Maggie and Jiggs at The Golden Gate

(Reprinted by request) St. Peter stood guard at the golden gate With solemn mien and an air sedate, When up on top of the golden stair Maggie and Jiggs, ascending there, Applauded admittance, they came and stood Before St. Peter, so great and good; In hope the city of peace to win, And asked St. Peter to let them in.

Maggie was tall and dark and thin, With a scraggly beardlet on her chin, Jiggs was short and thick and stout, And his stomach was built so it rounded out, His face was pleasant and all the while He wore a kindly and gentle smile. The choir in the distance and echoes woke, And Jiggs kept still while Maggie spoke.

"O, thou who guardest the gate," said she, "We two come thither beseeching thee To let us enter the Heavenly land, And play our harps with the angel band. Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt: There's nothing from Heaven to bar me out. I've been to meeting three times a week, And almost always I'd rise and speak.

"I've told the sinners about the day When they'd repent of their evil way, I've told my neighbors—I've told 'em all 'Bout Adam and Eve and the Primal Fall. I've shown them what they'd have to do If they'd pass in with the chosen few, I've marked their path of duty clear, Laid out the plan of their whole career.

"I've talked and talked to 'em, loud and long, For my lungs are good and my voice is strong. So, good St. Peter, you'll clearly see The gate of Heaven is open to me. But Jiggs here, I regret to say, Hasn't walked in exactly the narrow way; He smokes and swears and grays faults he's got, So I don't know whether he'll pass or not.

"He never would pray with an earnest vim,

Or go to revival, or join in a hymn, While I the sins of my neighbors hear. He gadded about with Dirty Moore. He made a practice of staying out late, Which is a sin all women hate; But at last when he did come home, The rolling pin went straight for his dome.

"I know him, St. Peter, know him well; To escape from me, he'd go to hell; But St. Peter, I need him here, And hope you can see your way clear. On earth I bore a heavy cross, Give me in Heaven still Jiggs to boss. I've brought my rolling pin, plates and jars, To keep him dodging among the stars.

"But, say, St. Peter, it seems to me This gate isn't kept as it ought to be. You ought to stand right by the opening there, And never sit down in that easy chair. And say, St. Peter, my sight is dimmed, But I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed. They're cut too wide with an outward toss; They'd look better narrow and straight across."

St. Peter sat quiet and stroked his staff, But in spite of his office he had to laugh; "Who's tending this gate, Maggie, you or I?" Then he arose in his stately air, And pressed a button on the wall, And said to the imp who answered the bell, "Escort this female round to hell."

Slowly Jiggs turned, by habit bent, To follow wherever Maggie went, St. Peter standing on duty there, Saw that the top of his head was bare. He called the old boy back and said, "Jiggs, how long has that been wed?" "Thirty years," (with a weary sigh) And then he thoughtfully added "Why?" St. Peter was silent with head bowed; He raised his head and scratched his crown; Then, seeming a different thought to take, Slowly, half to himself he spoke: "Thirty years with that woman there, No wonder the man hasn't an yhair, Swearing is wicked, smoking is not good; He swore and swore; I should think he would! "Thirty years with that tongue so sharp— Ho! Angel Gabriel! Give him a harp: A jeweled harp with a golden string. Good sir, pass in where the angels sing." And Gabriel gave him a see-also. One with a cushion, up near the throne. "Call up some angels to play their best; For Jiggs has certainly earned a rest.

"See that our finest ambrosia hefe-d. He's had about all the he! he needs. It isn't hard yhe thing to do-- To roast him on earth and in the future too." They gave him a harp with golden strings, A glittering robe and a pair of wings, And Jiggs, looking down from his high level, Thought of Maggie and felt sorry for the devil. —George Bradshaw in Pore Magazine.
