Farmers Fix Price on Cotton.

The farmers met in Asheville last week to fix the minimum price on cotton, agreeing on eleven cents as the price. It was arbitrarily fixed at eleven cents while at the voting contest many votes were cast for twelve. The price began to decline immediately, the buyers thinking and knowing much cotton will have to be sold at any price offered and they will wait to pay only eleven cents for when those who can hold for a higher price have agreed to and will put it on the market at eleven cents. The law of supply and demand cannot be regulated arbitrarily for cotton permanently any more than for any other article and it seems a waste of time to attempt any such thing. They arbitrarily fix the price of cotton and complain at the Standard Oil Company for doing the same thing. We should be glad for farmers to get a good price as any body, but we do not think the farmer can arbitrarily fix the price of cotton. They may temporarily affect the market if they made every body sell at the price fixed but it would only be temporary for the natural laws of supply and demand will supercede any artificial regulation. High price will cause less of it to be used something else cheaper will be substituted and besides those not in the ring would grow cotton and sell it at a lower price than agreed on.

Like Finding Money

Finding health is like finding money—so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold, sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber, of Sandy Level, Va. He says: "I had a terrible chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but, after finding no relief in other remedies, I was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds." Greatest sale or any cough or lung medicine in the world. At S. R. Biggs' drug store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

The Road to Wealth.

Of course North Carolina get much money from converting its cotton into cheap cloth and its tobacco into cigarettes, smoking and plug, but the profit in this big manufacturing is not nearly so great as when the products of the farm are converted into the small things upon which there is much skilled labor. Charlotte has a factory that makes six hundred dozen handkerchiefs out of cotton every day, thus converting a bale of Mecklenburg cotton for which the farmer receives fifty dollars into handkerchiefs which, it is estimated, bring several thousand dollars. Other cities and towns are building up small industries. The Gastonia Gazette notes that Newton has a successful factory for making pasteboard boxes, the kind that hosiery and other knit goods are packed in.

There are a hundred different sorts of small factories that will pay well and they can be established with small capital. The chief capital necessary is brains and knowledge of the needs of a particular world. The young man who knows one thing well and is ready to put his life into it need not wish for capital. It can be had as soon as he demonstrates his ability. In the direction of multiplied small industries lies the road to wealth in North Carolina.

The above taken from the News and Observer needs to be read and considered by every citizen interested in the upbuilding of his own community. The necessary means are skill and determination rather than money and the exactly suitable natural conditions. We have insisted that our people were ac-acquainted with only farming and merchandising and it was the doing of one of these two or leave the country. We should have a variety of industries and let every man employ his talent as will bring most pleasure to him and wealth to the community.

Williamston has an immediate demand for a coach shop, a factory for overalls and one for knitting. We need a brick kiln and a planing mill. Then we should save freight on building material for the growth of the town. The saving of money is as much gain as the making. We need electric lights so we can stop paying tribute to the Standard Oil Co. There are numbers of enterprises we might name that mean wealth, but the trouble is getting them started.

Autumn Dance.

On Tuesday evening from ten until two the society men of the town gave the first dance of the autumn to the ladies. It was a pleasant occasion with which to begin the season's gaieties. The figures of the cotillion were led by Mr. C. B. Hassell, assisted by Mr. E. H. Hardison. The music, the fair ladies and the attentive beaux made the event a very pleasant one indeed.

The following well known young people about town were in attendance: Miss Mayo Lamb and Mr. George L. Whitley, Jr., Miss Nannie Smith and Mr. John W. Hassell, Miss Nora Fowden and Mr. Fountain Lipscomb, Miss Ball, Lancaster county, Virginia and Mr. Frank F. Fagan, Miss Annie Lamb and Mr. C. H. Baker, Miss Anna Crawford and Dr. James S. Rhodes, Miss Annye Peele and Dr. J. Peebles Proctor, Miss Essie Peele and Mr. S. Rome Biggs, Jr., Miss Sparks, of Baltimore and Mr. C. J. Hassell, Miss Laura Jones, of Seaford, Del. and Mr. Kader B. Crawford, Miss Emma Hassell and Mr. E. H. Hardison, Miss Hannah Victoria Fowden and Mr. Everett, of Robersonville, Miss Louise Fowden and Mr. Harry Murt Stubbs, Mrs. Clarence A. Jeffries and Mr. Jeffries.

