Best Time to Get Well.

All Poisons Can Be Driven Out of the System Now.

Right now is the best season of the year to get rid of the blood, liver and kidney affections that have been troubling you. You need building up now in order to stand the strain of the hot weather of summer.

Let Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Catarrh, Indigestion or Constipation run through these months and you they became chronic and hang on for years.

A regular course of RHEUMA-CID E taken at the present time will thoroughly cleanse the blood from the stomach, set the liver and kidneys to doing their normal work again, and will build up the entire system.

While it is the most wonderful blood purifier in the world, yet RHEUMACIDE is a purely vegetable preparation that operates through entirely natural methods.
It has been tested on the delicate stomach of a baby without the slightest harm.

Better get a bottle today and start to get well. RHEUMACIDE has cured hundreds of stubborn cases after all other remedies, noted physicians and even the great Johns Hopkins Hospital have failed.

TO PROTECT THE INDIANS Government's Endeavor to Make Them Good Citizens, LAND DEALING LAWS.

Leases Expire at End of Five Years—Dispensation of Proceeds of Sales, Becoming Averse to Mortgages and Notes Considers Carefully Before Entering into Contracts.

Probably the most efficient system in the world of protecting the Indian in his rights is maintained by the United Indian agency at Muskogee, which administers the laws of Congress and the regulations of the Secretary of the Interior for the purpose of keeping the fullblood in possession of his worldly goods, says the Kansas City Journal. Every foot of land the fullblood sells must be alienated with the consent of the Interior Department, either through the removal of his restrictions or the posting of his land to be sold to the highest bidder through the Creek land sales division of the agency. The fullblood cannot sell nor encumber his homestead for a period of twenty-five years, and can only alienate the other portion of his allotment with the consent and under the supervision of the Government. He is not allowed to lease his land for agricultural purposes for a period of over five years, and he cannot lease it for mineral purposes except with the approval of the Interior Department and upon proof being submitted that he is receiving adequate compensation for the lease.

At present the only fullbloods who can sell their land at all are citizens of the Creek Nation. In the Cherokee, Choctaw and Chickasaw nations the delivery of deeds to allottees has not been completed, and therefore Indian lands there are not yet alien-able. At present from 5,000 to 8,000 acres of land a month are sold through the Creek land sales department of the United agency at prices ranging from $12 to $50 an acre for raw upland farms.

By this system the fullblood Indian gets the greatest possible protection.
He must first file a petition with the Indian agent for the sale of his land.
He must stipulate how much land he desires to sell, and what he intends to do with the money. He is also asked about his age, physical and financial condition and all of these things are taken into consideration by the Government before action is taken upon his petition. If the Government believes it is to the best interest of the Indian to sell a portion of his surplus holdings, his land is posted for sale and sealed bids are received upon it. At the expiration of sixty days these bids are opened and the land is sold to the highest bidder. If, however, the Secretary of the Interior believes that the compensation is not large enough, the bids are rejected and the land re-advertised.

It would naturally be supposed the protection to the fullblood would stop here, but it has only begun. The Government next ascertains through the Indian agency how much of the money the Indian owes, if any, and how much of the money he receives from the sale of his land it is necessary for him to have immediately. This is paid over to him in cash, usually a small sum, and the rest of it is held in trust for him at the local United States depository in Muskogee. According to the rules of the Secretary, he is allowed to draw upon this sum at the rate of $50 a month.

The fullblood, before he is allowed to sell his land, is usually compelled to promise that he will use most of the money in building improvements upon his homestead. As soon as he receives his first payment he is instructed to go ahead and have the improvements made. He secures carpenters and has buildings erected, and sometimes has a few acres of his homestead broken for cultivation. When it is all done a Government inspector goes to the place and inspects the improvements and ascertains if they were properly made. The fullblood is then required to send the bills submitted by the contractors and others who have done the work, as well as the bills for material, to the United agency, where they are reviewed, and if the Indian has been overcharged they are cut down. They are then approved and paid out of the funds realized from the sale of the Indian's land which are being held in trust for him. If any one has a bill or note against the Indian representing a debt contracted before the land is sold, these are sent to the United agency, where they are reviewed before the money is checked out to the Indian so he can settle the obligation.

In going ahead and engaging his own labor, buying the material and superintending the work of having his improvements made, he is given all the advantage of managing his own affairs without being subjected to danger of being grafted in the proceeding.
Indian agency officials say that a fullblood seldom breaks his promise to use and make improvements as agreed when he is allowed to alienate his land. Another admirable trait in the fullblood is that he seldom sends to the agency for a monthly installment of the money due him in advance of the stipulated time, and if he is not actually in need of the money he allows the payments to run over for several months without drawing, thereby receiving interest. He is also becoming averse to mortgages and notes, and it is a much more difficult matter to persuade him to contract a debt than it was a few years ago.

