LOCALS

July bugs are on the wing now.

John W. Bailey, of Bear Grass, sent a large cotton bloom to the office on Monday.

Messrs. Sewell and Dunston, of Windsor, passed through here on Sunday with race horses, which were put on the track at Battleboro on the Fourth.

If Dew days began on the 3rd, there were some wet curs around here, for it rained much. Forty days of such weather would be disastrous to crops. St. Swithin's Day is on the 15th, and there is some old story of rains connected with it.

Job Harris, a colored man living on the Staton farm, brought to the office the first cotton bloom for 1917.

The warehouse men here are making preparations for the coming season, which promises high prices—if you sell on the Williamston market. Don't forget to do it.

The dispensary which opened here Monday for the administration of anti-typhoid vaccine, was filled with people all during the hours, and a large number received inoculation.

Picnics were very much in evidence at the big mill last week, though the sound of war is heard and men everywhere are called upon to conserve. It would take an army of Germans to stop some things practiced in Martin County.

Miss Daisy Taylor, who was motoring out Washington Street on Monday, accidentally struck a small colored boy and slightly injured him. She checked the speed of her machine or the boy would have been hurt seriously. Autoists and pedestrians also should take extreme care to avoid accidents, which are rendered more probable by the increasing number of machines.

Be A Soldier of The Soil
THE MAN BEHIND THE PLOW IS GREATER THAN THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN

We are behind the farmers. It is a great pleasure to help them in every way we can. We realize when farming is prosperous all other lines of business prosper. When farming is unprofitable all business is cramped. The greatest efficiency in farming is found where the farmers and bankers co operate. It is our wish to co-operate with all our farmers and we are prepared to help everyone who needs help. We take interest in the farmer---not altogether FROM him.
