

SYNOPSIS.

Cowboys of the Flying Heart ranch are heartbroken over the loss of their much-prised phonograph by the defeat of their champion in a foot-race with the cook of the Centipedo ranch. A house party is on at the Flying Heart. J. Walingford Speed, cheer leader at Yale, and Culver Covington, inter-collegiate champion run-mer, are expected. Helen Blake, Speed's sweetheart, becomes interested in the loss of the phonograph. She suggests to Jean Chapin, sister of the owner of the ranch, that she induce Covington, her lover, to win back the phonograph. Helen declares that if Covington won't run, Speed will. The Cowboys are hilarious over the pros-pect. Speed and his valet. Larry Glass, trainer at Yale, arrive. Helen Bluke asks Speed, who has posed to her as an ath-lete, to race against the Centipede man. The cowboys join in the appeal to Wally, and fearing that Helen will find him out, he consents. He lensists, however, that he shall be entered as an unknown, figuring that Covington will arrive in time to take his place. Fresno, slee club singer from Stanford university and in love with Helen, tries to diacredit. Speed and Glass put in the time they are supposed to be training playing cards in a secluded spot. "We are ready!" called Jean gayly. "What in the world--" Helen paused at sight of the swathed figure

Are you cold, Mr. Speed?" "Climb on your horses and get a start," panted the burly trainer; "he's goin' to race you ten miles." "I'm going to do nothing of the sort. I'm going to-"

But Glass jerked him violently, cry ing: "And no talkin' to gals, neither You're trainin'. Now, get a move!" Speed haited stubbornly.

"Hit her up, Wally! G'wan, nowfaster! No loafing, Bo, or I'll wallop Nor did he cease until they you!' both paused from exhaustion. Even then he would not allow his charge to do more than regain his breath be fore urging him onward.

"See here," Wally stormed at last what's the use? I can't-" "What's the use? That's the use!"

Glass pointed to the north, where a lone horseman was watching them from a knoll. "D'you know who that 18 ?"

The rider was small and stoop shouldered.

"Willie!" "That's who."

"He's following us!"

With knees trembling beneath him Speed jogged feebly on down the road, Glass puffing at his heels.

When, after covering five miles they finally returned to the Flying Heart, it was with difficulty that they could drag one foot after another Wally Speed was drenched with perspiration and Glass resembled nothing so much as a steaming pudding; rivulets of sweat ran down his neck, his face was purple, his lips swollen.

"Y-you'll have-to run alone-this afternoon," panted the tormenter.

"No use at all. You couldn't out run a steam-roller, but if you won' duck out, I've got to do my best. I'd as lief die of a gunshot-wound as starve to death in the desert." "Do you suppose we could run way ?" "Could we!" Glass propped himself eagerly upon one elbow. "Leave it to

"No!" Wally resumed rubbing him self down. "I can't leave without look ing like a quitter. Fresno would get her sure.

"What's the difference if you're astraddle of a cloud with a gold guitan in your lap?"

"Oh, they won't kill us."

"I tell you these cow-persons is desp'rate. If you stay here and run that race next Saturday, she'll tiptoe up on Sunday and put a rose in your hand, sure. I can see her now, all in black. Take it from me, Wally, we ain't goin' to have no luck in this thing.

"My dear fellow, the simplest way out of the difficulty is for me to in fure myself-

"Here!" Glass hopped to his feet and dove through the blankets. "None of that! Have a little regard for me If you go lame it's my curtain.

All that day the trainer stayed close to his charge, never allowing him out of his sight, and when, late in the aft ernoon. Speed rebelled at the espion age, Glass merely shrugged his fat shoulders.

"But I want to be alone-with her Can't you see?"

"I can, but I won't. Go as far as you like. I'll close my eyes."

"Or I'll close them for you!" The lad scowled; his companion laughed mirthlessly. "Don't start nothin' like that-I'd ruin you. Gals is bad for a man in trainin' anyhow."

"I suppose I'm not to see her-"You can see her, but I want to hear what you say to her. No emo tion till after this race, Wally."

"You're an idiot! This whole affair is preposterous-ridiculous." "And yet it don't make us laugh does it?" Glass mocked. "If these cowboys make me run that race, they'll be sorry-mark my words, they'll be sorry." Speed lighted a cigarette and in haled deeply, but only once. The other lunged at him with a cry and snatched it. "Give me that cigarette!"

"I've had enough of this foolishness," Wally stormed. "You are dis charged!" "I wish f was."

"You are!" "Not!"

