what is really in you. As a result of this advice one little boy turned in the following composi-

"I ain't goin' to attempt no flite of fancy; I'm just goin' to write what's in me, and I got a hart, a liver, two lungs and some other things like that; then I stummick, and it's got in it a pickle, a piece of ple, two sticks of pep-permint candy and my dinner."

A DEED AND A WORD.

A little stream had lost its way
Amid the grass and fern.

A passing stranger scooped a well,
Where weary men might turn.

He walled it in and hung with care
A ladle at the brink;
He thought not of the deed he did,
But judged that all might drink.

He passed again, and, lo, the well,
By summer never dried,
Had cooled ten thousand parching
tongues

And saved a life beside.

A nameless man amid a crowd That thronged the daily mart

A nameless man amid a crowd
That thronged the daily mart
Let fall a word of hope and love,
Unstudied, from the heart;
A whisper on the tumuit thrown,
A transitory breath,
It raised a brother from the dust,
It saved a soul from death.
O germ, O fount, O word of love,
O thought at random cast,
Ye were but little at the first,
But mighty at the last!
—Charles Mackay.

Sir Boyle Roche described himself on one occasion as "standing prostrate at the feet of royalty" and in a speech in the house of commons said, "I smell a rat; I see it floating in the air, and, by heaven, I'll nip it in the bud!"

Burke on John Howard.

He has visited all Europe not to surwey the sumptuousness of palaces or stateliness of temples, not to make of ancient grandeur or to form a scale of the curiosity of modern art, not to collect medals or collate manuscripts, but to dive into the depths of dungeons. plunge into the infection of hospitals, to survey the mansions of sorre and pain, to take the gauge and dimensions of misery, depression and contempt, to remember the forgotten, to attend to the neglected, to visit the forsaken and to compare and collate the distresses of all men in all countries. His plan is original, and it is as full of genius as it is of humanity. It was a voyage of discovery, a circumof charity. Already the benefit of his labor is felt more or less in every country.

General Miles, in company with a friend, was walking down Pennsylvaula avenue, when a person entirely unknown to the veteran soldier rushed up to him and, grasping his hand, said warmly, "Well, Nelse, old boy, I'll bet anything you don't remember me!"

You win!" coldly and laconically re-Miles, as he released himself from the grasp of the stranger and reumed his walk.-Woman's Home Com-

The Weed and the Man.

Gough used to describe the struggles of a man who tried to leave off using tobacco. He threw away what he had and said that was the end of it; but, no, it was only the beginning of it. He would chew camomile, gentian, toothught another plug of tobacco and put It in his pocket. He wanted a chew awfully, but he looked at it and said:
"You are a weed, and I am a man. I'll master you if I die for it." And did master it while carrying it in his pocket daily.

Strategy in Ireland.

A traveler engaged a chaise at Galway and had proceeded some distance when it came to a sudden standstill at the beginning of a steep incline, and the driver, leaping to the ground, came to the door and opened it. "What are you at, man? This is not where I ordered you to stop!" said the traveler. "Whisht, yer honor, whisht!" said Paddy in an undertone. "I'm only desaving the sly baste. I'll just bang the door and the crafty ould cratur think he's intirely got rid of yer lid form, and he'll be at the top of the hill in no time."

If human nature were not base, but horoughly honorable, we should in evthoroughly honorable, we should in ev-ery debate have no other aim than the discovery of truth. We should not in the least care whether the truth proved allude to my works when with men to be in favor of the opinion which we of the world, but I amuse them about had begun by expressing or of the matters they like to hear. the main concern. Our innate vanity, which is particularly sensitive in reference to our intellectual powers, will not suffer us to allow that our first position was wrong and our adversary's right. The way out of this difficulty would be simply to take the trouble always to form a correct judgment. For this a man would have to think before he spoke. But, with most men, innate he spoke. But, with most men, innat vanity is accompanied by loquacity and innate dishonesty. They speak before they think, and even though they may afterward perceive that they are wrong and that what they assert is false the want it to seem the contrary. As rule, then, every man will insist or maintaining whatever he has said, ever though for the moment he may consider it false or doubtful.

The Contrary Mule.

A farmer in Kentucky sought advice from a veterinary about a sick mule. The doctor advised calomel, five times the dose for a map.
"How can I make him take it?"
"You put a stick of wood three-quarters of an inch thick between his teeth and then you take this rubber tube, put the calomel in it, insert in the mule's mouth, which is held open by the piece of wood, and blow the medi-cine down his throat."

"That's easy enough," said the

Three weeks later the doctor met the farmer, who had changed greatly. He was emaciated, humped, ghastly and bundled in heavy wrappings.
"Why, what's the matter?" said the

The farmer sighed deeply and spoke feebly. "That mule," he said, "that cussed, idiotic, fool mule! You see, l got ready just as you told me, got the tube in his mouth ready to blow, and then," he paused for breath, "then that infernal mule blew first!"

Hatred, envy, malice, jealousy and revenge all have children. Every bad thought breeds others, and each of these goes on and on, ever reproducing itself, until a world is peopled with their offspring.—O. S. Marden.

Presidenting and Planting.
Rutherford B. Hayes while president and visiting his home in Ohio passed the farm of a neighbor who was plant ing potatoes in a patch near the road The president, being somewhat of a farmer himself, noticed some neculiar ity in his neighbor's style of planting, and after a few minutes' chat he called attention to it, and the old man argued

"After all," concluded the president, "I don't think you are doing it as i should be done for the best results." The old farmer rested his arm or the fence and looked steadily at Mr. Hayes. "They ain't neither one of us," he said, "above havin' fault found with us, but ef you just go on presidentin' the United States your way an' I go on plantin' potatoes my way I guess we won't be no wuss off."

Love and Business.

In 1797 M. Peter Caesar Labouchere Hope & Co., Amsterdam, was sent by his patrons to Mr. Baring, the Loudon banker, to negotiate a loan. He dis-played in the affair so much ability as to win the esteem and confidence of the great English financier.

"Faith," said Labouchere one day to Baring, "your daughter is a charming creature. I wish I could persuade you to give me her hand."

Young man, you are joking, for, se riously, you must allow that Miss Bar ng could never become the wife of i simple clerk. "But." said Labouchere. "if I were n partnership with Mr. Hope?"

"Ob, that would be quite a different thing. That would entirely make up for all other deficiencies."

Returned to Amsterdam, Labouchere said to his patron, "You must take me into partnership." "My young friend, how can you think of such a thing? It is impossible. You are without fortune, and"—

"But if I became the son-in-law of Mr. Baring?" "In that case the affair would be soon settled, and so you have my word."

Fortified with these two promises, M. Labouchere returned to England and in two months after married Mis Baring and became a partner in the house of Hope & Co. Henry Labouchere, editor of London Truth, is his grandson.

Sociable With the Pig.

A candidate on paying a second visit to the house of a doubtful voter was somewhat surprised at hearing him say that he would support him.
"Glad to hear it," said the candidate.

"I thought you were against me." "So I was at first," replied the voter. When you called here the other day and stood by that pigpen and talked for half an hour ye didn't budge me an inch, but after you had gone away, sir, I got to thinkin' how ye'd reached ye hand over the rail and scratched the pig's back till he lay down wi' the pleasure of it. I made up my mind that when a man was so sociable as the one to vote against him.