MUSICAL ELECTRICAL MACHINE.
Generates Currents That Make a Telephone a Full Band.

Another electrical wonder has been given to the world. Dr. Thaddeus Cahill, in a dingy shop at Holyoke, Mass., after twelve years of unremitting toil, succeeded in finally perfecting what is considered by electrical engineers to be one of the most remarkable devices in the history of electricity.

In this little shop there now stands a 200-ton electrical machine called by its inventor the telharmonium, which combines in itself the musical power of all known instruments, and besides this can send its music over telephone wires for hundreds of miles in all directions. Any telephone subscriber within its radius can be supplied with music in great or small amounts, as his feelings dictate.

"Future Paderewski," says the Electrical World, "sitting in New York may be heard in 10,000 places miles apart, and in each place the original effect is heard."

The real wonder and novelty of Dr. Cahill's invention lies in the fact that the telharmonium does not, like the phonograph, reproduce music, but actually makes it, and in an entirely new way. What the operator plays on are a number of little specially arranged dynamos. These are so connected to the keyboard, which is arranged like that of an organ, that the depression of a certain note, A for instance, causes a current in the transmitting wires which produce a vibration in the telephone receiver at the other end of the line just like that following the playing of A on a piano.

The person who hears the A as if it were played upon a piano. In other words, the note is not actually made until the current reaches the receiver at the end of the wire. So that this little two-inch contrivance is the actual music producer of the telharmonium.

It is wonderful enough that any sort of a tune can be played on such a simple device, but when Dr. Cahill states that any note of any quality and timbre—violin, flute, piano, organ, clarinet, etc.—can be accurately reproduced by the telharmonium, and further, that the combined harmonies of these various instruments, as they occur in bands and orchestras, can also be accurately produced by a single performer at the keyboard, one's wonder becomes perilously near to skepticism.

These claims, however, seem to be well authenticated, and it is announced that in about three months one of the new machines is to be set up in this city. If this is the case, the public will soon be able to test Dr.
Cahill's claims.

The telharmonium must, obviously, be a very complete and hence expensive machine. The one at present in Dr.
Cahill's Holyoke laboratory is said to have cost about $200,000. This excessive cost is seen to be of no great importance when it is remembered that one machine will probably be able to supply from 7,000 to 10,000 subscribers.

In receiving the electrical music the ordinary telephone receiver is screwed into the end of a horn, like that used on the phonograph. The music is said to be loud and clear, one receiver filling a good sized room, and entirely free from the disagreeable rasping and scraping accompaniments so common in the phonograph reproductions.

Lord Kelvin during a visit to this country is said to have examined and been greatly impressed by Dr.
Cahill's instrument. A local electrical engineer who has been up to Holyoke and heard the telharmonium describes its tones as beautifully clear and pleasant to the ear. As to the genuineness and revolutionary character of the discovery, therefore, there seems no doubt. The current issue of the Electrical World speaks of it as "the birth of a new art," one of "the notable achievements of our modern day," the "creation of another great electrical industry."

The Growth of Children.
Until the age of eleven or twelve boys are taller and heavier than girls.
Then the girls for the next few years surpass the boys both in weight and height; but the boys soon overtake and pass them. The sons of non-laboring parents are taller and heavier than those of laboring parents. The heads of girls are a little rounder than those of boys, and always a little smaller.
It has been found that children grow but little from the end of November to the end of March; grow tall but increase little in weight from March till August, and increase mainly in weight and little in height from August to November.—Exchange.

Balloon Cure For Consumptives.
A patent has been taken out in Australia for an improved method of preventing and curing consumption and other kindred diseases. The patients are placed in rooms connected by aluminum tubes leading to captive balloons at altitudes of 5,000 feet to 8,000 feet. The balloons are constructed of sheet aluminum, and are strung on cables of aluminum bronze ropes, to which the tubes are attached by bands at intervals. The cable and attached tube pass through axial tubes in the lower balloons, the air opening being at the highest point. A circulation of pure air is maintained by exhausting the air from the rooms.

You are never crowded off of the straight and narrow path.

RHEUMACIDE has cured thousands of cases of Rheumatism after all the doctors and all other means had failed. Rheumacide cured John F. Eline and others, of Baltimore, after the famous specialists of Johns Hopkins Hospital, the greatest hospital in the world, had failed. Rheumacide cured Austin Percelle, of Salem, Va., and D. H. Olmstead, the Norfolk, Va., contractor, after they had spent large sums on other remedies and the doctors had given up hope. Rheumacide cured Mrs. Mary Welborn, of High Point, N. C., of rheumatism she had endured for 20 years. Rheumacide cured W. R. Hughes, of Atkins, Va., after the most famous New York specialists failed. There is a reason why it cures: Rheumacide is the latest discovery of medical science, and while powerful enough to sweep all germs and poisons out of the blood, it operates by purely natural methods, does not injure the most delicate stomach, and builds up the entire system.