"I say you are fired!" Glass stared at him "Oh, I mean it! I won't be bullied."

'I'll wise up that queen of yours lv. Mr. Speed."

"Hurry up, n's daylight!" Where?

"Come, now, you got to run five niles before breakfast!" Speed sat up with a groan. "If pun five miles," he said, "I won't want any breakfast," and he laid himself down again gratefully-he was very sore—whereat his companion fairly dragged him out of bed. As yet the room was black, although the windows were grayed by the first faint streaks of dawn. From the adjoining room came a chorus of distress: snores of every size, volume, and degree of intensity, from the last harrowing gasp of strangulation to the bold trumpet-ings of a bull moose. There were long-drawn sighs, groans of torture, rumbling blasts. Speed shuddered. "They sound like a troop of trained ea-lions," he said.

"Don't wake 'em up. Here!" Glass yawned widely, and tossed a bundle of weaters at his companion.

"Ugh! These clothes are all wet and cold, and-it feels like blood!" "Nothin' but the mornin' dew." It's perspiration."

"Well, a little sweat won't hurt you." "Nasty word." Speed yawned in turn. "Perspiration! I can't wear wet clothes," and would have crept back into his bed.

This time Glass deposited him upon a stool beside the table, and then lighted a candle, by the stokly glare of which he selected a pair of runningshoes.

"Why didn't you leave me alone?" grumbled the younger man. "The only pleasure I get is in sleep-I for get things then."

"Yes," retorted the former, saroastically, "and you also seem to forget that these are our last days among the living. Saturday the big thing comes off."

"Forget! I dreamed' about it!" The boy sighed heavily. It was the hour in which hope reaches its lowest ebb and vitality is weakest. He was very cold and very miserable.

"You ain't got no edge on ma," the other acknowledged, mournfully •I'm too young to die, and that's a bet." Suddenly the pandemonium in the bunk-house was pierced by the brazen jangle of an alarm-clock, whereat a sleepy voice cried:

"Cloudy, kill that clock !" "The Indian uttered some indistinguishable epithet, and the next instant there came a crash as the offending timepiece was hurled violently against the wall.

In silence Glass shoved his unsteady victim ahead of him out into the dawn. In the east the sun was rising amid a riotous splendor. At any other time, under any other circumstances. Speed could not have restrained his admiration, for the whole world was a morious sparkling panoply of color. But to the stiff and wearled Eastern Mid it was all cruelly mocking. When he halted listlessly to view its beamties he was goaded forward, ever forward, faster and faster, until finally, amid protests and sighs and complaining joints, he broke into a heavy, flat-fock ed jog-trot that jolted the artistic sense entirely out of him.

Jessie Woodrow Wilson Becomes Bride of Francis Bowes Sayre

Francis B. Sayra.

Washington, Nov. 25 .- In the beautiful east room of the White House at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the president, was made the wife of Francis Bowes Sayre. Rev. Sylvester Beach of Princeton, N. J., performed the ceremony.

The entire affair was very simple, as had been requested by the bride, and the number of guests was rather small-distressingly so to many per-sons in official and social circles of Washington who had expected to re ceive invitations but were disappointed.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, eldest of the three daughters, acted as maid of honor to her sister, and Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, the youngest, was one of the bridesmaids. The three other bridesmaids were Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott of Prince ton, daughter of Prof. William B. Scott; Miss Marjorie Brown of Atlanta, Pa., daughter of Mrs. Wilson's cousin, Col. E. T. Brown, and Miss Mary White of Baltimore, a college friend G. of the bride.

Dr. Grenfell is Best Man.

Mr. Sayre was attended by his best man, Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the famous medical missionary to the fishermen of the Labrador coast. The two men have long been fast friends and Mr. Sayre spent two summers helping Dr. Grenfell with his work.

The ushers were Charles E. Hughes, Jr., son of Justice Hughes of the Supreme court and a classmate of Mr. Sayre in the Harvard law school; Dr. Gilbert Horax of Montclair, N. J., who was a classmate at Williams college in 1909 and now at Johns Hopkins university; Benjamin Burton of New York city, and Dr. Scoville Clark of Salem, Mass., who was Mr. Sayre's companion in Labrador and Newfound-

JESSIE'S WEDDING CAKE.

