The Fight Is On

The election is over—the smoke has cleared away, but the supreme battle is yet to be fought out. The great mass of freemen in the United States has overthrown the mighty elephant representative of the Republican party, and the policy of this great Republic is to be shaped along Democratic lines.

The Democrats will control both the Senate and the House of Representatives. Wisdom must guide, or else the pledges to the people will fail of fulfillment. We trust, however, to the leader hip of Woodrow Wilson and the men whom he will choose to assist in giving every section of the country a "square deal."

Here in North Carolina, we have struck a peculiar attitude. Speaking of the recent campaign in the State, The Carolina Democrat pertinently says: "No man can tell today whether North Carolina is a protection or an anti-protection State. The great moral iniquity of protection has been obscured in a wilderness of pork barrel argument and special pleadings. While speakers were on the stump denouncing the protective policy of the Republican party speakers were on other stumps in the senatorial race upholding every principle of that party on the same question. All this has so confused the people that we are today in a weaker position on this subject in the State than ever before. But the confusion must eventually pass away and the next campaign will no doubt get down to rock bottom."

The State and County governments are in safe hands—hands that will work to make this a greater and bigger Commonwealth, so we need have no fear. Our Congressmen have and will stand firmly on the Democratic platform which every one is in honor bound to support. They will fight to a man the fastening of the protection yoke on the many for the benefit of multi millionaires. We feel that the interests of the people here in North Carolina will be carefully guarded. To future campaigns we must give more earnest heed, for as the years pass, so greater become our possibilities and responsibilities.

There are several hundred good Democrats in this county who stay home on election day. There is a reason. One would not have to go far to find the cause, and the party should begin right now to uphold this cause and seek to bring out every voter in this county.

Begin now to plan for the crop next year. Put in good cover crops and manure the land for a better and bigger harvest the coming season.
