A SHIP'S DOCTOR.

Sheeld Not Be Paid.

A correspondent of Lloyd's Weekly has expressed the views of a ship doctor in the following words: "Many travelers are in doubt as to the position of the ship's doctor in regard to his remuneration from passengers for services rendered. The merchant shipping act enacts that every foreign going vessel having a hundred persons on board or upward shall carry on board as part of her complement a duly qualified medical practioner. Furthermore, an emigrant ship—i. e., a foreign going vessel which carries fifty or more steerage passengers—mast have a medical man, irrespective of the number of crew or of other passengers carried. The salary of the doctor on board is commensurate with these duties to his ship. To any passengers ties to his ship. To any passengers who are suffering from ordinary forms of seasickness and its concomitant evils or who receives injuries which evils or who receives injuries which are in any way due to the ship the doctor's services are free. For any sickness contracted before sailing or during a voyage which is not connected with the above named conditions he is entitled to a remuneration at the same rate as he would receive on shore. Obviously it would be as unfair to expect that his services to passengers should be rendered gratis as it would be for any visitor in a hotel or traveling on a railway to expect to have medical attention free in any illness for which the hotel or railway authori-ties could not be held responsible."

The writer of a letter to the London

ancet says that the case of the ship's surgeon is stated with accuracy in the above sentences and adds that ship's surgeons are of two kinds—first, those who after they have qualified take such a position either for health or for cleasure, and, second, those who elect o make sea life a permanency.

The pay of the ship's doctor varies from $30 to $50 a month. This is for duties to officers and crew. As regards passengers in relation to the surgeon the following groups will include all: First, the passenger who takes the initiative by remunerating the surgeon, perhaps handsomely, for any services rendered; second, the passenger who asks for his bill and pays it if reasonable; third, the passenger who, travel-ing for the first time, does not know whether to ask for his bill or wait for it to be delivered, but is pleased to be enlightened on the matter; fourth, the passenger who clings to the old time notion that the surgeon is there solely for the benefit of passengers, and, fifth, the passenger who never intends to pay the surgeon.—Medical Record.

"If we haven't any ten-by-fourteens," he said, "I may have to give you a fourteen by ten." Patrick rubbed his head thoughtfully. Then he stood pondering for a moment and at last remarked: "He's in the great roosh for it, and there's no other place near to get it. Give me wan o' thim foorteen-by-tins, and if he turns it sideways and oop-side down there's not a sowl would know the difference."—Youth's Com-

In the middle ages, when steel and silver mirrors were almost exclusively used, a method of backing glass for the same purpose with thin sheets of metal was known. Small convex mirrors of glass were made in Germany before the sixteenth century and were in demand until comparatively modern times. They were produced by blow-ing small glass globes, into which while they were hot was passed through a pipe a mixture of tin, antimony and rosin. When the globe was coated inside it was allowed to cool and was afterward cut into convex lenses, which

What Education Does

The average educated man gets a salary of $1,000 a year. He works for ty years, making a total of $40,000 in a lifetime. The average day laborer gets $1.50 a day 300 days in a year. To acquire this earning capacity requires twelve years at school of 180 days each, or 2,160 days. Divide $22.000 by 2,160, and it is found that each day at school is worth a little more than $10 to the pupil.

"I am not rich," said the science crank to the great alienist, "and I have no fortune to leave to the cause of science, but when I die I am going to bequeath my brain to the students of your college for dissection."

NUMBERING THE PEOPLE.

redictions by Foes of an E

It was in 1753 that a proposal to count the people was first made. Thomas Potter, son of the archbishop of Canterbury and member for St. Germans, introduced in that year a bill Germans, introduced in that year a bill "for taking and registering an annual account of the total number of the people and of the total number of narriages, births and deaths and also of the total number of poor receiving alms from every parish and extra parochial place in Great Britain." At was teartiable of course, that discretiz this inevitable, of course, that directly this proposal was made the precedent of King David should be quoted. And many were the jeremlads as to the almany were the Jeremiads as to the atternative evils which would befull the country. Those submitted to David were mild in comparison. Mr. Thornton, member for York city, said:

"I did not believe that there was any set of men or, indeed, any individual of the human species so presumptious of the human species so presumptuous and so abandoned as to make the proposal we have just heard. * * * 1 hold this subject to be totally subversive of the last remains of English liberty.

• • • The new bill will direct the imposition of new taxes, and, indeed, the addition of a very few words will make it the most effectual engine of rapac ity and oppression that was ever used against an injured people. * * * More over, an annual register of our peopl will acquaint our enemies abroad with our weakness." Matthew Ridley, another opposing member, added that his constituents "looked on the proposal as ominous and feared lest some public misfortune or an epidemical distemper should fol-low the numbering." However, the bill passed the commons, only to be promptly rejected by the lords. Not until 1800 was the proposal again made, and on this occasion it was brought to a successful issue. The first census of England and Wales was taken in March, 1801.-Fortnightly Re-