Jessie Wilson's wedding cake was a triumph of the pastry cook's art. It was two and a half feet tall, counting the white orchids that were placed on top of it, and weighed 135 pounds. The first layer was four inches thick and 22 inches across. The cake contained 19 ingredients and its cost was about $500. Over the body of the cake was molded a thick white icing scroll work, on its top was a design for the initials of the bride and groom, done in silver, and around the sides were lilies of the valley in white sugar. This delicious confection was distributed in 2,000 dainty white boxes tied with satin ribbon and each of the proper size to go under the pollow of the recipient to bring dreams.

There was one disappointment for those who attended the wedding, for the gifts were not put on display. It is known that these included many beautiful and valuable articles sent by relatives and personal friends of the bride and groom and of their familles and by admirers of President Wilson. Handsome presents were sent by both the senate and the house. that of the latter being a diamond lavalliere which Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of the speaker, brught for the representatives in New York.

Guests Limited to 400. Those who were invited to witness the wedding were mostly personal friends and the number was kept down close to four hundred. The list was Something About the Groom.

Francis Bowes Sayre is twentyeight years old, and was born at South Bethlehem, Pa., a son of the late Robert Heysham Sayre, who built the Lehigh Valley railroad and at one time was assistant to the president of the Bethlehem iron works. since known as the Bethlehem steel works. He was also once president of the board of trustees of the Lehigh university.

Francis Bowes Sayre graduated from Lawrenceville school, Lawrenceville. N. J., in 1904, and from Williams college in 1909. He entered Harvard law school and graduated "cum laude." He was a member of the Sigma Phi fraternity, Gargoyle society and the Pai Beta Kappa at Williams. For the past year he has been working in the office of District Attorney Whitman of New York. During the summer he was admitted to the bar of New York state.

Mr. Sayre's mother is Mrs. Martha Finlay Sayre, daughter of the late William Nevin, who was president of Franklin and Marshal college at Lancaster, Pa. She is a descendant of Hugh Williamson of North Carolina, one of the framers of the Constitution as has been said, the operation result of the United States, and is a sister ed in many heartburnings. "Got to-fry off some more-leaf lard," declared the trainer with vulgarity. He lumbered into the cookhouse, radiating heat waves, puffing like a traction-engine, while his companion staggered to the gymnasium, and sank into a chair. A moment later he appeared with two bottles of beer, one glued to his lips. Both were evidently ice cold, judging from the fog that covered them.

Speed rose with a cry.

"Gee! That looks good!" But the other, thrusting him aside vithout removing the neck of the bottle from his lips, gurgled: "No booze, Wally! You're trainin!"

"But I'm thirsty!" shouted the athlete, laying hands upon the full bottle, and trying to wrench it free.

"Have a little sense. If you're thirsty hit the sink." Glass still maintained his hold, mumbling indistinct ly: "Water's the worst thing in the world. Wait! I'll get you some."

He stepped into the bunk-room, to return an instant later with a cup half "Rinse out your mouth, and full. don't swallow it all."

"All! There isn't that much. Ugh! It's lukewarm. I want a bucket of water-ice-water!"

"Nothing doing! I won't stand to have your epictetus chilled. "My what?"

"Never mind now. Off with then as, and get under that shower. I sess it'll feel pretty good to-day." Speed obeyed instructions sullenly, while his trainer, reclining in the our corner, uncorked the second oottle. From behind the blanket curwhere the barrel stood, the for er demanded:

"What did you mean by saying I'd ave to run again this afternoon?" "Starts!" said Glass, shortly.

"Past work. We been loading far; you got to get some ginger." "Rata! What's the use?"

"D' You Know Who That is?"

Blake? Wait!" Speed wilted miser ably. "She mustn't know. I-I hire you over again."

"Suit yourself."

"You see, don't you? My love for Helen is the only serious thing I ever xperienced," said the boy. "I-can't ose her. You've got to help me out." And so it was agreed.

That evening, when the clock struck nine, J. Wallingford Speed was ready and willing to drag himself off to bed, in spite of the knowledge that Fresno was waiting to take his place in the hammock. He was racked by a thousand pains, his muscles were sore, his back lame. He was con by a thirst which Glass stoutly refused to let him quench, and possessed by a fearful longing for a Depart on Their Honeymoon.

After the ceremony was completed and the couple had received the congratulations of the guests, refreshments were served, and then Mr. and Mrs. Sayre departed for their honey moon. Their plans include a visit to the home of Miss Nevin, Mr. Sayre's aunt, at Windsor Forges, near Church town, Fa., where they first met. After January 1 they will live in Williams town, Mass., for Mr. Sayre is to sever his connection with the office of District Attorney Whitman in New York and become assistant to Harry A. Garfield, president of V/illiams college.
