CONFEDERATE VETERANS RE-UNION.

200 Veterans And 2,500 People Present.

The Re-Union, is matter of history. It was a complete success excepting the absence of Governor Winston who by reason of sickness was unable to come. There was excellent music and the eloquent address of Major Harding appealed strongly to the heart of every one. Col. Wilson G. Lamb read a letter from General Hoke, which you find in another column, and introduced Major Harding, at the conclusion of whose address Col. Lamb read the history of the Seventeenth Regiment. Mr. J. A. Hobbs then read the inscription on the N. C. Regimental History, the first at Bethel, farthest to the front at Gettysburg and the last at Appomattox and showed that Martin County had a hero in each of these engagements and that they were J. B. Coffield and Stanley Leggett and J. A. Whitley. North Carolina has a glorious war record and Martin County did her full duty and the people of our county are justly proud of her record.

At a quarter past ten the band played in front of the Dennis Simmons Lumber Company's office standing in front of the Confederate battle flag which formed a background. The marshals Mess. C. B. Hassell and E. H. Hardison then headed a line of march for the courthouse, the band came next in order and following them were the veterans about 200 strong. It was a beautiful but sad picture to behold our fathers and grandfathers moving in an irregular manner with bent shoulders and halted tread some on canes and others on crutches but all making an effort to keep time to Dixie and Battle blast. We saw tears in the eyes and hearts rise to the throats of many who beheld this picture and heard the music. It made the younger wish they had been of those days and the older thank God that they were. The whole body of veterans were seated in the bar, the jury box and on the front seats of the court room. Prayer was offered by Rev Mr. Rose. Mr. S. J. Everett then in a few words welcomed the re-union and introduced Col. Lamb.

At the conclusion of the speaking, headed by the band the veterans marched to the Academy Grove, where a sumptuous dinner had been prepared. Owing to the absence of Governor Winston the exercises were concluded earlier than planned and the crowd reached the grove before the dinner was prepared. The wind was blowing the cloths and trays over the ground and the veterans were admitted to the tables before the barbecue was ready to be served, but it came in a few minutes and everybody, especially every veteran had all he could wish for. There were a few complaints but they were so few and so small compared with the management of such a crowd that we should take no time to mention them. The ropes were dropped a little too early for the crowd after the veterans filed in but everybody had a plenty, or it was their own fault.

The management of this great mass of twenty-five hundred people was as perfect as we could wish for. Veterans who have attended re-unions in Beaufort, Bertie, Edgecombe and Halifax say this surpassed all in its arrangement and execution. The veterans were grateful for the day of pleasure given them and their words of praise were not stinted. Numbers said to your writer that it could never be improved while no one expressed any disappointment. This is very gratifying to these who have contributed to its success and it goes to prove what the people of Williamston can do when they try. We hope to see these re-unions repeated from year to year and looked for as much as Christmas or any holiday.

This article would not be complete without mentioning the names of those whose energies have made this re-union a possibility as a body we name the Daughters of The Confederacy, as individuals, we would name Dr. John D. Biggs, Col. Lamb, Mess. W. C. Manning, J. D. Leggett and J. A. Hobbs, Misses Hattie Throver, Mayo Lamb and Anna Crawford, Messdames Dr. John D. Biggs and J. Paul Simpson. The people of Williamston lent their services and money contributions were sought only from citizens of the town and they did their full share in every case, doing all that was asked. The re-union has passed, we are all happy at its success and grateful to everybody who assisted in making it a success.

The decorations were elaborate, only one business house in the town did not make some effort to decorate its building and windows, and all of it was done in harmony with the spirit of the occasion. The court-room, where the speaking was held, was beautiful, and we have never seen a more perfect picture than that presented by the white and red bunting and the battle flag with veterans surrounding them and Major Harding addressing the assembly. All the business houses closed for the speaking and dinner, the school, banks and county offices suspended business. Everybody did everything possible to make the occasion one of real joy and pride.
