Posee Fails to Capture Todds.
Greensboro.—A posse of United States deputy marshals returned here from Surry county, where, with county officers, they spent several days in a futile effort to run down Frank and G. E. Todd and Frank Brooks, outlaws, who operate along the Carolina-Virginia border, and who are alleged to have been the ring-leaders in the recent assault upon Sheriff Davis, of Surry and Deputy Marshal Harkrader. The outlaws escaped and successfully concealed themselves in the heavy mountain growth of ivy.

Proposed Laws for Wake County.
Raleigh.—There are many measures of importance to Raleigh and Wake pending in the house and the senate, some to be settled by legislative enactment, while others are to be referred to the people. Among these are measures for a million dollar bond issue for highways, the erection of a new court house and jail, the erection of a new county home, the sale of the city market house, the fixing of the game law, and the increase of certain salaries to pay off the debt of the board of education.

LAND OF THE LONG LEAF PINE
Short Paragraphs of State News That Has Been Condensed For Busy People of State.

Lumberton.—The Baptist Mission Institute was held in the First Baptist Church several days ago, the meeting being a pleasant and profitable one.

Rocky Mount.—Present indications are that Rocky Mount, which has had no public hospital, will have two modern institutions of this kind by the first of next year.

Raleigh.—Plans for a banquet in honor of Senator F. M. Simmons, Governor Locke Craig and Editor Josephus Daniels were announced to take place on the night of February 28.

Statesville.—A farmers institute was conducted at Troutman recently and quite a number of the farmers of that section availed themselves of the opportunity to get valuable information on modern agricultural methods.

Asheville.—The selection of a route through the South to connect with the San Diego-El Paso line, and the election of officers were the features of the sessions of the Southern National Highway Association, which adjourned to meet again upon the call of the president.

Durham.—J. P. Breedlove, librarian of Trinity college, came out with a lengthy article favoring the bill for the establishment of traveling libraries in the state, and gives a long argument in favor of the passage of the bill, which is now pending before the legislature.

Asheville.—Otis L. Green, a member of the National Hardware Association, has received a letter from M. L. Corey, National secretary of the organization, to the effect that a special train of New Yorkers en route to their homes from the convention at Jacksonville will spend March 25 here.

Morganton.—Much interest is being shown throughout Burke county in the monazite industry and Mr. R. T. Claywell and others propose to go to Washington in a few days, to confer with the House Ways and Means Committee in interest of the increased production of the mineral in this section.

Henderson.—Some dread disease prevails among the horses of the community, being largely confined to those which have been imported from other states. Within the past few weeks some dozen or more died in this city and it is feared that the disease may spread and become an epidemic.

Greensboro.—An epidemic of measles in Greensboro and Guilford county is spreading, especially in the mill villages and County Superintendent of Health Jones is working hard to hold the disease in check. Thus far only two deaths have occurred and these resulted from pneumonia complications.

Asheville.—The Central Labor union endorsed the commission form of government, following a strong address which was delivered by Neptune Buckner, the secretary of the local board of trade. A bill has been sent to the Legislature asking that this city be allowed to vote on the new form the first Tuesday in May.

Charlotte.—An agreement on the subject of desired drainage legislation will be reached in the near future in the opinion of Dr. J. R. Alexander, chairman of the county Drainage Commission. The delegation in the Legislature has been deferring action until something definite could be heard from the people of this county.

Raleigh.—Fifty-five counties share in the distribution of the second $100,000 appropriated by the state for assuring to every county a four-months minimum term of public schools. In making the distribution only $92,500 is actually used, only this amount being necessary after the counties have met the conditions in doing what they can to assure the minimum term.

Charlotte.—There is little probability, in the estimation of resident officials of the Piedmont & Northern Lines, of the interurban, at an early date taking over either by actual purchase or by contract, for electrification the Carolina & Northwestern Railway that at present extends from Chester, S. C., to Edgemont, this state, a distance of approximately 135 miles.

Raleigh.—Governor Craig pardoned Jason Withrow and Carl Harp, the first for perjury and the second for disturbing religious worship.

Mocksville.—It may be that the spirit of that great traveler, Daniel Boone, who hunted and fished on the Yadkin, has asserted itself—Dixie at last has started out for good roads. A recent mass-meeting attended by citizens from all over the county, held in this city, it was determined to put a bond issue to the vote of the people, and if the county as a whole defeats the issue, to take the matter up by township.

