The proper and usual dose was given the negro at Monroe, La., who ran amuck with the intent to kill as many whites as possible.

Harriman has landed and the financial world is all agog to know what will happen next. It is not well that one man should wield such an influence in the business world.

The strike at Pittsburg is deplorable, and there seems to be no preventive where the gigantic trusts control. In the meantime the man who promised good times to everybody is calling to his caddie on the links at Beverly, Mass.

Now that the fall season is approaching, we hope the squirrel hunter will wait till the out season is on before he begins to hunt. We should remember that the breaking of a simple law on our part will probably lead some one who is weaker to violate a more serious law. If we shoot the protected squirrels, some others may deem it as safe to rob a house or pick a pocket.

Mr. R. T. Martin has succeeded Prof. John D. Everett as our Robersonville correspondent. All matters pertaining to news and subscriptions in that community may be referred to him. We trust that the people will appreciate the services of Mr. Martin, and will give him every item that may interest the public. We are anxious to get news from every section of the county. The Robersonville section has always given us pleasing support.

"What Will It Cost Us to Get Good Roads?"

The question as to what it costs to build good roads is one that admits of no definite general answer. Where the material for road making is right at hand the cost is naturally smaller than where it has to be brought from a distance; and in a level country grading, of course, costs less than in a hilly region. The only way to find out what any given stretch of road will cost is to have a competent engineer make an survey and make estimate. It is a fact, however, that good roads do not cost as much as many folks think. Good macadam roads take money to build, it is true; $2,000 a mile may be regarded as the minimum under favorable circumstances for a good nine-foot macadam road. Ordinarily in the South such a road will cost $3,000 to $4,000.

An Unwelcome Guest

We are always glad to welcome visitors to our town, but recently we had to regret the presence of A. B. Rand, of Norfolk, who is said to be a blackleg poker player. We feel that the coming of such a man into the town is the trail of the serpent. It is current report that some of our citizens were induced to enter a game with Rand and lost money. We are not regretting so much that the money has gone from the community, but the baneful influence which has been exerted upon our people. It is a species of lawlessness to come into a town for such a purpose. Unfortunately, there are always men who can be easily induced to engage in acts contrary to law and order.

We are not writing this in any bad spirit, but with the belief that when these matters come to the knowledge of the town and county authorities, that they will at once take such actions as may be necessary to preserve the good name of the community.

How the Road Drag Helps.

Mr. J. M. Allred, an enthusiastic advocate of road improvement in Caldwell County, has demonstrated beyond question the practicability of keeping in first-class condition a well constructed road simply by the constant and intelligent use of the ordinary split-log drag. His road leading out from Granite Falls is kept in good condition during the year at a cost of $10 per mile and each citizen on this road contributes only $1 to the road fund each year. I walked over this road during the recent continued rainy weather, and notwithstanding the fact that there was heavy traffic on it, it was practically free from mud. The road has been transformed into a sand-clay since the rotten soil has been washed out, leaving only the solid matter which makes an excellent road bed and which is kept in such condition that a good team can haul from 3,000 to 5,000 pounds over it for 340 days in the year.

Mr. Allred's experience is that it is best from an economical standpoint not to undertake too much at a time. Plow along just outside the ruts and have some shoveling and dragging, getting the soil in the center of the road, bearing all along in mind that you want the road bed sloped from the very center to the ditch so as to shed the water quickly and not allow it to run along down the rut made by the wheel. It is well in beginning the drag system to drag when very sloppy (but never when very sticky), and then when in a crumbly state and ruts begin to be made, the drag will fill up the ruts, knock off the high points and unload in the low places.

Every first-class two-horse farmer ought by all means to have a split-log drag. He can take it out while resting and run it for a mile or less and back and at a time when he could not be in the field.—W. M. MOORE, Progressive Farmer.

Holed Out and Pulled the Hole In After Them.

Up to about 1860 the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky was widely advertised by its owner. But the owner died that year and left the cave to thirteen heirs scattered over the country. The lucky thirteen devoted themselves to dreams of spending the big income which the cave had been earning for many years because it had been advertised. But they forgot to keep up the advertising. Now the cave is visited by comparatively few persons instead of by many thousands annually, as in the days when it was advertised. But the great cave conveys a lesson to every business man. If you quit advertising, your place will be ignored by the public even more than Mammoth Cave is ignored, because you are not even a natural curiosity. See the point?
