

ARABIA THE LAST FRONTIER

Easy of Access Through the Country
In Much of Its Lands Still Are Unexplored.

It is a curious circumstance, when you pause to consider it, that of Arabia, whose shores are skirted almost daily for upward of 2,000 miles by tourist-laden steamers, which can be reached by airplane from Cairo between breakfast and luncheon of a single day, the western world has less knowledge than it has of inner Asia or equatorial Africa or the polar regions, writes E. Alexander Powell in the World's Work. Though in area the peninsula is one-third the size of the United States, the Europeans who have penetrated its mysterious interior can be numbered on the fingers of one's two hands. Sadler, Falgrave, Burton, Peily, Doughty Lawrence, Leachman, Philby, and two women, Lady Anne Blunt (the granddaughter of Lord Byron) and Miss Gertrude Bell—there you have all or nearly all, of the names that comprise the brief, intrepid list. It is the only land which has successfully defied the white man and halted the on-sweep of civilization, the lives and customs of its 10,000,000 inhabitants since the world was young. It is the sole remaining country on the map considered areas of which are still marked "unexplored." It is the last frontier.

EDUCATING THE CITY CHILD

Cow Recently Placed in New York
Zoo Source of Much Delight to the Juveniles.

New York's zoo seems to be the first one to get a cow for exhibition among the "strange animals" gathered from all quarters of the globe. The cow was presented by the Dairyman's League.

So, now, no longer will city children entertain a vague idea that milk as they know it originates somehow in a bottle or a tin can. The American animal that generates milk will be right before their eyes, and, no doubt, at fixed times of day she will be milked in the presence of large and deeply interested juvenile audiences.

In St. Louis it was found that there were large numbers of children that had never seen a sheep, a somewhat smaller number that had never beheld a pig, and a very considerable percentage to whom a cow was only a picture.

A cow is, of course, as appropriate in a zoo as a bear, and ours, like others, will be grazed with one. Children will learn where the milk comes from and when they are older they can visit a first-class dairy and see what is done to it to keep it wholesome.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Resourceful Actor.

This is a story told by Representative Julius Kahn of California: "The villain was to climb a ladder to a barred window in the third act and try to find his way to freedom. Then, when about to escape, he was to be shot by some one on the outside, after which he was to fall back from the ladder, exclaiming:

"Heavens, I'm shot!" or something like that before breathing his last.

"On this occasion the revolver of the man behind the scenes who was to fire a blank cartridge didn't work, and the man falling away at the bars could not consistently fall back, exclaiming that he was shot. But he was a resourceful actor, and so he fell from the ladder at the right place, anyhow. As he did so he yelled:

"Good heavens! I've swallowed the lie!"—New York Herald.

HOG SHIPPERS URGED TO WATCH FORECASTS

Warnings Broadcast by Department of Agriculture.

Out of Approximately 45,000 Animals Shipped in May and June, 1921, 181 Were Dead on Arrival at Chicago.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Warnings to hog shippers to be guided by weather forecasts in loading hogs for shipment during the early summer months is being broadcast by the United States Department of Agriculture. A sudden climb of the mercury may result in dead hogs for the unprepared shipper, statistics collected by the bureau of agricultural economics show.

Out of approximately 45,000 hogs shipped from local points in May and June, 1921, the figures show that 181 were reported dead upon arrival at Chicago. Thirty-eight per cent of the deaths occurred on May 23 and June 13. Weather charts revealed that the temperature on each of these days was extremely high as compared with that on the day or two immediately preceding. Where the temperature continued high for several days relatively few animals died as compared with the number that succumbed at the beginning of the hot spells.

Further studies of the possible effect of high temperatures on hogs in shipment are to be made by the department. Numerous causal factors are responsible for the death of hogs in transit and the department is not yet prepared to establish a definite relationship between the number of animals reported dead on arrival at any given market and the atmospheric temperature at the market. The data is regarded as sufficient, however, to warn shippers to watch the weather forecasts and to load their stock accordingly.

Aged Sisters Get Together Again

After sixty-six years these sisters had a get-together in San Francisco when Mrs. Rebecca Guyer Marsh, eighty-three, and Mrs. Lucy R. Guyer Thomas, seventy-eight, went from the Yakima valley in Washington to San Francisco to call upon Mrs. Elizabeth Guyer Hyland, ninety-one, who had not seen her sisters since 1927, when she left the family home at Carroll Springs, O., for California.

The Man Who Signs Must Make Good

READ all the ads in this issue of The Enterprise.

A responsible man puts his name to a piece of paper and it becomes a check—the equivalent of money.

He signs his name on the back of another piece of paper and it becomes an endorsed note—good for money.

He writes a letter and it becomes a binding contract.

The adding of the name makes these things solemn and legal obligations.

The man who signs is responsible.

Just so with an advertisement—the moment a man signs his name to it he has made a pledge to the public.

He is bound by his word as much as if he signed a check or note. He must do what he promised on the terms he promised.

If he does not, he courts business disaster. The man who advertises a lie publicly proclaims himself a liar. Such men are seldom in business but frequently in asylums.

It is safer to buy advertised articles than nondescript ones. It is safer to deal with merchants who advertise than those who do not.

An advertisement is a signed pledge of good faith to the public.