Salisbury.—The committees having charge of the arrangements for the U. C. T. Convention, which will be held in this city June 6 are now at work raising the necessary funds for the expenses of the meeting.

Salisbury.—The Rowan County School Board is getting ready to hold a county commencement in Salisbury March 28. There will be about 3,000 school children in the parade, and to take part in a general way in the program of the day. It will be the biggest occasion of the kind ever held in the county, as every school in the county is to take part.

ONE CABINET FACT
WOODROW WILSON'S OFFICIAL FAMILY WILL BE MADE UP OF PROGRESSIVES.
ALL GUESSERS ADMIT THIS

Conservative Democrats Are Somewhat Resentful but All Other Factions of All Parties Are Well Pleased With the Prospect.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—The country probably will not have to wait much longer to learn the names of the men chosen for service in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson. The politicians and the correspondents have made many cabinets for Mr. Wilson, and it is entirely probable that some of them have made good guesses, but from the word which comes from Trenton it is certain that if the right cabinet has been named by anybody it has been sheer guess work, for the president-elect has kept his own counsel in the matter and, moreover, has said some things in a degree denunciatory of those who would try to do his naming work for him.

Members of congress who have been to Trenton in an endeavor to find out definitely what the Democratic chieftain intends to do in the way of cabinet making apparently learned only one thing, and of course it is possible that they did not learn this one thing accurately. The chances are, however, that they did, and interviews with the returned ones show that they all are convinced of this: "Every man in the cabinet will be a progressive Democrat."

Members of the coming dominant party who have thought it worth while for advice-receiving purposes to go to New Jersey have come back seemingly convinced that no conservative Democrat will sit at the next president's table of council. This bit of news may not be to the liking of a good many Democrats of the United States, but it must be set down here in the way of news as being the apparent belief of both conservative and progressive Democrats who have talked to Mr. Wilson about the construction of his cabinet. No names are given, but men who will talk about it say that all the names of the ultra-conservatives of the party may be discarded when tables are being made of the possible cabinet selections.

There is something of a show of resentment among the conservative Democrats in Washington because of the course which they seem to think Mr. Wilson is to follow. The conservatives point even to Roosevelt, whom they do not like at all, as an example of what a progressive can do to balance things. They are urging that Mr. Roosevelt, Progressive, invited some conservatives into his cabinet in order that he might get the benefit of both sides of every discussion.

There is no weeping evident in Washington in the ranks of the progressive Democrats or in those of the conservative and progressive Republicans because of the apparent determination of Mr. Wilson to surround himself with men who will urge that the administration make things move. The reason for the dearth of tears among the progressive Democrats is apparent. The progressive Republicans like to see things moving even though motive power is supplied by a Democratic engine. The conservative Republicans are glad that the president-elect is going to "get a move on" because they think the machinery will go to smash before the year's journey is up. So it is that everybody apparently is happy except the conservative Democrats.

Now in trying to name a cabinet for Mr. Wilson in the face of his silence on the subject a start can be made by eliminating the conservative chieftains of the Democratic party, that is, those of them who are charged by their opponents with attempts in the past to block downward tariff revision and to check legislation of the kind attempted by their progressive colleagues.

Field Rather Limited.

There are eighteen or twenty of the progressive Democratic chieftains who, as members of congress view it, are of the cabinet type. It would be curious, therefore, if among a little more than a score of names that have been mentioned as of men certain to sit in the cabinet room the right names should not have been hit upon. There will be a great chance for the "I told you so's" on the day that Mr. Wilson names his advisers.

It must not be understood because Mr. Wilson apparently intends to name none but progressives for cabinet office that all of them will be men of the ultra-progressive type. It seems to be generally conceded that Obadiah Gardner of Maine will be made secretary of agriculture. He is a progressive without being in any sense a radical and it is probable that two or three men of this type may be given precedence, but none of them probably will be markedly conservative enough to give the conservative leaders like Martin of Virginia and Simmons of North Carolina an opportunity to say "happily he has recognized us."

There is no reason today to change the word of two months ago that the influences which it seems will be paramount with Mr. Wilson in the matter of cabinet selection are those of the school of Bryan of Nebraska and Gore of Oklahoma.
