The Lexington (N. C.) Dispatch says a cow and hog were killed by a"very sudden and unexpeted flash of lightning." From which we infer that in the Tarheel State lightning, like everything else, general ly travels in a leisurely manner. Washington Post.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Floor For the Hog House. A successful swine breeder gives the following account of the floor he put into his hog house:

The floor is made of hard brick laid flat in sand, the sand resting on gravel It is not safe to use dirt for bottom as it settles and causes the floor to sink irregularly. Fill in, say, six inches with cinders and gravel, then a laver of sand and then the brick When laying the brick don't put them too close together. After you have them laid put plenty of water on them, so as to soak them, and then mix sand and cement in the proportion of three parts of sand to one of cement and use enough water so that it will pour freely. Pour this over the floor and sweep it in with a broom until the cracks are full. The will not slip on this floor, and it is cheaper than a plank floor.-Farm

Scours In Calves.

Professor Shaw of the Michigan Agricultural college says concerning the treatment of scours in calves: One e of the best things we have and are using almost altogether with which to suppress outbreaks calf scours is a mixture of tincture of rhubarb, camphor and oplate, equal parts in hot water, about a teaspoon-ful. One of the most interesting recoveries I have ever seen was in the so near death that scoured and was stretched out cold and stiff, and there was every symptom of death. The call was treated in that then was fed with raw eggs and mil occasionally, and he recovered. He as the sickest calf I ever saw, so sick his hair all came off after a week or ten days, but he is one of the best feeders we have in the bunch today.

Telling the Health of Fowls.

Dr. Salmon of the bureau of anima industry lays down this rule for telling the health of a fowl by its dropping The condition of the droppings fur of a fowl by its droppings nishes a good indication of the hen's health. They should be of sufficient consistency to hold their shape, but should not be too solid. In color they should be dark, tapering off into a prayish white. If the droppings are soft or pasty or of a yellowish or brownish color it indicates too much carbohydrates or a lack of meat. If, on the other hand, the droppings are watery and have dark red splashes of in them it indicates too much eat. A greenish, watery diarrhea ually indicates insanitary conditions either in the surroundings, the feed or the water.

Silage Good For Horses

Horses like silage as well as cattle do after they get accstomed to it. A do after they get accounted to it. A man in Michigan a few years ago win-tered 200 horses on sliage and straw exclusively, with no grain. They came through in fine shape, and the brood mares all had fine, strong colts. The Ohio experiment station tried feeding horses on sliage through the feeding horses on silage through the and reported that they came h until spring in the best conwinter through until spring in the best con-dition. W. C. Bradley of Wisconsin says that one year during spring work was out of hay, and the only coarse ider his horses had during all that period of hard work was silage. He says that his horses never stood work tter.-Spirit of the West
