

ONLY ONE MORE DAY TO COMPLETE ORGANIZATION OF EXCHANGE

"Over the top this week," is our slogan, and we must bend every energy to this end.

We made great strides forward last week and we must now redouble our efforts in order to go over the top this week.

In this final drive the county officials need the full cooperation of all signers.

This is the time for every signer to show his colors and to get in the great game of winning the victory that is so near at hand.

We now appeal to every grower to help win this victory.

If you cannot do anything on this campaign before Wednesday, June 15, then give the whole of that day to securing signers.

If you will not give the whole of Wednesday to this work, then when you go to town make it a point to approach any grower who has not signed and stay with him till you get his signature.

Remember, we must now put this campaign over and we are counting on you to help us do it.

Get a sign if you can, and you can if you only will. If you will not do anything else to help push the movement, then keep talking it to all whom you meet.

If you succeed in securing any signers, be sure to mail your report not later than Wednesday, June 15, so that it will be in hand by June 15, the day on which our board of directors will meet.

Very truly yours,
J. FRANK FOOSHE,
Secretary and Manager.

Why Farmers Should Join

The small amount that each grower is called upon to invest in the Exchange is a mere trifle as compared with the losses that will come to each one individually, if the Exchange is not perfected.

If the peanut growers fail to come together at this time, then they will be at the mercy of the speculative interests not only for this crop, but for years to come.

At no time since last summer has there been shown such marked interest in the perfection of the Exchange.

Not only are more growers taking an active interest in securing signers, but they are having a larger measure of success in proportion to the efforts they are putting forth.

The most encouraging sign is the goodly number of large growers who are now signing up.

Talk about risk. What greater risk can anyone take than to go to the expense of furnishing fertilizer and seed preparing and cultivating land, and then harvesting the crop, without any assurance as to how it is to be sold.

The risk of a small investment to put across an organization is mighty little as compared with these larger risks that farmers are taking all the time.

The way for peanut growers to stop such hazardous risks is to come together and perfect the exchange.

You are not a member of the Exchange till enough of your fellow growers sign the contract so as to give the required number of signers.

This effort to organize the Peanut Exchange is part of a nation-wide movement to secure better marketing

NEWS LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Charles Hufham, highway engineer for the state of Delaware, has accepted appointment to the same position in North Carolina, and will come to the state within the next few weeks to begin his new duties.

Mr. Hufham spent several days here last week when the Commission was in session, and went over the work with the members. He telegraphed his acceptance to Chairman Page.

Mr. Hufham comes to North Carolina in place of Clifford Older, state highway engineer of Illinois, who was appointed by the commission at its second session in April.

Mr. Older accepted the position, agreeing to come to North Carolina early in the summer, and later reconsidered his decision, because of the unwillingness of members of his family to leave that state.

The new highway engineer is a graduate in engineering at the Boston Institute of Technology. Some years ago the DuPonts determined to build a paved highway across their state of Delaware.

Mr. Hufham was in their employ at the time, and he was delegated to go into every state in the Union, and into several foreign countries to study roads.

He went at the expense of the DuPonts, and came home and built one of the finest pieces of road in the world.

He was made state highway engineer of Delaware, and continued the road building provided by the general assembly.

Delaware is said to have the finest system of road in the country, most of which has been built under the direction of Mr. Hufham.

Mr. Page has known him for several years and has high regard for his abilities as an engineer.

Immediate Construction

Immediate construction on 482 miles of roads in North Carolina, costing over $7,000,000 has been ordered by the state Highway Commission.

Mr. Older accepted the position, agreeing to come to North Carolina early in the summer, and later reconsidered his decision, because of the unwillingness of members of his family to leave that state.

The winter wheat crop in the south west has been reported as suffering from drought, the estimate for Kansas being materially reduced.

ORDERS RECEIVED TO BEGIN SURVEYING

Chief engineer Haxton has received instructions from the Highway Department to begin surveying the proposed highway going north as soon as possible.

This will mean much to the people in this section as we have been reading, talking and dreaming about good roads so long that even our optimism has begun to wane, a little real action will do all of us good.

THE CROPS

The winter wheat crop in the south west has been reported as suffering from drought, the estimate for Kansas being materially reduced.

There was a considerable short interest outstanding, which was impelled by the crop news, together with the steady export movement, to cover its position, and the result was a rise at the outside of about 60 cents per bushel in the May delivery.

The July delivery advanced about 25 cents. For the 46 weeks ended May 19, the exports of wheat and flour from the United States and Canada amounted to the equivalent of 389,712,629 bushels, and for the single week ended at the above date the exports were 9,260,946 bushels.

