pretty little bullet. Then the baby, who happens to be a boy of about four years and very much in-terested in guns, looked up and thoughtless, careless or indifferent. He must feel the throbbing of his future greatness in his youth. He must cherish it. It must grow with his growth. It must be assimilated into his very being.—Delos Fall, Superintendent of Public Instruction For Michigan.

New Form of Energy.

Gustave le Bon, who has made many experiments with cathode rays, X rays and the various forms of radio activity and whose investi-gations of such subjects are well known, expresses in the Revue Sci-entifique the opinion that all these phenomena are particular aspects of a new form of energy which, al-though its manifestations have but recently been recognized, is as com-mon in nature as electricity or heat. He also thinks that closer study along these lines may reveal to us a connecting link between matter and

A Silent Bell.

More than a century ago the fear of being buried alive led to the establishment in German cities of mortuary chambers in which a bell rope is placed in the hands of each corpse. In his recent volume on "Death and Sudden Death" Professor Brouardel declares that there is no case on record of that bell having ever been rung anywhere.

A man with many eccentricities recently died in England. He was Harry de Spencer Kingdon of Will-hayne, Devon, who was formerly known to fame as a breeder and exhibitor of mastiff dogs. In his hou-were found the embalmed remain of his mother, who died forty year ago, and of his wife, who prede censed him by fifteen years.

THE HEWITTS AT SEA.

The principal incident in Abram Hewitt's life was in 1844 when he Hewitt's life was in 1844 when he and Edward Cooper were east adrift in a leaky boat from the packet Alabama, which was wrecked in a fierce storm soon after leaving the Mediterranean for New York. He showed so high an order of heroism on that occasion that the Coopers took him into the bosom of their family, the lovely Sally, daughter of the house, giving him her heart and hand. It was that awful experience at sea that caused Mr. Hewitt in later years never to risk the lives of er years never to risk the lives of the several members of his family in a single vessel when a voyage to Europe was to be made. Wife, sons and daughters would sail on different steamers and meet on the other side. A few other heads of families oted these tactics in imitation of Mr. Hewitt.

Two Old Proverbs and True On When he returned from his first J. Corbett, the ex-champion pugil-ist, was asked by his father, "How did it turn out?" Being told that the fight was a financial failure, he advised the youthful pugilist to re-main at home in the future. "Re-member, me lad," he said, "there's an old proverb and a true one, 'A rolling stone gathers no moss."
Six months later Corbett boxed Kilrain in New Orleans, and when he came home his father again approached him. This time he replied proached him. This time he replied that he had made a lot of money and paid him $50 he had borrowed on a previous occasion. "Well, me boy," said Pop Corbett, "remember there's an old proverb and a true one, 'It's the roving bee that gets the honey."

Wouldn't Buy the Chair.

When the new furniture was bought for the cabinet room, the president told the cabinet members they could have their old chairs for $5 apiece if they wanted them. Government property cannot be given away, and the president fixed the nominal price on the handsome ma-hogany chairs, thinking that for sentimental reasons the cabinet members would like to get the chairs as souvenirs of their service. All the members of the cabinet responded with alacrity and sent their five dollar checks, except Secretary Root. Not being sentimental, Sec-retary Root said he really was much obliged, but didn't think he would invest in any secondhand furniture.

Weak Baby, Tough Man.

Though ninety-four years of age, Admiral Sir Henry Keppel is still an indefatigable traveler and at present is traveling as far away from home as Singapore. His long and active life started inauspiciously. At the time of his birth he was thought to be dead, and in his autobiography Sir Henry Keppel says that he was "deposited in my fa-ther's foot pan to be interred in a garden at the back of the house, not being entitled to a berth in consecrated ground." Fortunately before it was too late his nurse discovered that there was life in the "small thing," and today at a great age Sir Henry is still hale and hearty.

WAKEFUL CHILDREN.

For a long time the two year old chil of Mr. P. L. McPherson, 59 N. Tenth St., Harrisburg, Pa., would sleep but two or three hours in the early part of the night, which made it very hard for her parents. Her mother concluded that the child had stomach trouble, and gave her half of one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which quieted her tomach and she slept the whole night through. Two boxes of these Tablets have effected a permenant cure and she s now well and strong. For sale by N. S. Peel & Co.