Stags: Mess. Morton, of Robersonville, Gurkin and Martin. Chaparons: Mrs. W. R. Fowden and Mrs. Mary E. Peele.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler, of Highower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petty jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Cleburne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some source meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but he druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that his medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the box I was in. I took one dose and it was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale by S. R. Biggs.

Nothing more than stones in the rough are expected from that diamond mine recently discovered in Kentucky.

Are You Engaged

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestion in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Bennettsville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered often from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." S. R. Biggs, druggist, sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle.

For young and old the best pill sold is Dr. Dade's Little Liver Pills. Never gripe, never fail to cleanse the system and tone the liver. "Sold by All Dealers."

Monticello.

(Communication.)

At the installation of Dr. Alderman as president of the University of Virginia, Mr. Jefferson Levy, the present owner of Monticello, threw open wide the doors and invited all to come to the old home of Jefferson. So the old hospitality still goes on.

While Mr. Jefferson lived he entertained so much that at his death he was a poor man and the estate had to be sold. It was bought by Mr. Jefferson Levy, a Jew, now worth about fifty million, who keeps it in a fine condition and who now claims it as an ancestral estate, being related to the Jeffersons, as he says: "The place is the top of a small mountain and hence gets its name 'Monticello' from the Italian word which means 'little mountain.'" We are told that Mr. Jefferson gave it the Italian pronunciation and so we should.

On a fourth day of July an elderly lady, (member of an old Virginia family) a New Yorker and I drove out. Winding around and around the mountain, passing orchards of Albermarle pippins and occasionally getting peeps of the town below.

As we drove up the ringing bell announced our entrance and the gates were thrown open. Nearby the house we passed a gentleman dressed in a cream broadcloth suit and a dog walking beside him. Upon questioning a boy we found that this was Mr. Levy. We also learned that very seldom were people permitted to enter the home, just on state occasions. So one of our party, the Virginian, took our cards and walked down to see Mr. Levy and beg of him to let us go into the house. When she presented the cards with our request he said, "you all will not touch anything?" "Sir, I am a Virginian," she said, and then bowing low he walked up the path and we all entered.

The plan of the house is the same as in the old colonial days, but all the furnishings are modern with the exception of an old violin stand and the well known clock with its key and folding ladder, all of which Jefferson himself made. Mr. Levy is a bachelor and occupies the old bed-room of Mr. Jefferson.

The old roof garden is still there. It was here that Mr. Jefferson sat for hours while the rotunda of the University was being built, and listened to the carpenters hammering. "Fear if they drove a nail? crooked?" as he said even tho it was two miles off.

The burying ground is near. His monument is very plain and simple as he had planned. In the inscription is that he is the author of the Declaration of Independence and father of the University of Virginia but not once is mentioned that he was president of the United States. He requested that it should not be there. Standing there gazing at his grave a feeling of deepest reverence comes over one. This man so deeply affected by Voltaire, Diderot, Rousseau and other French writers took the great view of democracy and lifted us safely over whereas the French so sadly fell under.

With just this feeling we drove off from "Monticello" to get glimpses elsewhere.

"We passed along by McCue's home and found that his two younger children still live in the old home with their aunt. Know the rumor of some time ago, we asked the driver if he thought that McCue was really dead. "Deed Missus," he said, "I wouldn't lak to take his chances."

Then by E. A. Poe's old room we went. To superstitious minds the fact that his room was number thirteen is a solvent to his dissipated, nervous and short life.

A peep at president Monroe's old home and then on the Ivy Road until home again.

All along this road we heard names of great Virginians and too, names of some of our great North Carolinians are frequently mentioned.

A few days later I asked Dr. Currell, formerly of Davidson College, but now of Washington and Lee College, why so many of our prominent men leave the State. "North Carolina expects more in return for the dollar than any other state," he said. "Why I get more at Washington and Lee than the professors at your University." It is a fact we should realize and try to keep many of our

It Quiets the Cough.

This is one reason why Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so valuable in consumption. It stops the wear and tear of useless coughing. But it does more—it controls the inflammation, quiets the fever, soothes, and heals. Sold for 60 years.