The movement from Argentina has been disappointing to those who looked for lower prices, being hampered by the port strike at Buenos Aires and the government's policy as to export taxes.

It is evident that the carry-over in this country and Canada will be small. A report which lacks confirmation has been in circulation, telling of the movement of a cargo of wheat from England to Russia.

However that may be, there is little prospect of exports from any part of Russia this year and the supplies of the Balkan countries will not be large enough to afford any contribution to Western Europe.

Crop reports from other countries are generally favorable. Common opinion about the cotton acreage is that the reduction from last year will be about 30 per cent, and that the restriction in use of fertilizers will cause a further curtailment of the crop.

Cold weather has retarded planting and germination and the outlook at the beginning of the season is for a substantial reduction.

Dairy products have been about steady during the past month, but are going into cold storage for winter at prices not above those of the pre-war period.

The live stock markets have been fairly well maintained during the last month of May, hogs at Chicago holding above $8.00 until the last days of the month, when they broke through that price.

The cattle and sheep markets have about held their previous position. The weather has been cold and the season is a little backward, but the soil is in good condition, labor is plentiful, and the crop is being put in with cost largely reduced.

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE UNIVERSITY

Chapel Hill, N. C., June 14.—The largest number of graduates that ever received degrees from a North Carolina institution, upwards of 180 men and women with a long record of successful work behind them, stepping down from the platform of Memorial Hall at the University of North Carolina, Wednesday morning, June 15, their diplomas in their hands, brought to a climax the 126th commencement at the university.

The undiluted flavor of straight Tar Heelism pervaded the four days of commencement activities. From the chief executive of North Carolina, Governor Cameron Morrison, the graduates received their jealous won diplomas, and from that towering Tar Heel, former secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, they listened to the last words of admonition most of them will hear on the university campus.

Throughout the four days of commencement, from baccalaureate sermon to the final address, North Carolina figures, preachers, students, alumni, and state officials, stood out in the forefront of an All-North Carolina event.

The baccalaureate sermon, preached by the Rev. Charles E. Maddry, secretary of the Baptist State convention, was the first day of commencement, Sunday morning, June 12. For Dr. Maddry the event was a homecoming in itself; eighteen years ago almost to the day he stood on the same platform and delivered his senior oration which won for him the highest oratorical honor in the university.

The big gathering of alumni, chiefly from ten classes which had special reunions, dominated the campus on Alumni day, June 14. John Motley Morehead, of New York, presided at the annual alumni luncheon in Swain Hall.

Talks were made by Governor Morrison, attending his first commencement as governor, by Josephus Daniels, and by Walter Murphy of Salisbury, Charles A. Jonas of Lincolnton, and Alfred M. Scales of Greensboro. President Chase addressed the business meeting of the alumni and talks were made by representatives of each of the reunion classes, 1861, 1871, 1881, 1891, 1896, 1901, 1906, 1911, 1916, 1920.

Chapel Hill has rarely enjoyed a more delightful commencement. For four days the seniors, students, alumni, visitors, mothers and fathers and best girls surged backward and forward across the campus, attending financial meetings, renewing old associations, joining in at class dinners, musical concerts, baseball games, dramatic productions, and listening to addresses on nearly every possible subject.

And after the last diploma had been presented, the commencement dances, attended by more than 150 visiting young ladies, started in Swain Hall, Wednesday afternoon and will continue until the final ball on Thursday night. Swain Hall was specially decorated and the Weidemeyer Orchestra, of Huntington, West Virginia, furnished the music.

TEACHER'S SUMMER SCHOOL OPENS HERE 27TH OF THIS MONTH

All teachers who teach in the public schools of the State are required to attend some summer school. For the convenience of teachers in Martin and Washington counties a teacher's summer school will be held at the Graded School building in Williamston beginning Monday, June 27. This school will be conducted by approved teachers from the Department of Education and while it will not carry a long line of subjects as is done by the summer schools of the University and other large institutions, it will give a close personal attention to the very things needed by a large majority of our teachers.

What should be Williamston's attitude toward the summer school? This question is well worth our consideration. No better opportunity ever comes to a people to do something really good than when strangers come around. Practically every person that will come to this meeting will be some young man or woman who I strive to make good in life and accomplish something in the world.

If we give them good impressions of our town and county they will be our friends in the future, they will help us put all our good propositions over, they will help us improve and build. Every merchant in town as well as every business and professional man should put forth the human touch and make every teacher feel that after all a life of service and effort is worth while. The merchant that makes a friend, makes a customer and it may be for years to come. One of the difficulties will be to procure good places for the teachers to live while here. Our people should make some little sacrifice to take care of them while they are with us and at a reasonable price.
